Sikeston To Present Its Story For Commercial Airline Service

THE FLAG is being removed from Marine Private Wayne Hyde's casket at burial services in the Garden of Memories Cemetery yesterday afternoon.

Three Hundred Persons Attend Private Hyde's Funeral Services

More than 300 persons attended Marine Private Wayne Hyde's funeral services yesterday afternoon. He was killed June 6 in combat in Viet Nam.

Young Hyde entered military service December 31, 1965, and was killed while on patrol when his weapon exploded while attempting to fire it.

Sikeston Hospital Approved

WASHINGTON -- The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has made public names of 5,558 hospitals which, as of June 11, are in compliance with laws against racial discrimination and thus eligible to participate in Medicare programs.

Medicare comes into effect July 1.

Harold Jones, Sikeston's Missouri Delta Community hospital administrator, said this morning that his hospital was among the one's approved to make application for participation.

He said, however, that his hospital's board of directors has not yet accepted Medicare.

Missouri hospitals approved to make application totals 135.

The Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau was also approved, along with the Dunklin County Memorial hospital in Kennett.

Youth Graduates In Hospital Gown

LOS ANGELES AP -- Mace Goodman, 17, wore a gown at his high school graduation, but it wasn't the traditional one -- it was a hospital gown.

Since the youth, who broke his leg and dislocated his shoulder in a motorcycle accident June 8, couldn't go to the graduation ceremonies, the ceremonies were brought to him.

Potashnick Announces For Prosecuting Attorney

Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick today announced his candidacy for re-election subject to the Democratic Primary, August 2, 1966.

In announcing his candidacy for re-election, Potashnick pointed out that in 1965, his first year in office, compared to 1964, total convictions obtained in all cases were up 7 1/2 per cent; fees collected and payable to the County General Revenue Fund rose 15 per cent to $4,435.50; fines collected and payable to the school fund were up 37 per cent to $9,765.00. For the first quarter of 1966 compared to the first quarter of 1965, total convictions obtained in all cases were up 165 per cent, fees collected and payable to the County General Revenue Fund were up 164 per cent, and fines collected and payable to the school fund were up 125 per cent.

Mr. Potashnick, a life-long resident of Scott County, graduated from Sikeston High School in 1951, having been elected Governor of Missouri Boys State in 1950. He obtained his AB degree at Missouri University in 1956 and his law degree at the same school in 1958. While at the University, he served as student body president in 1954-55.

After service in the United States Army, he returned to Scott County to begin his practice of law. In 1963 he was Chairman of the Sikeston United Fund Campaign, and was selected as Junior Chamber of Commerce Young Man of the Year in 1962.

Sikeston Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, and a member of the Scott County Economic Opportunity Corporation Board of Directors. He is very active in church work, serving as a member of the board, Sunday School teacher and Lay Speaker at the First Methodist Church in Sikeston.

Mr. Potashnick is married to the former Sue Sikes and they reside in Sikeston with their children, David -- age 6 and Julia, age one.

Mr. Potashnick emphasized that his record speaks entirely for itself; that the number of convictions obtained and the fees and fines collected during his first term in office clearly deserve a second term. This record has been obtained while fully protecting the individual rights and freedoms of all persons charged with crime in Scott County.

Editors Note: The following is of vital importance to all of Sikeston and Southeast Missouri. We request that all citizens do their part so our showing at the below mentioned hearing will be outstanding.

Pandora's box was opened widely in the case of local airline service in Midwestern and Southern cities by an airline filing now known as "Central Airlines -- Route 81 Investigation." As soon as Central, a local service carrier with offices in Ft. Worth, Texas, placed their route filing on record, a whole host of other airlines entered the picture to either protect their present interests or to further enlarge their existing routes. It was because of this particular Central filing that Ozark Airlines filed a document with the Civil Aeronautics Board which requested a route as follows: "Between the terminal point St. Louis, Mo., and the terminal point Memphis, Tenn." or, in the alternative, "Between the terminal point St. Louis, Mo. and any one or more of the intermediate points Cape Girardeau, Mo., Sikeston, Mo., and Blytheville, Ark., and the terminal point, Memphis, Tenn." When this particular filing was made on the 25th of August, 1965, the City of Sikeston was so notified by Mr. C. L. Tabor, General Operating Manager of Ozark Airlines, who later gave the story directly to the radio and press by telephone. During this notification, Mr. Tabor did not mention that the city of Cape Girardeau was listed as an intermediate point, leading Sikeston officials to believe that Sikeston actually had an opportunity to be the major stop on this particular run. When the official documents were later received in the City Manager's office, the actual filing intentions were then learned. It became apparent at once that Sikeston could not compete with Cape Girardeau in this particular filing as Cape already has airline service provided by Ozark, consequently, the CAB is reluctant to place identical service in two cities with the proximity of Sikeston and Cape. Each stop in a medium size or small community costs the CAB and, ultimately, the tax payers, in the neighborhood of $100,000.00 per year subsidy. This amount being paid to a local carrier to provide funds for initial operation. Once a routing becomes profitable, the subsidy is withdrawn. Every trunk airline in the United States has at one time or another received federal subsidy but, to date, none do. In the case of the local carriers, each of them receives subsidy but in every instance have been able to reduce their receipts of federal funds by providing greater service with resultant improved profits.

Historically speaking, Sikeston has actually been seeking airline service since 1958. In that year, the City of Sikeston and the Chamber of Commerce filed a motion to intervene in the Kansas - Oklahoma case that was then before the Civil Aeronautics Board. In January of 1959, the Sikeston motion to intervene in this Kansas - Oklahoma case was denied by the Civil Aeronautics Board, stating "That Sikeston, Mo., is an off - route point and that petitions as formal parties will unduly broaden the issues and delay the proceedings."

Enthusiasm and efforts for airline service again were instituted during the fall of 1964, which resulted in a personal visit by Lennie Whitworth, Raymert Miller, Ralph Boyer, and Robert S. Matthews to Ozark Airlines, St. Louis, Missouri, at which time they met Mr. Darryl G. Weishaar, Traffic and Route Development Dept., Mr. C. L. Tabor, General Operating Manager of Ozark, Mr. Thomas L. Grace, President, and Mr. Paul J. Rodgers, Sales and Public Relations Dept. The Sikeston delegation was given certain steps to follow which could result in favorable CAB approval of a Sikeston application. The first major step was taken in February of 1965 when Robert S. Matthews and Bernard Rice made a special trip to Washington to confer with the CAB. They were joined at this Washington conference by Mr. Stanley Fike, Administrative Assistant to Sen. Stuart Symington, who assisted both Sikestonians in presenting their case to Mr. John Dregge, Director of Community and Congressional Relations; whose job it is to help the smaller communities obtain airline service. Mr. Dregge encouraged the Sikeston representatives to request that Ozark file for a "Subsidy free' route, direct between St. Louis, Sikeston, Blytheville, and Memphis. Robert S. Matthews and Mr. Rice met later in the day with two Ozark officials, Mr. Darryl Weishaar, Traffic and Route Development Dept., and Mr. Paul L. Bradshaw, their attorney. These men were very cordial and although they did not promise to act according to Sikeston's wishes, did say they would cooperate where possible and assist in working the routing out to an acceptable solution.

A short while after the Washington conference, Mr. Tabor, General Operating Manager, made a personal visit to Sikeston and Blytheville. While here, he visited with Mayor Sikes and Robert S. Matthews, thoroughly investigating the city from a population, industrial, economic and airport facility standpoint. Mr. Tabor then recommended to Ozark that both Sikeston and Blytheville become part of their system.

On the initial examiners hearing of the Route 81 Investigation on January 25, 1966, which included Ozark's Sikeston application, the examiner, Harold R. Sanderson, ruled as follows: "Consequently, we have decided to consolidate all of the applications which Eastern, Ozark, Trans-Texas and Texarkana moved for a consolidation herein, except Ozark's application, docket 16417, which requests a St. Louis - Memphis route via Cape Girardeau, Mo., Sikeston, Mo., and Blytheville, Ark., or in the alternative nonstop. Inasmuch as Sikeston and Blytheville, Ark., do not receive air service, there are no proposals in this proceeding for service to additional local points, and this proceeding is designated primarily to investigate the needs for realigning the existing route structure in the Central area, we do not consider it desirable to expand this proceeding to include proposals for service to communities to which service has not been previously authorized. Therefore, we will sever that part of Ozark's application which proposes service to Sikeston and Blytheville and dismiss it and consolidate the remaining portion into this proceeding." This ruling in effect completely omitted both Sikeston and Blytheville from further consideration and forced Sikeston officials to take a direct routing with the CAB in order to get their own application on file.

After the Central filing succeeded in opening Pandora's treasure, the following airlines made these requests. Central filed for a routing between Little Rock, Memphis and St. Louis. Trans-Texas filed for a routing between Memphis and St. Louis as well as a Little Rock, Jonesboro, St. Louis segment. Ozark then made its filing for the afore-mentioned St. Louis-Memphis run as well as a St. Louis, Cape Girardeau, Little Rock segment. Eastern entered the act with a filing for a New Orleans, Memphis, St. Louis, Chicago segment. Southern then filed to intervene for its own protection and then subsequently filed for a Memphis-St. Louis route as well as a Memphis, Jackson, Tenn., St. Louis route. Many other route requests were filed in this case but none of the others directly affected the Sikeston area.

As a result of the initial Examiners filing and upon reading of the other airline filings and after many visits in person and by telephone with Ozark officials, the Sikeston group decided to seek help from another qualified source to procure aid in preparing suitable documents and for making their own proper presentation. This work was done in January and February of 1966 and now Sikeston has on file, before the CAB, the proper legal data to insure its case will be reviewed by the CAB. Should the CAB decide to certificate Sikeston as a regular airline stop, the city then could be served by any one of the carriers being considered. If the proper certificate would be granted, Sikeston could possibly obtain service from Central, Trans-Texas, Southern or Ozark.

To date, documents filed by the City of Sikeston consist of the following:

1. Application of the City of Sikeston, Missouri and the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce for Scheduled Air Service between Sikeston, Missouri and St. Louis, Missouri, and Memphis, Tennessee.

2. Petition of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, and the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce for Leave to Intervene; which is a document to insure that Sikeston's case will be heard in the Central 81 Investigation.

3. Motion of City of Sikeston to Consolidate; which document requests that the CAB consolidate Sikeston's application into the Central Airlines Route 81 Investigation. The city also prevails upon the CAB to follow a ruling known as the "Ashbacker" Doctrine which in effect states that if two parties have applications for the same objective and the grant of one of the applications would economically preclude grant of the second application, then both applications must be heard simultaneously. Inasmuch as Ozark's application in docket 16447 proposing St. Louis - Cape Girardeau - Memphis authority was consolidated, and since Cape Girardeau is only 30 miles from Sikeston, the award of Cape Girardeau - Memphis authority would effectively preclude later grant of Sikeston-Memphis authority.

A second preliminary hearing was scheduled by the Civil Aeronautics Board of Examiners, in Washington for April, 1966. After notification of this hearing date, a working committee composed of Mayor Kendall Sikes, City Manager Raymert Miller, Chamber of Commerce Manager Jim Musick, City Attorney Manuel Drumm, and Robert Matthews, met to determine exactly what steps Sikeston should take to assure that its most recent filings would be acted upon.

The present committee, realizing the importance of proper representation in Washington, decided to send as their representatives, Paul Fisher to represent the aviation group, and Manuel Drumm, the City Attorney, to represent the City. Both of these men were present in Washington when the April hearing convened. The very fact that they were present, caused the CAB Examiner to take special note that Sikeston did indeed, have applications before their board and was entitled to a full hearing. After Mr. Fisher and Mr. Drumm returned from Washington, this same committee met again with instructions to Chamber of Commerce Manager, Jim Musick, to prepare a preliminary economic data survey to be presented in Sikeston's behalf. Mr. Musick made an excellent presentation of this beginning economic survey and because of its presentation, as well as the personal visit of Mr. Fisher and Mr. Drumm, the Civil Aeronautics Board issued the following order:

"In our order of January 25, 1966, we excluded Ozark's proposal for service to Sikeston and Blytheville on its proposed St. Louis - Memphis route on the grounds that local service to new points was beyond the issues. We have decided, on our own motion, to RECONSIDER that decision. Sikeston and Blytheville as well as Jackson, Tenn., and Cape Girardeau are located in the area between Memphis and St. Louis. Inasmuch as we are trying a case involving local service as well as direct service between Memphis and St. Louis, it will impose no substantial additional burden upon the parties, the Board's staff, or the Examiner to hear the Sikeston-Blytheville proposals. Accordingly, we will reinstate Sikeston and Blytheville into Ozark's application, docket 16447, and consolidate that proposal. In conformance with that decision, we will grant Sikeston's motion to consolidate its application, docket 16999, for service to St. Louis and Memphis." This order completely opens the door for Sikeston's case to ultimately be heard.

At this date, several additional steps are necessary. First among these are, a complete economic data survey of Sikeston and its surrounding trade areas, to be accurately prepared and submitted to the Examiner by July 11, 1966. This document will be studied prior to Sikeston's formal hearing, which will be held in either Little Rock or Oklahoma City, during the month of November, 1966.

At this time, the Chamber of Commerce is currently calling upon every industry, every businessman, and a good many of our citizens to help provide data for this economic survey. It behooves every citizen in this community to strongly support the city administration, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Sikeston Industrial Development Corporation, along with their aviation committees in obtaining airline certification for Sikeston.

FLAG DAY -- TODAY

The United States flag is a symbol. It is emblematic of what the vast majority of us, who live under it, treasure -- of what we know as the American way of life with its freedoms, its responsibilities, its achievements and its patriotism.

This is true every day of every year. But as a means of periodically expressing our knowledge of that truth, one day -- the fourteenth day of each June, today -- is designated annually as Flag Day.

On Flag Day we pay particular honor to the Stars and Stripes. Each family, business or office which owns an American flag displays it, and indulges in a little more than the usual thoughtfulness in unfurling it.

With our country involved in so many fields where the standing of America is at stake -- Vietnam, the Dominican Republic, the whole world, almost, including some of our own college campuses and cities, it's a good thing for each American to be able to indicate which side he is on. Displaying the flag, if it is done with sincerity, is a quiet way of standing up to be counted in that respect. But it is effective.

We are aware that not everyone who lives in America feels as we do about Old Glory. To some, a person who raises the flag, or reveres it, is a "square." The size of this group of half-baked scoffers is, we have reason to believe, on the wane.

This newspaper's flags will be flying proudly today. If that earns for us a "square" label, we are happy to join the company of men like George Washington, Nathan Hale, Andrew Jackson, John Glenn and his fellow astronauts, and thousands of others who showed their flag with pride and loved it.

We urge all Sikeston to join in displaying and paying tribute to the American flag today.

A SOCIALIST OBSESSION

Having won the parliamentary election and started the renationalization of the country's steel industry, Britain's socialists have embarked on an international venture that could result in another war in which the United States would be involved.

Though Britain is living far beyond her means, and though productivity is lagging way behind other Western nations, the Wilson government in Great Britain has not set for itself the task of domestic reform and modernization. Instead, Prime Minister Wilson has determined to crush independent Rhodesia as the first item of business. To this end, he has gone beyond economic warfare and is now stopping on the high seas the ships of peaceful trading nations that are carrying oil to Rhodesia through Portuguese ports in Africa. It was precisely this kind of arbitrary, high-handed interference with peaceful oceanic trade that got Britain into trouble with the infant American republic in 1812.

The action of our administration in voting in the Security Council of the United Nations to allow Great Britain to use force to prevent oil from being delivered to Rhodesia by sea can be characterized as nothing less than stupid.

The irony inherent in the British action is that they want to cut off seaborne trade with Rhodesia while they insist on trading as usual with Communist North Viet Nam, a nation that endangers the peace of the world. Rhodesia doesn't threaten the peace of anyone. It simply wants to be left alone, though Prime Minister Smith of Rhodesia has offered to send soldiers to fight communism in Viet Nam -- an offer that Mr. Wilson has NOT made.

U. S. Rep. Richard H. Poff (R-Va) recently cited the absurdity of the British arguments: "Britain," he said, "responsible for the bulk of the trade with North Viet Nam, argues that it is powerless to interfere with the business of private vessels in the absence of a formal declaration of war. This is sheer sophistry; Britain saw no such obstacle when she shut off trade with Rhodesia."

Americans, mindful of their own country's struggle to win independence, can look at Mr. Wilson's pressure campaign against Rhodesia with their own history in mind. The Wilson government, like the government of Lord North in the 1770's, was determined to beat down Englishmen who wanted the traditional rights of Englishmen. This is fundamentally what the Rhodesians desire. Rhodesia has not been a colony of Great Britain, but a self-governing territory for more than 40 years. Now the socialists in London, in a desire to appease African dictators, want to turn Rhodesia into a direct-rule colony prior to subjecting it to the type of one-party dictatorial regime that masquerades as democracy in Africa. Understandably, the Rhodesians are determined to fight to prevent their country -- one of the few civilized lands on the African continent -- from becoming another nation of disorder and violence in the manner of Ghana and other African states.

It would be an outrage, a disgrace and a betrayal of the real interests of the American people if Mr. Johnson allowed the British socialist to drag the U. S. into support of any U. N. military adventure in Africa, as they very well might. Not a dollar should be spent for crippling an anti-communist, civilized community in Africa. The United States has plenty of real trouble to contend with in Asia, plenty of real communist enemies to fight. Our national resources will be needed for a hard struggle against communism in Asia, and nothing should be done to aid the communists in their plan to create a diversion in Southern and Central Africa. The British socialists are giving the Reds an assist by stirring up trouble with Rhodesia. The U. S. should refuse to be played for a sucker.

A LESSON FOR US

For some time, stories have been coming out of Russia telling of drastic, if severely limited, changes in economic policy. The gist of them is that the Soviets have been testing such once-despised capitalist principles as the profit motive in order to stimulate production and indifferent administrators.

Now, it seems, another lengthy step is being taken. It has been announced that by the end of 1965 a third of Russia's consumer - goods factories were operating on a capitalist principle. They will produce only what retailers can sell.

This certainly won't strike Americans as remarkable. That's exactly the way things are done in this country under our system of free, competitive mass production and distribution. But in Russia, just the opposite policy has been followed. Factories have been told by the planners what to make and in what quantity. As a result, stores are stocked with inferior, over-priced, unwanted goods. And consumers have been vigorously complaining.

So Russia, even if slowly, is moving toward a supply-demand consumer economy, complete with a certain amount of profit motive. One may be sure that this is being done out of reluctant necessity -- it must be something of a humiliation to the Soviet hierarchy to imitate capitalism to any degree, and Karl Marx, very likely, is revolving in his grave. At any rate, there is a lesson for us. Our production-distribution system, working all the way from the sources of raw materials to our splendid retail stores, does more good for more people than any other system man has been able to think up.

THE OTHER COST

It has been said that federal grant-in-aid programs have grown to the point where they are unmanageable. Whether or not this extremity has been reached, they are ascending to stupefying dimensions.

In 1966, the proposed budget indicates, they will reach the record figure of $13.6 billion-$2.2 billion more than for 1965 and $3.3 billion above the 1964 appropriations. Practically all of the increase is in the areas of welfare and education, including such programs as economic opportunity; educational assistance; manpower development and training; health and research; and housing and community development.

The question here is not whether any or all of such programs are good or bad, necessary or unnecessary. It is whether they are a proper function of the central government. And further, it is a question of whether the rights, obligations and responsibilities of state and local government -- to say nothing of those of individual citizens and families -- are to be totally submerged by federal bureaucracies which control the purse strings and lay down the rules.

The cost of grants-in-aid, in terms of dollars, is enormous. The other cost, which must be measured in the subjugation of local government which is far more responsible to the needs, wants and problems of its regions, is greater still.

FOR THE SAKE OF THE NATION

There are broad differences of opinion over many of the programs and policies laid down in the President's State of the Union message. But there was at least one point that should be given virtually unanimous approval. He urged "heavier reliance on competition in transportation" as a necessary step for Congress in meeting one of its basic tasks to keep the economy growing. He added, "In a country that spans a continent, modern transportation is vital to continued growth."

In saying this, Mr. Johnson followed a policy laid down by his immediate predecessors and by a long list of top-level bodies which have thoroughly studied the transportation problem in all its aspects. Without exception, they have found that regulatory policy is largely obsolete. Basically, it goes back to an era that is forever past when the railroads had what amounted to a monopoly of commercial transportation. Now the change has been absolute. Transportation is one of the most competitive of industries, with carriers by rail, road, air and water all vigorously seeking traffic. But many of the old rules remain, and the result is that the public is denied the tremendous benefits that would follow if every carrier was permitted to freely and fairly make the most of its own inherent advantages in competing for business.

For the sake of the nation and the material welfare of everyone in it, one hopes that Mr. Johnson's recommendation will be given the congressional welcome it eminently deserves.

MOVING IN --- NOT OUT

It used to be, in a less sophisticated age, that once the Marines had landed, we would not have long to wait for that soul-satisfying finale of the Stars and Stripes waving protectively over a strife-torn land restored to peace and freedom and fraternity!

So may it be in South Vietnam!

But the vacillating, off-again, on-again character of the landing -- expected by newsmen on the 5th, reported called off on the sixth and effectuated on the eighth -- makes one wonder what the script-writers have in mind.

More on the reassuring side, but still puzzling, is the fact that when one battalion of 1,400 Marines -- the force expected-had come ashore from the Seventh Fleet transports standing off the seaport of Da-Nang, C130 air transports from Okinawa began sitting down on the DaNang airbase with another battalion. These, together with a helicopter squadron, were expected to bring the number of new arrivals to 3,500. The Hawk antiaircraft missile batteries, brought in after the surprise Vietcong raid on our air base at Pleiku, were already being manned by a Marine detachment of 1,200.

According to Brig. Gen. Frederick J. Karch, commanding this Ninth Marine Expeditionary Force, his men will replace the two South Vietnamese battalions that have been guarding the DaNang base and will now return to the field. The Marines will do some patrolling, he expects, but emphasized that their operations would be "strictly defensive." Their equipment includes tanks, anti-tank vehicles, artillery and a radar computer system to track mortar fire and direct returnfire, giving point to the General's remark that if his men were fired upon, they would be shooting back.

This handful of Marines, sniffed Red China's official news agency, "can in no way retrieve the US from its desperate predicament on the South Vietnam battlefield."

But it seems like a move in the right direction.

WHIPPING BOY

Some people propose that the federal gasoline tax be boosted again. Similar proposals may be expected in a number of the states.

In the light of that, a little review of this tax's history is very much in order. It had its beginnings in Oregon in 1919 and was then one cent a gallon. Other states swiftly followed suit and, over the years, the rates steadily climbed. The federal government got into the act. Now gas taxes, federal and state together, average more than 10 cents a gallon and bring in well over $18 million a day.

At the end of last year, the total thus taken from motorists since Oregon started the ball rolling was a staggering $89.5 billion and the $90 billion mark has undoubtedly been passed by now. In the next 14 years, even at present rates, another $90 billion will be collected.

It certainly would appear that the motorist has been a whipping boy for the tax collector. No other necessity has carried anywhere near so heavy a burden of taxation as gas. And the argument that this is necessary -- and that still higher rates are necessary too -- in order to provide the roads we need calls for some second thoughts. Good roads benefit everyone everywhere -- not just the motorist. And in many cases, gasoline tax revenues are diverted to purposes other than road building and maintenance.

The collective voice of all our millions of motorists should pronounce a resounding "No!" to any and all proposals for further gas tax boosts.

NEW YORK (AP) —Remarks that a newspaper columnist gets tired of hearing - or overhearing:

"You kind of remind me of Will Rogers, except he was funny all the time."

"I guess I'd better be careful what I say to you, or I'll wind up in a column."

"You guys must know a lot more than you actually put in the paper. Tell me, off the record, what's really going on over there in Viet Nam."

"Where do you get all your ideas? Do you copy from someone else, or just make them up out of thin air?"

"I know you write five pieces a week, but what in the world do you do with all your spare time?"

"I wonder if you'd mind giving my son some advice on how to get started in your field. He dropped out of trade school after flunking his course in plumbing, and now he's decided he wants to become a columnist."

"One of the columns you wrote last week sure hit the nail on the head—but darned if I can remember right now what it was all about."

"Wake up, Hank. It's your boss on the phone. He needs a substitute column quick. He said he had to kill the one in which you attacked poison snakes. It's too controversial."

"You mean that's Hank Baneface, the columnist—that fat fellow with the hangdog look. Good grief! I don't know what I expected him to look like, but certainly not like that."

"Wake up, Hank. It's your boss on the phone. He needs another substitute column quick. He says no one at the office can understand the one you wrote for today—not even the new copy boy, the one with a M.A. in sociology from Harvard."

"Could you turn us out a piece for the anniversary edition of our high school paper, Mr. Baneface? We only want about 2,000 to 3,000 words, and you can probably knock it out in 20 minutes. It doesn't have to be real deep—just real funny."

"Wake up, Hank, It's your boss on the phone. No, he didn't have any trouble understanding your column for today. He says he just doesn't understand why you thought you could get by with it, and he needs a substitute—quick!"

WORLD MEAT POOL

According to a spokesman for the American Meat Institute, opportunities are excellent for expanding exports of American lifestock and meat products to Europe. Shortages there, coupled with increasing consumer demand, are weakening the age-old barriers to international meat trade by Western European nations.

To promote the trade, the Institute and the Department of Agriculture formed a Cooperative Market Development Program. And the Institute spokesman tells of a concept that seems to have dramatic possibilities. According to it, total meat production the world over would be considered the world meat pool. The country in which meat is produced has first call upon the supply. The balance, if any, is available to other nations.

The quantity of meat any country can obtain from the pool is dependent upon various factors -- relative cost, transportation, trade barriers and so on. At present, these factors -- when considered in relation to the abundant supply of meat in this country -- favor increasing trade between us and Europe.

In his words, "This is no bonanza, but activities of the industry and government have already stimulated some trade and will continue to stimulate more. The net result of this program, while not spectacular, is extremely encouraging." Europeans want our meat -- we want their markets. It's a situation where all benefit.

NAN ENDORSES SUMMER JOB CAMPAIGN FOR YOUTH

The National Association of Manufacturers again urges its members to provide summer jobs for young people of high school age, in response to the Administration's campaign announced by Vice President Hubert Humphrey and Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor.

"American industry's response a year ago to a similar appeal by President Johnson was wholehearted, and the campaign was deemed highly successful," W. P. Gullander, NAM president stated.

"We believe that the door-opening policy for young people will be carried out with increasing energy this year," he added, "particularly in view of the tightness of the labor market generally and the desire of manufacturers to sustain a high level of production. Nevertheless, we urge all manufacturers to make special efforts to help put the young people in jobs where they can learn as well as earn."

H. L. Hunt Says

"BUDDHIST LEADERS" IN VIETNAM

One of the primary causes of our military involvement in Vietnam today was the communist linked revolutionary uprising three years ago which overthrew the late President Diem of Vietnam. Assuming the guise of "Buddhists," these revolutionaries bamboozled many Western observers who should have known better, so that we stood idly by while our good friend Diem was deposed and atrociously murdered, and even helped protect some of the rebels from just punishment.

The drastic weakening of the South Vietnamese government and army which resulted from Diem's overthrow in 1963 brought the communist Viet Cong to the threshold of victory. Only our massive troop intervention has so far prevented that victory.

Now the communists and their allies, again assuming the "Buddhist" disguise, have tried the same trick again, hoping to complete the destruction of South Vietnam from within.

True Buddhism is a religion of peace and contemplation. It has nothing whatever to do with leading street mobs and turning pagodas into fortresses, or the sick self destruction of fanatical dupes. The majority of the people of South Vietnam are Buddhists, but they have shown little enthusiasm for this latest civil strife.

Using a big lie technique similar in principle to that used by Hitler to seize control of Germany, the so-called "Buddhist leaders" are seeking naked power under cover of fraudulent spiritual motives. Hitler exploited the fear and loathing of decent Germans for terror tactics to install a terror of his own, the scars of which the German people will bear for centuries. Whether or not this technique will work in South Vietnam remains a question. There are encouraging signs that it won't if our winless diplomats and duped pundits are withdrawn.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Five successive times the House Armed Services Committee was called to meet during the past weeks to ok a massive new military construction bill. But each time the committee meeting was called off. Simultaneously house floor debate on an $18 billion procurement bill for military weapons was also postponed.

The official reason was the absence of the committee's silvermaned chairman, Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S. C., reportedly hospitalized by bursitis.

Real truth, however, is that Rivers has been drying out from a drunk. It was so serious that the chairman of the armed services committee had to be taken to the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

This is not the first time he has been there. The navy has been good enough, on various previous occasions, to pick up the gentleman from South Carolina in an ambulance and dry him out. Sometimes he has been found in his office on Monday mornings surrounded by empty bottles, after a drinking weekend.

Sometimes he has been in such a stupor that essential parts of his clothing were missing and he did not appear to know it.

Members of his staff, at times, have been detailed to watch him and try to sober him up. It has been an almost impossible job. He has eaten oranges like an animals, peel and all, then spewed them all out all over his face. One member of his staff did her best for a day and a half, then gave up. She called the naval ambulance.

MENDEL'S BROKEN PLEDGE

Rivers comes from Charleston, S. C., where the Civil War started, an area proud of its history. And when he assumed the chairmanship of the House Armed Services Committee, other Democrats on that committee did their best to induce him to go on the wagon. Rep. Edward Herbert of New Orleans -- No. 3 man on the armed services committee -- announced to friends that Mendel's drinking days were over.

Most of the time, Mendel carried out his pledge. He has worked hard and with especial enthusiasm when it came to opposing and belaboring the secretary of defense. But approximately two weeks ago, just at the most crucial moment when the $17.8 billion military authorization bill was ready for floor debate, the chairman disappeared.

Other committee members have been very secretive. It isn't pleasant for them to talk about their chairman's personal problems, nor for this column to write about them. However, when nearly $18 billion are involved, together with the defense of the nation, it's important to examine the mental or physical instability of the man who masterminds military law, especially because Rivers has appended a 106-page report to the defense procurement bill, which verbally spews -- not orange peel - venom, in the face of Secretary McNamara.

The report refers to the secretary of defense as "incapable of self - examination" and declares: "If congress is the one to take the helm in this case, then we'll do it. We will continue to . . . exercise surveillance over the Pentagon. . Congress must call the shots... We intend to return to Congress its rightful place in the over - all decision - making process in military matters.

"The Pentagon is absolutely dominated by a Caesar," spewed the congressman who at the time the report was published was so dead drunk he had to be taken to a hospital under the supervision of that Caesar.

ABSENT LEADER OF MARCH

The above diatribe against the secretary of defense was in connection with McNamara's decision to phase out the B-58, the supersonic bomber, on the ground that it is now replaced by missiles.

And putting River's judgment in direct opposition to that of the secretary of defense, Rivers added almost a billion dollars-- $931 million -- to the defense department's bill to pay for three programs which McNamara doesn't want. They are:

1. Continuation of the B-58; 2, Development of an anti-missile missile system; and 3, Nuclear-powered surface vessels for the navy.

"Again this year," Chairman Rivers spewed at McNamara his 106-page report, "the committee must attempt to alert the house to the fact that power in the past has moved - on tiptoes - from Capitol Hill to the Pentagon and, once there, has reached back a friendly hand and issued a smiling invitation to come on over and watch the computers work.

"The committee intends to play the tune to which the legitimate power of congress will march back up Capitol Hill."

But the congressman supposed to lead this march just wasn't around to lead it. During two weeks, his committee clerk called meeting after meeting with full expectation that the leader would be back, and lead the debate on the house floor. After all, June 30, the end of the fiscal year, is approaching. Only two weeks remain to pass the bill, otherwise, all pay to the far-flung fighting officers and men of the United States, including the $1 billion pay raise which Rivers had voted over McNamara's and LBJ's heads, could be in jeopardy.

But the chairman, so virile on the written page, wasn't around to lead the march. He was in the Bethesda Naval Hospital sobering up from a drunk which according to all medical experts must inevitably affect the patient's judgment.

Note: The Armed Services Committee will meet again today (June 14) in the hope that its leader is back and prepared to lead the march back to Capitol Hill.

Karen Dunn Pledges Vows With Joseph C. Jenkinins

BELL CITY -- Three candelabra, each holding seven to 14 lighted candles, rose above tall baskets holding arrangements of white gladioli and illuminated the setting at Bell City Methodist church for the wedding of Miss Karen Kay Dunn and Joseph Clyde Jenkins, Jr. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan H. Dunn, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Jenkins, Painton.

Mrs. Stanley Odom was organist, accompanying her son, Jim Stan Odom of Cahokia, Ill., who sang. The Rev. Frank Black officiated at the event of June 5.

Escorted to the altar by her father who gave her in marriage, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta with diminutive covered buttons closing the tightly-fitted bodice and long-tapered sleeves. Lace medallions traced by seed pearls appeared at the scooped neckline and over the bodice, and the chiffon over taffeta skirt was also scattered with the medallions. Her full-length train was bordered by the lace. A chiffon rolled rose caught her veil of illusion and held it to her hair.

She was attended by Miss Judy Hinkle, St. Louis, as maid of honor, and by the bridesmaids, Miss Alma Lou Gilles, Miss Dianne DeLay, Mrs. Jere Hargrove and Miss Louann Jenkins, sister of the bridegroom. Barbara Ruth Rendleman, a cousin of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Candlelighters were Miss Beverly Bollinger and Miss Mary Rendleman, a cousin of both the bride and the bridegroom. All wore formal gowns of chiffon over taffeta in contrasting colors accented by white lace at the bodices.

Richard Buck of Oregon, Mo., was best man. The bridegroom's other attendants were John Foster, Columbia; Jim Tilley, Advance, and Ivan M. Dunn, brother of the bride.

Wedding guests were received at a garden party honoring the couple held on the lawn of the bride's parents' home. A five tiered wedding cake, flanked by crystal and silver services, was served from the lace-covered bride's table by Miss Katie Foster and Miss Sally Spickelmier, both cousins of the bride from Cape Girardeau. Teresa Warren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Warren, offered guests small bags of rice.

Following their wedding trip to the Lake of the Ozarks, the newly wed couple will live in Cape Girardeau, where she is a junior at Southeast Missouri State College and will continue her studies. The groom will teach at Tamms, Ill. He is a graduate of Central Methodist College at Fayette.

A hymn, "The Church is One Foundation," by the congregation was followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Scriptures, Matthew 16 and 18 were read by Holly Hendon.

A responsive reading was led by Mary Beth Haley. Pledges to the American Flag by Debbie Towe, Christian flag by David Rowell and Holy Bible by Brenda Estep were said.

A piano solo, "The Angelus Bells," was played by Brenda Estep.

Kindergarten was directed by Miss Mary Ann Gruen, and Mrs. Bill Deane III. The groups sang "Jesus Loves Me", Jesus Loves the Little Children", "People of God" and "Sunbeans."

The Primary department was under the direction of Mrs. Fred McWilliams and Mrs. James Estep.

The Bible verse was John 3:16, and songs were "Friends", The Church is Wherever Gods People are Praising."

The Senior High Class under the direction of Mrs. Wendell Fox and Mrs. William Dillon presented a Reading, "Even Tide," by Jayne Shoptaw, accompanied by Brenda Estep.

There were 60 pupils registered and the daily average was 50. At the conclusion of each department they were presented attendancd certificates from their teachers. The benediction song was "Bless Be The Tie That Binds." The Rev. Mr. Estep gave the benediction.

Mrs. Almanda Myers

Mrs. Myers Graduates With Honors

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- The former Miss Almanda Goetz, daughter of the late Fremont Goetz of Sikeston, and Mrs. B. C. Goodpasture of Nashville, with her husband, Roger Myers, graduated with honor at David Lipscomb College June 4.

They were among 220 graduates on whom President Athens Clay Pullias conferred degrees, and were honored at a reception given by President and Mrs. Pullias for members of the class and their families.

Mrs. Myers received the B.A. cum laude as an English major, and Myers received the B.S. degree cum laude in physical education. Their averages were almost indentical.

On their marriage in 1962, Myers was assigned duty in the U.S. Army in Manheim, Germany, and their education at Lipscomb, where both had been students, was thus interrupted.

After their return to the States in 1964, both re-entered Lipscomb, and while sharing the care of their infant son, Monty, have been able to complete their studies.

Goetz died in 1961, and Mrs. Goetz moved to Nashville the following year and entered her daughter, Markey, in Lipscomb junior high school.

Late in 1965, Mrs. Goetz was married to B. C. Goodpasture, editor of the Gospel Advocate, published in Nashville, and a widely known minister.

Mrs. Myers is a graduate of Sikeston high school, where she was valedictorian, editor of the newspaper, a member of the band for four years, "Senior of the Year," and recipient of the American Legion Citizenship award.

At Lipscomb she served as treasurer of the sophomore class, was voted Most Promising Sophomore, served as associate editor of the newspaper, was vice-president of the Press Club, a member of the band, and member of Sigma Tau Delta honorary English society.

House Tumbles Into Hole in Quarry

KANSAS CITY, Kan. AP -- A house plunged into a widening hole above an abandoned underground quarry Monday night in the Argentine district.

The attached garage had toppled into the hole earlier, falling about 90 feet to the floor of the old limestone mine. The house stopped about 50 feet down.

Four other houses are threatened by crevices and sink holes. All the residents have moved out. Additional families are planning to move since Monday night's incident.

Mr. and Mrs. Monty Flack, owners of the house in the hole, had removed only the items they could carry easily and by Monday they didn't dare enter the house.

They lost an elaborate electric train layout, a toy box, curtains, appliances and some furniture.

The ceiling of the old quarry began collapsing about 18 months ago. About 50 houses are located over the quarry.

Cards-Mets Split, Boyer Homers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The host also won the first game in the Mets-Cards twin bill as New York's Bob Taylor slammed a three-run homer in the sixth to provide a 5-2 decision. The Cards took the second game 4-1 with an offense triggered by Lou Brock.

Kansas City and St. Louis split a pair of twi-night doubleheaders Monday. The A's played host to Minnesota and won the first game 5-2 behind the seven-hit pitching of Jim Hunter, but the Twins bounced back to take the second contest, 6-1, on Jim Perry's 6-hitter.

The action in Kansas City was highlighted by the announcement of a three-for-three trade by the A's with the Boston Red Sox. The A's sent pitchers Rollie Sheldon and John Wyatt and outfielder Jose Tartabull to the Red Sox in exchange for outfielder Jim Gosger and pitchers Ken Sanders and Guido Grilli. The trade was completed just 48-hours before Wednesday night's deadline.

The A's sacked the first game victory in the second inning when they got to Camilo Pascual for three hits and four runs. Ernie Fazio drove in the first run on an infield hit and Hunter hit a bases - loaded double.

Kansas City scored its last run in the sixth on singles by Phil Roof, Hunter and Campy Campaneris.

Don Mincher's pop-fly single drove in the Twins first run in the sixth and singled again in the eighth to score Ceser Tovar who had doubled to open the inning.

Minnesota scored single runs in the first, third and seventh, and tallied three times in the fifth, collecting a total of 13-hits off loser Paul Lindblad and reliever Jim Dickson. The A's only score came in the first when Campaneris singled and advanced on a wild pitch, an infield out and scored on another infield out.

St. Louis did all of its scoring against winning pitcher Bob Shaw in the first inning on Phil Gagliano's triple, singles by Curt Flood and Tito Francona, and an infield out.

The Mets wrapped it up in the sixth on Taylor's three-run shot, but added single runs in the seventh and eighth innings to ice their cake.

The Cards also scored first in the second game, but were never seriously threatened as Ray Washburn, Hal Woodeschick and Art Mahaffey held the Mets to seven well scattered hits. The victory went to Washburn who pitched 6 2-3 innings before tiring.

Francono singled in the first run; Brock tripled in the third and scored in a passed ball, and singled in the eighth, stole second and scored on Gagliano's single. The Cards added another run in the ninth.

Key Boyer homered for the Mets only run in the eighth.

The Cards will send Tracy Stallard against New York's Dick Rusteck tonight and the A's will start Chuck Dobson against Dave Boswell of the Twins.

Baltimore Blanks Yankees

By DICK COUCH

Minnie Rojas' "come out and get it" pitch has American League hitters biting off more than they can chew.

The rookie California pitcher, who has been accused of showing up Stu Miller as a speed-merchant, blanked Chicago for six innings Monday night as the Angels salvaged a doubleheader split by edging the White Sox 2-1.

Rojas has started two games and won both since his call-up from the Angels' Seattle farm club last month while compiling a sharp 1.35 earned run average in seven appearance over-all. He also has alienated opposing hitters with his teasing delivery.

"He's got three pitches -- slower and 'come out and get it,' " one frustrated slugger has said of the 27-year-old right-hander, whom the Angels purchased from a Mexican League club earlier in the year for the bargain price of $2,500.

"How can he expect to pitch up here with junk like that," muttered another hitter recently after a losing battle with Rojas' change-up.

The White Sox, who had won the rain-delayed first game 5-1, reached Rojas for only four hits and no runs until the seventh inning. Then, after making J. C. Martin his sixth strikeout victim, Rojas gave up a single to Sox newcomer Jerry Adair, hit Floyd Robinson with a pitch and walked Smoky Burgiss, filling the bases.

Bob Lee then replaced Rojas and got out of the jam when left fielder Willie Smith grabbed John Romano's liner and doubled Adair at the plate with a rifle throw.

Elsewhere, Frank Robinson's three-run homer and a two-run shot by Brooks Robinson led Baltimore past New York 8-0, Detroit nipped Washington, 4-3.

Frank Malzone gave Rojas a 1-0 lead with a fifth-inning homer, then singled in the ninth and scored on Bobby Knoop's triple. That run proved to be the winner when the White Sox scored in the last of the ninth.

Jack Lamabe stopped the Angels on five hits in the first game, running his record to 4-2, while Don Buford led the Chicago attack with a run-scoring single and three-run double. The victory ended a five-game losing string for the White Sox.

Buford collected five hits in the doubleheader and Adair, traded to the Sox from Baltimore Sunday for reliever Eddie Fisher, had four.

Baltimore's rampaging Robinsons powered the Orioles to their 13th victory in the 1st 16 games while Jim Palmer and reliever Eddie Watt shackled the Yankees on three hits. Frank Robinson smashed his 16th homer in the third inning off loser Al Downing and Brooks Robinson hit No. 10 in the seventh off Pedro Ramos.

Leads Pirates

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that National League pitchers have turned Donn Clendenon's power off, they've turned Roberto Clemente;s on. And it's proved a shocking experience for them.

Billy McCool was the latest victim of the Clemente explosion as the Pittsburgh star lashed a three-run homer that gave the Pirates a 5-4 victory over Cincinnati Monday night.

The homer was the ninth for the flashy right fielder this season, just one short of his total last year, and the runs batted in gave him 36 for the season, fifth best in the league and more than half as many as the 65 he had in 1965.

Why the sudden power surge for Clemente who has built three batting championships on hits that stay inside the park?

"Clendenon isn't like he was last year," the 31-year-old Puerto Rican explained after helping the Reds to their 14th loss in 18 games. "If he comes back again, I'll start punching the ball again. But I've been taking a good cut and swinging hard."

Clendenon was the Pirates' second leading slugger last year has has gotten off to a slow start with only four homers and 22 runs driven in.

Clemente, meanwhile, is headed for his best slugging year. In 11 major league seasons he's averaged 11 homers and 66 RBI while batting .389.

This season is just slightly more than one-third gone, and he's rapidly approaching those figures as well as hitting. 339, the second best average in the league.

His latest effort was a dramatic performance. McCool had just relieved starter Joey Jay in the eighth inning, coming on with two men aboard and the Reds leading 4-2.

McCool worked the count to 1-2 before Clemente, a right-handed batter, drove the ball into the upper right field stands.

Elsewhere in the NL, San Francisco crushed Chicago 8-0, Houston trimmed Los Angeles 9-6 in 11 innings, Philadelphia swept Atlanta 6-2 and 6-4.

Before Clemente's homer, the Reds had built their 4-2 lead on Vada Pinson's three-run homer in the fourth inning and his run-scoring single in the fifth.

Gaylord Perry, making his first start in 17 days, allowed the Cubs only three hits in seven innings. He was supported by San Francisco's six - run third, three of the runs coming on Ollie Brown's double.

Joe Morgan tripled across two runs and scored on Sonny Jackson's single in the 11th inning for Houston's triumph over Los Angeles. The Astros had exploded for six runs in the eighth inning, three on Felix Mantilla's homer, and a 6-4 lead, but the Dodgers tied it on Tommy Davis' homer and Willie Davis' run-producing single.

Larry Jackson pitched a four-hitter in Philadelphia's opening-game victory over Atlanta. Clay Dalrymple sparked the Phillies' attack with a homer and a single, driving in three runs.

Jack Brandt triggered the Phillies in the second game, hitting a homer in the third and tripling across the first run in a five-run fifth. Rich Allen added a two - run double in the fifth.

Red-Sox In Six Player Swap

BOSTON AP -- The lowly Boston Red Sox and the Kansas City Athletics, striving to trade their way up in the American League standings, have completed a six-player swap which involved an outfielder and two pitchers from each team.

The Red Sox, seeking a starting pitcher, acquired right-hander Rollie Sheldon, relief pitcher John Wyatt and outfielder Jose Tartabull in Monday night's trade which came just 48 hours before the Wednesday midnight trading deadline.

The Athletics received outfielder Jim Gosger and a pair of relief pitchers - Ken Sanders, who was drafted from Kansas City last winter, and Guido Grilli, a left - hander who boasts a 3-0 record with Boston's Toronto farm team in the International League.

Just four days ago, the Athletics completed a multiplayer swap with the New York Yankees, picking up pitchers Bill Stafford and Gil Blanco and outfielder Roger Repoz in exchange for pitcher Fred Talbot and left - handed hitting catcher Bill Bryan.

Blanco was assigned to the A's Southern League farm club at Mobile.

The Red Sox recently traded its one-time relief ace, Dick Radatz, to the Cleveland Indians for pitchers Don McMahon and Lee Stange.

OUTDOOR TIPS

THIRTEEN POUND TROUT FROM BENNETT SPRING

LEBANON -- The biggest trout caught in Missouri so far this year was a 13-pound rainbow taken at Bennett Spring State Park by Robert R. Baum of Kansas City.

Baum's lunker was just 12 ounces short of the official Missouri record for rainbow trout. The record is a 13-pound, 12-ounce fish caught in 1960, also at Bennett Springs.

Baum caught his traut on a natural cheese bait at the confluence of the spring branch and the Niangua River. Baum, an occasional visitor to the park, was on a two-day fishing trip to Bennett Spring.

Warren Davis, concessionaire, said Baum is the 164th member of the lunker club so far this year. The lunker club at Bennett Spring is open to any angler who catches a trout weighing three pounds or more.

RABBIT, SQUIRREL ARE LEGAL GAME AGAIN

JEFFERSON CITY -- Missouri's two favorite hunting seasons have opened.

Although something is in season all year round in Missouri, it isn't until May 30 and the opening of squirrel and rabbit hunting for the year that hunters start buying ammunition.

Other seasons attract more attention. Deer season in Missouri is cause for much publicity, story-telling and target practice. Waterfowl seasons draw hunters out in all weather and take them great distances across the state. Hunters practice for weeks on turkey calls and scout likely patches of forest with great devotion to the task.

But more hunters go out more for rabbits and have more success on rabbits than on any other game Missouri has. Squirrels are close behind rabbits in popularity.

And the rabbit and squirrel seasons are long. Rabbits are legal game from May 30 until the following March 1 with a daily and possession limit of 10. The squirrel season is open from May 30 through Dec. 31 and limits are six a day and 12 in possession.

Late spring and summer hunting is better than most hunters would believe. For one thing, the young animals are tender and go well in a frying pan. For another, the weather is warm and shirtsleeves are the order of the season. Another reason, if one is needed, is that it has been three months since rabbits could be hunted and rim-fire enthusiasts get tired of punching holes in paper.

Still another reason is that rabbits and squirrels are Missouri's favorite game animals and the time of year isn't all that critical anyway.

CONSERVATION DEPT. GETS NATIONAL AWARD

JEFFERSON CITY -- The Missouri Conservationist is the nation's best state conservation department magazine and has been for at least two years.

That is the opinion of impartial judges in an international competition sponsored by the American Association for Conservation Information (AACI).

The Conservationist was one of three Missouri Conservation Department informational projects to be awarded first place in competition. Awards were announced at Hot Springs, Ark., June 7. The Conservationist also won first place in last year's competition.

The Missouri Conservation Department also won first place in categories for miscellaneous publications, with its 1965 annual report. "The Long Look," and for black and white photography. Last year, two Missouri publications tied for first place, making this year's win the third in two years in that category.

Missouri's entry in the photography category was a series of black and white prints of color photos. The series, about turkey hunting ran as a color feature in the April, 1966, issue of the Conservationist.

The Missouri department entered five of the nine categories in this year's competition.

Why is our Kentucky home a castle?

Back in 1887, Colonel Edmund H. Taylor, Jr., set out to make a Bourbon that would honor his name long after his time.

He began by seeking out a special kind of water: limestone spring water. This water has a unique flavor—a tantalizing taste that it takes on as it bubbles up through limestone groundrock.

He found his spring near Frankfort. And there he built his distillery.

Built it to last...in the form of a castle made of the very limestone that was to give his water its intriguing flavor.

If you're looking for a truly inspired Bourbon, look to the castle.

That's where the limestone water bubbles up for Old Taylor.

'Old Glory,' The Symbol Of Freedom

(Courtesy Tamm-Vogt Company)

"I swear, before the altar of God, eternal hostility to every form of tyranny over the mind of man."

These are the words of a great American patriot, Thomas Jefferson. At the time when a people who had declared their independence, struggled to found a nation, Mr. Jefferson's words summed up the feelings of Americans who were rallying to fight for their beliefs.

In the midst of this struggle, Old Glory was born. General Washington, standing at attention as the first Stars and Stripes flew at the head of the Continental Army, said, "We take the stars from Heaven, the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her, and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty."

The British ensign was flown in the colonies before the revolution. This flag was later modified . . . the red cross of Saint George and the white cross of Saint Andrew were shifted to the canton, with the field consisting of seven red and six white stripes representing the colonies. This was the Grand Union Flag. The colonies resented the British ensign more and more. Soon most of them flew their own banners.

The symbols on the first colonial flags were pine trees, anchors, rattlesnakes and other insignia commemorating the day-by-day struggles against the wilderness which was at every American's doorstep. The words cut out and sewn to these banners were Hope, Liberty, Don't Tread on Me, Appeal to Heaven . . . signifying the dreams of freedom and nationhood.

The Gadsden Flag was one of the most popular colonial flags. It was emblazoned with a coiled rattlesnake on a yellow field over the words Don't Tread on Me.

Our first sea-going flag flew over the cruisers commissioned by General Washington. This flag consisted of a green pine tree standing tall and stalwart on a white field with the legend An Appeal to Heaven.

THE MOULTRIE FLAG

The first distinctive American flag to be displayed in the South flew over the fort on Sullivan's Island in the channel at Charleston, South Carolina, when the British fleet attacked on June 28, 1776. The fort, defended by Colonel William Moultrie and his small garrison of regulars and militiamen, withstood the attack so ably, the British were forced to withdraw. This was believed to have postponed a British invasion of the South for a long while. From the blue uniforms of the garrison and the white crescents which the men wore on their caps came the incentive for the design of the Moultrie Flag. The large blue field has a white crescent and the cutout letters "Liberty" sewn across the bottom of the field.

Rhode Island was one of the first states to create its own flag. It bears an anchor on a white field with the word Hope reversed on a blue pennant or scroll . . . and 13 white stars on a blue canton.

On June 14, 1777, Congress acted to straighten out the confusion. A colonial public relations expert and proponent of a symbol for American patriotism proposed the first Stars and Stripes . . . and Congress passed the flag resolution. It declared: "The flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, and that the Union be thirteen stars, white, in a blue field." From this resolution, the flag which has become the symbol of freedom the world over, came into being. According to legend, Betsy Ross, an expert needlewoman of Philadelphia, was asked in 1776 to design a national flag suggested by General Washington. The actual facts are obscure . . . and it was one of her descendants who brought the story to light in 1870.

On August 16, 1777, the Green Mountain Boys fought under the Bennington Flag. This was believed to be the first time the Stars and Stripes was displayed. The Bennington Flag had 13 stars and 13 stripes . . . and the figure 76 in the heart of the stars honored the year of American independence.

In January, 1781, the Third Maryland Regiment fought at Cowpens, South Carolina, and was under the banner of the first Stars and Stripes which fulfilled the flag resolution of 1777. This flag had 12 white stars in an oval and one in the center of the blue field . . . and seven red and six white stripes.

There are those who have dug into the available recorded data of the period . . . and have decided, perhaps rightly, that the Betsy Ross story is a myth. This may be true . . . but many a myth has outgrown its fiction and become hallowed among the recorded "truths" of history. Many a boy and girl has grown up loving the story of Betsy Ross and General George Washington, picturing the heroic general in full dress uniform visiting the little workshop of the humble needleworker of Philadelphia. This memory should not be destroyed . . . and with 180,000,000 Americans to tell it (and the number growing every day) there's no way to stop it, even if you try!

Betsy Ross' flag . . . with its circlet of stars . . . was to be short-lived. The Flag of 1795 changed the circle of stars to two parallel rows of horizontal stars . . . 15 stars in all . . . with 15 stripes. This was the first flag to fly over the capitol in Washington, D.C., and five presidents, Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe all served under it. Five new states were admitted to the Union but no change was made in the flag. Change was inevitable, however. As the number of states in the Union grew . . . so did their jealousies. When Congress passed a measure in 1818 . . . it established the flag as we know it today . . . thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white . . . that it shall have stars of white in a field of blue . . . and that one star be added to the flag for every state admitted to the Union.

CONFEDERATE FLAG

On March 4, 1861, a great change took place. The first flag of the Confederacy was adopted . . . destined to be one of the four Confederate flags which served as banners for the South during the War Between the States. The 1861 Flag had three wide horizontal stripes . . . red on top, white in the middle, red on the bottom. In the upper left corner of the flag . . . like the blue field of the U. S. Flag . . . was a field of blue with eight stars. The Battle Flag of the Confederacy, best known of the Southern flags, was known as The Southern Cross, and is the flag most remembered and used today. Two blue stripes with 13 stars extended across this flag from corner to corner . . . upper left to lower right and lower left to upper right with four red triangles in the openings.

The Confederate Flag of 1863 picked up the Battle Flag and used it as a canton on a flag of pure white . . . but this was soon dropped because it was sometimes misinterpreted as a flag of truce and also because calm days found the flag hanging loose and lifeless on its staff, a white cloth with no color to give it character.

FLAG SHAPE CHANGED

The Confederate Flag of 1864 changed the shape of the Battle Flag canton slightly and added a wide perpendicular red stripe on the right-hand border.

At this time there were pressures brought on President Lincoln to change the U. S. Flag, with its 34 stars which continued as the standard of the Northern states . . . but the President, looking forward to the days when the North and South would inevitably live in peoce as the re-United States of America, steadfastly withstood them. Stars were never withdrawn from the flag when the Southern states withdrew from the Union.

When the war was over, new states were continually admitted . . . and by 1898 there were 45 stars in the field. Another was added for Oklahoma in 1907, Arizona and New Mexico in 1912 . . . and the 48-star flag served the nation through two world wars until Alaska became a state in 1959 and a new star was added . . . making 49. Later the same year, Hawaii came into the Union, and on July 4, 1960, the 50-star flag of today was born.

THESE FISH STICKS HAVE AN ORIENTAL FLAIR

By changing the sauce it's easy to change fish stick flavor flair. Open a can of mushroom chow mein to use as a topping over easy-to-prepare fish sticks. Accompany with Chinese noodles.

Proof of the popularity of food is the eating thereof. And Americans are certainly consuming fish sticks at a great rate. The National Fisheries Institute reports that last year alone we ate about 74,000,000 pounds of fish sticks.

These tasty, easy-to-eat pieces of boneless fish need only to be heated according to package directions and then served with any one of countless sauces, ranging from a simple tartar or creamy egg sauce to a less conventional topping such as the mushroom chow mein suggested here. With this easy-to-prepare sauce fish sticks take on an international flair and are sure to be a hit with the whole family. A Chinese menu may be completed by serving fluffy rice, pickled watermelon rind, fortune cookies and tea with Seafarer's Chow Mein.

Seafarer's Chow Mein

1 package frozen fish sticks
1 can (3 oz.) chow mein noodles
1 divider-pack (2¾ lb.) mushroom chow mein
Soy sauce
Pickled watermelon rind

Heat frozen fish sticks as directed on package, placing chow mein noodles in flat pan in oven during the last five minutes to warm. Meantime heat mushroom chow mein as directed on can. When ready to serve arrange fish sticks in center of oval platter, cover with chow mein vegetables and sauce. Border with hot noodles. Serve to four, with a first course of chilled tomato juice and an accompaniment of soy sauce and pickled watermelon rind.

What Medicare Means To You

EDITORS NOTE -- There are some 19 million elderly Americans lined up to take advantage of the provisions of medicare when it goes into effect July 1. The following first of four articles tells what this will mean to hospitals and hospital facilities throughout the country.

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Science Writer

Many of the nation's hospitals, some of them already crowded, are braced for an expected increase in elderly patients July 1 when medicare goes into effect.

In short, elderly Americans will be able to compete for hospital beds on a large scale for the first time -- and private patients may find it tougher to get into the hospitals they want in some areas.

Across the nation, an Associated Press survey shows doctors are telling hospital administrators that patients 65 and over have been saving up their ailments until the bill could be paid by medicare.

But no one agrees on how large an increase there will be -- and as yet hard evidence, such as room and bed reservations, is lacking to back up the predictions.

More than 19 million elderly Americans are ready to take advantage of medicare.

July 1 brings only the first of two medicare deadlines. On that day hospital insurance begins for all who have signed up, and optional medical insurance becomes effective for those who decided to pay the $36 a year it will cost. So far 17.2 million or 90 per cent of those eligible have signed up for the doctor-bill, medical-service insurance.

The second medicare deadline comes Jan. 1, 1967, when nursing home benefits begin.

The immediate problem is July 1. Have people saved up their ills to be treated under medicare? Will there be enough hospital beds to hold them? If there aren't who gets priority?

President Johnson received a report from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare which will operate medicare, and that report cited what will be local shortages in hospital beds and facilities.

It is not expected, the department said, that hospital loads would be increased more than some 5 per cent over the nation.

"However, there is already overcrowding of hospital facilities in some areas, and some of the best hospitals in certain parts of the country are overcrowded even though other facilities in the same area are not," the report said.

There are two essential facts behind whatever happens July 1. First, summertime is the slow period in most hospitals, with people putting off surgery when possible until after vacation periods. Second, most medical problems of the elderly require more or less immediate care. Doctors often point out that elective operations before the age of 50 or 55, become operations of necessity afterward.

Still there are some ailments that some of the elderly have lived with, which though not critical, can now be treated and paid for under medicare -- things like cataracts, varicose veins, hemorrhoids, hernias, ear trouble.

That leads some hospital administrators like Richard J. Hancock of Lawrence & Memorial Hospital, New London, Conn., to anticipate that the increased demands will be in terms of elective surgery and treatment.

Explained Dr. John H. Knowles, general director of Boston's Massachusetts General Hospital:

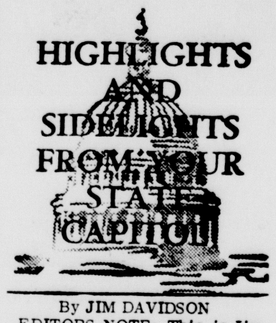
"The increase will feed on itself. As people learn more about how the program means easy access to hospitals, they will say: 'Maybe I should at least go and see whether something can be done with this sore hip that's been bothering me for years.' Old people used to be reluctant to go to a hospital because they equated it with impending death. Now they have learned more about the safety of medicine.

"Once they see they don't need to worry that they may go from the hospital to the poorhouse, more and more will come to the hospitals. There's just no way of estimating how great the increase will be."

In New England, there is almost unanimous agreement among hospitals and doctors queries that people with ailments that are not acute were saving them up for July 1.

Guesses ranged up to 20 per cent in increased case load, and administrators estimated it would take three months to a year to clear the backlog.

But most hospitals expected to be able to handle the influx of cases, and some felt that the influx in their areas would be slight.



By JIM DAVIDSON

EDITORS NOTE: This is Jim Davidson's last column until next fall. He will be working for the summer in the office of Senator Stuart Symington in Washington, D.C. Keith Meriwether of the School of Journalism will handle the duties in the meantime.

ONE-HOUSE LEGISLATURE DISCUSSED NEXT SESSION

A one-house legislature for Missouri? This plan has been proposed on several occasions and is one of the favorite topics of political scientists, but to become a reality it probably will have to be passed by the initiative of the people.

Nevertheless, a bill proposing such a reorganization will certainly be introduced in the next session of the General Assembly by Sen. A. Clifford Jones (R-Ladue) and based on past experience will probably receive wide acclaim from newspapers and some state officials.

Sen. Jones feels that a unicameral legislature could act as a "municipal government" of a state, and "like a municipal government it would have to meet problems immediately."

He berated the Governor for submitted matters to the recent special session of the Legislature which were not real emergencies and pointed out that this is one of the major faults of state government.

"The basic problem is that the present two houses only meet for six months out of every two years and solve some problems, but leave most of the problems undone."

In addition, he feels a unicameral legislature would be able to give more time to the study of legislative proposals if it were to meet the year-round and be staffed with adequate assistants to handle state problems.

"Right now, we rush bills out of committee in order to get them to the other house for consideration, and many bills are passed without being read by many members of the Legislature," he said.

He added that fewer bills probably would be passed, but that these would constitute sounder legislation than the many bills which are approved by the present two houses.

Statewide support of a unicameral legislature was shown in 1944 when voters defeated a proposed one-house system by only a few thousand votes. The election was called by an initiative petition after the Constitutional Convention rejected the proposal. Supporters of the measure had even withdrawn their backing to avoid conflict with the new Constitution and were fighting for defeat of a unicameral legislature, but about 47 per cent of the voters indicated they wanted it anyway.

Sen. Albert Spradling (D-Cape Girardeau), who opposes a unicameral legisalture, pointed out that with only one house, and all members elected for the same terms, the pressure from lobbying groups would be detrimental to forthcoming legislation and state interests.

Lobbyists perform a needed service to the Legislature, he said, but the pressure is great enough and inferred that many measure had been forced on House members, who serve for only two years, and had to be checked by the Senate, whose four-year members he feels are less susceptible to outside pressure.

Many lobbying groups seem to feel that certain legislation must be passed "right now," and this might happen with a unicameral legislature, since there would be no second body to give it consideration, Spradling said.

Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, (D-Columbia) sees advantages to both one-house and two-house systems; however, he said, two houses have enough trouble straightening out legislative problems, and that two houses probably are more effective in "straining the bugs out of legislation."

To make a unicameral system work he feels the public would have to be willing to pay legislators adequate salaries, which he said could parallel those of U. S. Congressmen ($25,000 a year), and provide full-time legislative staffs for each committee.

"Under these circumstances, a one-house system wouldn't be too bad," Vanlandingham said, but he still questioned whether the people could be properly represented with fewer members in only one house.

To Poll Opinions In SEMO Counties

Scott County residents will have a chance to express their opinions on highway beautification, automobile insurance and higher education in a survey conducted by the University of Missouri during the rest of this month and the first week of July.

Representatives of the Public Opinions Survey Unit in the Research Center of the M.U. School of Business and Public Administration are residents of 74 Missouri counties and the City of St. Louis.

The interviews, which will also be conducted in New Madrid, Pemiscot, Dunklin, and Stoddard Counties, consist of a series of questions about Missouri's political opinions and attitudes.

The survey is under the direction of Dr. David C. Leege, assistant professor of political science and faculty research assistant. A similar survey, in another area of public opinion, was held in the same counties a year ago.

Dr. Leege said the survey results are intended primarily for scholarly research and teaching purposes and the survey is directed at a representative sample of 1,200 Missouri residents throughout the state. The 110 interviewers conducting the survey will be identified by cards from the Public Opinion Survey Unit.

65+ COMPLEMENTARY PROGRAM

A special plan of medical-surgical and health benefits protection to enable people over age 65 to complement and complete the Supplementary Medical Insurance Benefits of the Federal Medicare Program Part B.

COVERAGE FOR THOSE OVER AGE 65

Blue Shield's Complementary Program is the ideal way for people over 65 who subscribe for Part B benefits under the Federal Medicare plan to complete their medical protection.

Blue Shield Complementary takes up where Medicare Part B leaves off—and it builds directly on the government Part B program benefits, so that you know where you stand in paying your doctor and other covered health service bills.

Medicare Part B requires each eligible patient to pay a $50 deductible amount out-of-pocket each year for the services included in the program. Blue Shield Complementary will pay that $50 in connection with any and all of the services covered by the Blue Shield protection you select.

Medicare pays only 80 per cent of reasonable charges for services covered under Part B provisions — requiring that the patient pay the other 20 per cent. Blue Shield Complementary will pay that 20 per cent also, for all services included in the program you choose.

In short, Blue Shield Complementary completes Medicare, and provides the ideal way for those over 65 to assure that the reasonable charges they may incur for covered services in case of illness or accident will be paid in full.

AND THEIR DEPENDENTS

Protection for the dependents of persons over age 65 is equally important. For those dependents not eligible for Medicare—a spouse under age 65, or unmarried dependent children under age 19—Blue Shield continues to make available its regular programs of medical-surgical protection. Enrollment in the Blue Shield Complementary Program is provided in individual (one-person) memberships, following the pattern of Medicare, while enrollment in regular Blue Shield plans includes the customary individual and family memberships.

The Blue Shield Complementary Program is divided into two parts— a basic plan, and an optional rider to cover additional services. The basic plan is available alone, or in combination with the rider. The rider, however, is available in combination only.

Are you the man who said, "I'd get a Plymouth Fury Silver Special, if it were white"? Or blue?

PAA

Well, now you can have our special car at a special price – a full-size Fury–in any one of 5 colors. Silver, white, or 3 shades of blue. And still get all these extras as standard equipment:

- whitewalls • deluxe upper door moldings
- special wheel covers
- blue, all-vinyl interior

What are you waiting for?

A 5-year/50,000-mile warranty* on the parts that keep you going?

You get that, too!

*Plymouth's engine and drive train warranty: Chrysler Corporation warrants the following parts of its 1966 cars for 5 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first, during which time any such parts proved defective in material or workmanship will be replaced or repaired at a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer, without charge for such parts or labor: engine block, head and internal parts, intake manifold, water pump, transmission case and internal parts (except manual clutch), torque converter, drive shaft, universal joints, rear axle and differential and rear wheel bearings. These maintenance services are required under the warranty—change engine oil every 3 months or 4,000 miles, whichever comes first; replace oil filter every second oil change; clean carburetor air filter every 6 months and replace it every 2 years; every 6 months furnish evidence of this required service to a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer and have him certify receipt of such evidence and your car's mileage.

Korean Turncoat Embarks for U.S.

HONG KONG AP -- Korean war turncoat Clarence Adams is leaving for the United States tonight aboard the liner President Cleveland, a spokesman for the American President Lines said today.

The spokesman said the 37-year-old Negro from Memphis, Tenn., would be accompanied by his wife and their two children.

Adams and his family were not available to newsmen. They had checked out of their hotel nine days ago without leaving a forwarding address.

The ex-soldier and his family arrived from Communist China May 26. His departure left in China only two of the 21 American servicemen captured during the Korean war who chose in 1953 to remain with their Communist captors.

Married Men From 50 to 70 Proposed For Priesthood

ST. LOUIS AP -- A Roman Catholic Priest suggested Monday that the church admit married men from 50 to 70 years old into the priesthood.

The Rev. Bernard Cooke, S. Jr., chairman of the theology Department at Marquette University, said the experiences from such a system might put the church "in a better position to answer the question of whether younger men should be given the choice of whether to become celibate or married priests."

He said men who had finished their careers and were financially self - sufficient might "be interested in spending 20 to 25 years as a priest" serving directly under a Bishop, although not becoming a member of an order.

4 out of 5 auto accidents happen within 25 miles of home, according to the National Safety Council. You're taking a risk, every time you drive. So always buckle your seat belt. Also, the National Safety Council says . . . if everyone had seat belts and used them, at least 5,000 lives could be saved each year and serious injuries reduced by one-third. Always buckle your seat belt. You can't trust luck . . . you can trust seat belts!

For Today From The Upper Room

"If you, then, bad as you are, know how to give your children what is good for them, how much more will your heavenly Father give good things to those who ask him!" (Matthew 7:11, NEB)

PRAYER: Dear heavenly Father, help us to remember that we are Thy children and are always under Thy care. Teach us to be thankful for the many treasures of each day and to share our blessings with others; for Jesus' sake. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: No bigotry allowed -- unless it is yours, right? Usually I don't look at your daily drivel but my eye happened to fall on your column about the Nazi flag and I found it nauseating.

I am not saying Buchenwald and Auschwitz were good, but I am sick of anti-Nazi propaganda which is cleverly kept going by international troublemakers who want to see the world in constant turmoil.

If it weren't for two or three stupid blunders, YOU would be speaking German now. Anyone who has any knowledge of history and military tactics will admit that the Allies very nearly lost World War II. There was never a more courageous, effective or beautiful military machine than the Nazi machine.

I respect the Nazi philosophy and the whole world ought to respect it, as they respect other philosophies. Your lack of objectivity is shocking, Ann Landers. You sound like a hysterical woman. Wipe the foam off your mouth and stop giving advice. -- A. H.

Dear A. H.: Your initials are almost as interesting as your letter. Was your real name Schicklgruber, too?

The Nazi philosophy you ask the world to respect is based on the theory that the Aryan is superman -- and by virture of that superiority, he has the right to rule the world and eliminate, at will, all inferior breeds of mankind.

Moreover, the Nazi philosophy which you admire so greatly, does not tolerate any religious beliefs. The state is god, and dedication to the state must be total. Consequently many Lutherans and Catholics died along with millions of Jews because they refused to forsake their religion.

Under Naziism the individual counts for nothing. It is the State Uber Alles All industrial, business and professional people -- physicians, lawyers, engineers, scientists and artists -- were under the thumb of Der Fuhrer.

If the Nazi philosophy is your idea of perfection you must find life in the United States intolerable. But cheer up, A. H., I have a heartening note for you. You are not alone in your beliefs. I was surprised (and chilled) to discover that hundreds of others in this country share your barbarous ideas. We Americans who believe in the dignity of man and a free society had best not be complacent. We could be taken by surprise.

Thank you for writing. You have given me a great deal to think about.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell us what to do about our 16-year-old daughter. She is a nervous wreck. Elsie (not her real name) has gained about 10 pounds in the last few months. She was too thin and the doctor put her on a special diet. Someone at her school started the rumor that she is pregnant. The girl doesn't want to show her face.

The big problem is that Elsie says she is not going back to her high school in the fall. She wants to go live with her aunt in Omaha and graduate from high school there.

Please give us some of your sould advice. We need it. -- M AND D

Dear M and D: Please tell Elsie that the best way to explode the lie is to stay in town and go back to her school in the fall. If you allow your daughter to run from the situation, her absence will give credulity to the gossip and she will never be comfortable with her friends and classmates again. Don't let her do it.

Confidential to First Time To Be Called Mother: Your life is certainly no paradise in dreamland, but whose is? My advice is to keep your home together and manage as best you can. Don't exchange one set of problems for another.

And now, Lady, about that niece of yours -- do you believe her? A girl who has such shoddy morals could also be a liar.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booket, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Charlie Blanton
Daily Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Mr. Blanton,

I just had to get on my "soap box" for a moment! Seems as if most of the things we hear about teenagers lately is on the discouraging side. Personally, I'd like to throw some proud praise towards most of Sikeston's teenagers and young adults.

Sikeston Little Theatre's last production of the season, "The King and I" owes a great part of its success to the hard work, talents, and cooperation of 50 teenagers, all of whom carried a load of homework and school activities on the side. They all deserve a "pat on the back," as do another outstanding bunch of Sikeston's young adults, "The Travelers." I'm sure all Sikestonians will want to let them know how proud we are of them and what a wonderful representation they have all given in behalf of their generation and our city.

Sincerely,
Hope Terrell

MU's Hi Simmons Protests Pro Baseball Draft

By JIM VALKENBURG
Associated Press ports Writer

OMAHA, Neb. AP -- College baseball coaches charged Monday that pro baseball is ruining the college game and asked the help of Congress in urging baseball to cease drafting players still in school.

The American Association of College Baseball Coaches wants pro baseball to follow the practice of pro football and basketball protecting athletes from signing until their class graduates.

"I think the time has come to take sharp action," said John Hi Simmons of Missouri, AACBC president. "Pro baseball draft 800 to 900 players, signs less than half, maybe one-third, and they don't have enough minor league teams left to play the men they are drafting. They are wrecking the college baseball program and our organization must seek relief in Congress."

Simmons and Coaches Leo Eilbracht of Illinois, Dutch Fehring, Stanford and George Wolfman of California reported athletic directors and the schools in some sections of the country are considering dropping baseball.

Before the season, Simmons lost .463 hitting Dan Rudanvoch to the pros. Southern California's Rod Dedeaux lost his ace pitcher, Tom Seaver, after the season started. The contract was voided by the Commissioner of Baseball because his team had started the schedule, but the NCAA ruled he could not return to the squad.

Wolfman's top pitcher, junior Andy Messersmith, signed with the California Angels Monday.

"The Big Ten is seriously considering dropping baseball because of pro raids," Eilbracht said. "We have been trying to get together with the pros the last 16 years. Some people in baseball want to help us, but I don't believe the owners do. We're all getting murdered by the draft."

"If there is no college ball, where will the pros get trained players," Fehring said. "They have killed off the minor leagues."

Wolfman said he was instructed by his school to lodge an official protest against the pro draft.

The AACBC passed a sharply worded resolution.

Mother Attends Midshipman Graduation Of Her Son

"Jim, Robert and I started from Sikeston Friday morning, June 3, and arrived in Washington Saturday, June 4, and did what everyone else does, got lost. After getting directions to Annapolis from four different people, we found ourselves on the road to Mount Vernon, George Washington's home. Since we were so close, and Jim had not seen it, we decided to visit it.

"We stepped into history in this beautiful home with its magnificant surroundings. There is no better place to start, than with a visit to the home of our first president.

"After touring the house and grounds, we get proper directions and arrived in Annapolis for a visit with Mike and his friends.

"Sunday morning we went to chapel, watched the Midshipmen, in their immaculate white uniforms, march into service and heard the imspiring Midshipmen Choir sing. What a beautiful way to start a Sunday morning.

"The afternoon was spent walking around the yard (Navy talk for campus). How pleasant it was with the old buildings filled with tradition, the Severn River with the sloops in full sail, the Midshipmen with their lovely drags (dates), and of course, proud parents with their Midshipmen sons.

"That evening we went to a garden party given for the parents, graduating Midshipmen and their friends by the superintendent of the Naval Academy, Admiral and Mrs. Draper L. Kauffman.

"The garden was beautiful with roses and magnolias in bloom, lighted Japanese lanterns strung throughout the grounds, and the band furnishing appropriate music. Being an old garden party lover I enjoyed it thoroughly.

"Monday evening there was a dance for the Midshipmen, their dates, and parents, held in Memorial Hall. The ballroom was lighted by soft lights from two huge crystal chandeliers.

"Tuesday morning the Color Parade was held. The colors were awarded to the company with the best overall record for the year. This was a joyous occasion for the Firsties (seniors) for it was their last parade as Midshipmen.

"In the afternoon we saw the famous Blue Angels do their breathtaking flying.

"Wednesday, June 8, was the day for which we were waiting, Mike's graduation, the purpose of our trip.

"Graduation was held outdoors in the football stadium. The graduation address was given by Admiral David L. McDonald, chief of Naval Operations. The diplomas and commissions were given, the Anchor Man (lowest in the class) collected a dollar from each of the 869 members of the class. (This is another tradition)

"When the exercises were over, the underclassmen stood and gave three cheers for the departing classmates, the graduates gave three cheers "for those we leave behind", then the Midshipmen threw their hats in the air, for they were no longer needed as the graduates were now Ensigns in the United States Navy or Marines.

"What else can a parent add, it was a sad, glorious, and proud moment.

"Thursday we toured the Smithsonian Institution, devoted to our American culture. This is an education experience everyone should have, for the institution shows the ingenuity, heroism, progress and heritage of our great nation.

"What else could be asked of a trip except more.

A Mother,
Ann Henzi"

Bell Telephone Declares War on Nuisance Calls

ST. LOUIS AP -- The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., declared "all-out war" Monday against anonymous nuisance telephone calls, saying it would use "every available, legitimate means" to combat such calls.

R. R. Shockley, Southwestern vice president and general manager, said the firm would use new techniques for line identification if it has to. He said the techniques do not require listening in on telephone conversations.

Telephone employes are being given special training in how to help customers who have received harassing calls, Shockley said.

service cannot be stressed too strongly. The future will hold a place for those cities who can provide the proper airline transportation for industrial executives, businessmen, commercial people, the traveling public, and last, but not least, air mail and freight. In time, those communities without airline service will end up as isolated as those originally left off of the railroads. Harrison, Arkansas, a city half the size of Sikeston, receives regular scheduled service from Central Airlines and has, in the past years, provided more than enough passengers to justify their service. Sikeston can easily do as well, or better, if only given the opportunity.

Business Trends

BY SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Anallyst

NEW YORK (AP) —Current perplexing business trends are at least letting you separate the pessimists from the optimists. Mostly they use the same sets of figures and come up with different interpretations or presentations.

The pessimist says the economy is slowing down. The optimist says it is still growing but at a more moderate and therefore healthier pace.

The pessimist says retail sales turned down in April and May. The optimist says consumers still are buying more than a year ago.

The worrier points to a drop in auto sales and production. The booster says sales are still higher than in most previous years — and another model year is just around the corner.

The same division in attitude determines how you view the latest unemployment estimates. You can take alarm that the jobless rate rose in May. Or you can take comfort in the still rising total of those with jobs.

The stock market's steep drop and then its uncertain backing and filling can be viewed as a barometer of stormy weather ahead for the economy. Or it can be accepted as a healthy cooling of speculative fever.

The more conservative minded will tell you that inflation is here and that the threat of still more is as strong as ever. Others will tell you that the inflation threat has been curbed by the healthier pace the economy is now setting.

High interest rates are seen as hurting borrowers, especially smaller businesses. But another view of the tightness of credit is that this curtails some dangerous risk taking and thus helps keep the economy on an even keel. And the man giving to look on the bright side of things is sure to stress that that the savers are profiting from higher interest rates—and furnishing the capital funds that will finance future economic growth.

The pessimist points to the road blocks that are beginning to trouble business expansion. He cites tightening supplies of materials, difficulties in getting deliveries, rising prices, skilled labor shortages, and competition of defense demands with civilian demands.

But the optimist views this with less alarm. He notes that business is still planning to spend more this year for plant and equipment that it did last. And he adds that any slowdown in the big expansion boom in the period just ahead will be just that more helpful in warding off federal tax increases.

Barrel 250 Feet In Air No Place To Spend Night

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) —Trapped five hours in a rainstorm and in a barrel 250 feet up a radio tower's guy wire, a steeplejack was rescued in today's wee hours.

Buffeting winds and rain made everything slick.

"It was a lousy way to spend the night," said Sam Schreiber, 58, of nearby Leslie, once he was on the ground again unharmed, except for a cold, windswept soaking.

Schreiber, who described himself as "a steeplejack all my life," said he'd go back up and finish the tower maintenance job he set out to do at WKAR, the educational outlet of Michigan State University.

Fifty - gallon barrels, lifted by mechanical hoists and hooked to guy wires, raise steeplejacks to their jobs — and usually bring them smoothly down. But Schreiber's got stuck the equivalent of 25 stories up.

Fellow steeplejack Bob Finley, 30, of Eaton Rapids, Mich., climbed 600 feet up the 1,000-foot tower and freed Schreiber's hoist ropes, which had become entangled with the guy line.

Marine Requests Traps to Combat Viet Nam Rats

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. AP - Marine Cpl. Norman K. Mims of Jacksonville hopes to reduce the rodent population of South Viet Nam.

Mims wrote the Jacksonville postmaster, asking for some rat traps.

"I have used everything from a slingshot to electricity to get rid of the rats and don't seem to be getting anywhere," Mims wrote. "Vietnam has very few cats. I have seen only one, and some of the rats are bigger than he was.

"I would like to try just a plain old rat trap. I would like to have eight of the biggest ones you have."

Arthur F. Whittier, assistant postmaster and an ex-Marine, said he knew what Mims was up against because of his experiences in Guam during World War II.

Whittier bought eight traps and sent them along to Mims, with his compliments.

Teacher Rates Newspaper Good Classroom Tool

AUSTIN, Tex. AP -- A Wichita, Kan. junior high teacher says students can often learn more out of a newspaper than a book.

Hope Shackelford, who even watches "Batman" to find out what makes students tick, said Monday that a textbook becomes quickly outdated for students but the newspaper "gives them something that will still be there when the last school bell has rung."

Addressing a conference on classroom use of the newspaper in Austin, Tex., Mrs. Shackelford said that when she asks students to look up something in a newspaper such as compound sentence, they exlaim: "Wow, this is for real: They really use this goop you tell us about."

Potashnick Announces For Prosecuting Attorney

Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick today announced his candidacy for re-election subject to the Democratic Primary, August 2, 1966.

In announcing his candidacy for re-election, Potashnick pointed out that in 1965, his first year in office, compared to 1964, total convictions obtained in all cases were up 7 1/2 per cent; fees collected and payable to the County General Revenue Fund rose 15 per cent to $4,435.50; fines collected and payable to the school fund were up 37 per cent to $9,765.00. For the first quarter of 1966 compared to the first quarter of 1965, total convictions obtained in all cases were up 165 per cent, fees collected and payable to the County General Revenue Fund were up 164 per cent, and fines collected and payable to the school fund were up 125 per cent.

Mr. Potashnick, a life-long resident of Scott County, graduated from Sikeston High School in 1951, having been elected Governor of Missouri Boys State in 1950. He obtained his AB degree at Missouri University in 1956 and his law degree at the same school in 1958. While at the University, he served as student body president in 1954-55.

Pandora's box was opened widely in the case of local airline service in Midwestern and Southern cities by an airline filing now known as "Central Airlines -- Route 81 Investigation." As soon as Central, a local service carrier with offices in Ft. Worth, Texas, placed their route filing on record, a whole host of other airlines entered the picture to either protect their present interests or to further enlarge their existing routes. It was because of this particular Central filing that Ozark Airlines filed a document with the Civil Aeronautics Board which requested a route as follows: "Between the terminal point St. Louis, Mo., and the terminal point Memphis, Tenn." or, in the alternative, "Between the terminal point St. Louis, Mo. and any one or more of the intermediate points Cape Girardeau, Mo., Sikeston, Mo., and Blytheville, Ark., and the terminal point, Memphis, Tenn." When this particular filing was made on the 25th of August, 1965, the City of Sikeston was so notified by Mr. C. L. Tabor, General Operating Manager of Ozark Airlines, who later gave the story directly to the radio and press by telephone. During this notification, Mr. Tabor did not mention that the city of Cape Girardeau was listed as an intermediate point, leading Sikeston officials to believe that Sikeston actually had an opportunity to be the major stop on this particular run. When the official documents were later received in the City Manager's office, the actual filing intentions were then learned. It became apparent at once that Sikeston could not compete with Cape Girardeau in this particular filing as Cape already has airline service provided by Ozark, consequently, the CAB is reluctant to place identical service in two cities with the proximity of Sikeston and Cape. Each stop in a medium size or small community costs the CAB and, ultimately, the tax payers, in the neighborhood of $100,000.00 per year subsidy. This amount being paid to a local carrier to provide funds for initial operation. Once a routing becomes profitable, the subsidy is withdrawn. Every trunk airline in the United States has at one time or another received federal subsidy but, to date, none do. In the case of the local carriers, each of them receives subsidy but in every instance have been able to reduce their receipts of federal funds by providing greater service with resultant improved profits.

Historically speaking, Sikeston has actually been seeking airline service since 1958. In that year, the City of Sikeston and the Chamber of Commerce filed a motion to intervene in the Kansas - Oklahoma case that was then before the Civil Aeronautics Board. In January of 1959, the Sikeston motion to intervene in this Kansas - Oklahoma case was denied by the Civil Aeronautics Board, stating "That Sikeston, Mo., is an off - route point and that petitions as formal parties will unduly broaden the issues and delay the proceedings."

Enthusiasm and efforts for airline service again were instituted during the fall of 1964, which resulted in a personal visit by Lennie Whitworth, Raymert Miller, Ralph Boyer, and Robert S. Matthews to Ozark Airlines, St. Louis, Missouri, at which time they met Mr. Darryl G. Weishaar, Traffic and Route Development Dept., Mr. C. L. Tabor, General Operating Manager of Ozark, Mr. Thomas L. Grace, President, and Mr. Paul J. Rodgers, Sales and Public Relations Dept. The Sikeston delegation was given certain steps to follow which could result in favorable CAB approval of a Sikeston application. The first major step was taken in February of 1965 when Robert S. Matthews and Bernard Rice made a special trip to Washington to confer with the CAB. They were joined at this Washington conference by Mr. Stanley Fike, Administrative Assistant to Sen. Stuart Symington, who assisted both Sikestonians in presenting their case to Mr. John Dregge, Director of Community and Congressional Relations; whose job it is to help the smaller communities obtain airline service. Mr. Dregge encouraged the Sikeston representatives to request that Ozark file for a "Subsidy free' route, direct between St. Louis, Sikeston, Blytheville, and Memphis. Robert S. Matthews and Mr. Rice met later in the day with two Ozark officials, Mr. Darryl Weishaar, Traffic and Route Development Dept., and Mr. Paul L. Bradshaw, their attorney. These men were very cordial and although they did not promise to act according to Sikeston's wishes, did say they would cooperate where possible and assist in working the routing out to an acceptable solution.

A short while after the Washington conference, Mr. Tabor, General Operating Manager, made a personal visit to Sikeston and Blytheville. While here, he visited with Mayor Sikes and Robert S. Matthews, thoroughly investigating the city from a population, industrial, economic and airport facility standpoint. Mr. Tabor then recommended to Ozark that both Sikeston and Blytheville become part of their system.

On the initial examiners hearing of the Route 81 Investigation on January 25, 1966, which included Ozark's Sikeston application, the examiner, Harold R. Sanderson, ruled as follows: "Consequently, we have decided to consolidate all of the applications which Eastern, Ozark, Trans-Texas and Texarkana moved for a consolidation herein, except Ozark's application, docket 16417, which requests a St. Louis - Memphis route via Cape Girardeau, Mo., Sikeston, Mo., and Blytheville, Ark., or in the alternative nonstop. Inasmuch as Sikeston and Blytheville, Ark., do not receive air service, there are no proposals in this proceeding for service to additional local points, and this proceeding is designated primarily to investigate the needs for realigning the existing route structure in the Central area, we do not consider it desirable to expand this proceeding to include proposals for service to communities to which service has not been previously authorized. Therefore, we will sever that part of Ozark's application which proposes service to Sikeston and Blytheville and dismiss it and consolidate the remaining portion into this proceeding." This ruling in effect completely omitted both Sikeston and Blytheville from further consideration and forced Sikeston officials to take a direct routing with the CAB in order to get their own application on file.

After the Central filing succeeded in opening Pandora's treasure, the following airlines made these requests. Central filed for a routing between Little Rock, Memphis and St. Louis. Trans-Texas filed for a routing between Memphis and St. Louis as well as a Little Rock, Jonesboro, St. Louis segment. Ozark then made its filing for the afore-mentioned St. Louis-Memphis run as well as a St. Louis, Cape Girardeau, Little Rock segment. Eastern entered the act with a filing for a New Orleans, Memphis, St. Louis, Chicago segment. Southern then filed to intervene for its own protection and then subsequently filed for a Memphis-St. Louis route as well as a Memphis, Jackson, Tenn., St. Louis route. Many other route requests were filed in this case but none of the others directly affected the Sikeston area.

As a result of the initial Examiners filing and upon reading of the other airline filings and after many visits in person and by telephone with Ozark officials, the Sikeston group decided to seek help from another qualified source to procure aid in preparing suitable documents and for making their own proper presentation. This work was done in January and February of 1966 and now Sikeston has on file, before the CAB, the proper legal data to insure its case will be reviewed by the CAB. Should the CAB decide to certificate Sikeston as a regular airline stop, the city then could be served by any one of the carriers being considered. If the proper certificate would be granted, Sikeston could possibly obtain service from Central, Trans-Texas, Southern or Ozark.

To date, documents filed by the City of Sikeston consist of the following:

1. Application of the City of Sikeston, Missouri and the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce for Scheduled Air Service between Sikeston, Missouri and St. Louis, Missouri, and Memphis, Tennessee.

2. Petition of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, and the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce for Leave to Intervene; which is a document to insure that Sikeston's case will be heard in the Central 81 Investigation.

3. Motion of City of Sikeston to Consolidate; which document requests that the CAB consolidate Sikeston's application into the Central Airlines Route 81 Investigation. The city also prevails upon the CAB to follow a ruling known as the "Ashbacker" Doctrine which in effect states that if two parties have applications for the same objective and the grant of one of the applications would economically preclude grant of the second application, then both applications must be heard simultaneously. Inasmuch as Ozark's application in docket 16447 proposing St. Louis - Cape Girardeau - Memphis authority was consolidated, and since Cape Girardeau is only 30 miles from Sikeston, the award of Cape Girardeau - Memphis authority would effectively preclude later grant of Sikeston-Memphis authority.

A second preliminary hearing was scheduled by the Civil Aeronautics Board of Examiners, in Washington for April, 1966. After notification of this hearing date, a working committee composed of Mayor Kendall Sikes, City Manager Raymert Miller, Chamber of Commerce Manager Jim Musick, City Attorney Manuel Drumm, and Robert Matthews, met to determine exactly what steps Sikeston should take to assure that its most recent filings would be acted upon.

The present committee, realizing the importance of proper representation in Washington, decided to send as their representatives, Paul Fisher to represent the aviation group, and Manuel Drumm, the City Attorney, to represent the City. Both of these men were present in Washington when the April hearing convened. The very fact that they were present, caused the CAB Examiner to take special note that Sikeston did indeed, have applications before their board and was entitled to a full hearing. After Mr. Fisher and Mr. Drumm returned from Washington, this same committee met again with instructions to Chamber of Commerce Manager, Jim Musick, to prepare a preliminary economic data survey to be presented in Sikeston's behalf. Mr. Musick made an excellent presentation of this beginning economic survey and because of its presentation, as well as the personal visit of Mr. Fisher and Mr. Drumm, the Civil Aeronautics Board issued the following order:

"In our order of January 25, 1966, we excluded Ozark's proposal for service to Sikeston and Blytheville on its proposed St. Louis - Memphis route on the grounds that local service to new points was beyond the issues. We have decided, on our own motion, to RECONSIDER that decision. Sikeston and Blytheville as well as Jackson, Tenn., and Cape Girardeau are located in the area between Memphis and St. Louis. Inasmuch as we are trying a case involving local service as well as direct service between Memphis and St. Louis, it will impose no substantial additional burden upon the parties, the Board's staff, or the Examiner to hear the Sikeston-Blytheville proposals. Accordingly, we will reinstate Sikeston and Blytheville into Ozark's application, docket 16447, and consolidate that proposal. In conformance with that decision, we will grant Sikeston's motion to consolidate its application, docket 16999, for service to St. Louis and Memphis." This order completely opens the door for Sikeston's case to ultimately be heard.

At this date, several additional steps are necessary. First among these are, a complete economic data survey of Sikeston and its surrounding trade areas, to be accurately prepared and submitted to the Examiner by July 11, 1966. This document will be studied prior to Sikeston's formal hearing, which will be held in either Little Rock or Oklahoma City, during the month of November, 1966.

At this time, the Chamber of Commerce is currently calling upon every industry, every businessman, and a good many of our citizens to help provide data for this economic survey. It behooves every citizen in this community to strongly support the city administration, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Sikeston Industrial Development Corporation, along with their aviation committees in obtaining airline certification for Sikeston.

Teague Sentenced To 180 Days In Magistrate Court

Billy Teague, Betrand, got two 90 day jail sentences in Magistrate Court this morning for not having an operator's license and speeding 95 miles per hour in a 65 mile per hour speed zone. Judge M. E. Montgomery also fined him $50 and costs on each count.

Teague, 26, is presently serving a 60 day jail sentence in Sikeston for running five stop signs, driving while intoxicated, speeding, and resisting arrest.

These charges stem from an early morning accident at Morehouse June 2 that resulted from Teague's attempt to avoid arrest of a Sikeston policeman.

Teague lost control of his car, tore off an 18 by 8 feet brick building and the rear of the Watkins and Sons Funeral home after the wild chase.

He was fined $388 in Sikeston municipal court for the city charges.

Leon White, Poplar Bluff, was fined $10 and costs this morning for not having an operator's license. Judge Montgomery also sentenced him to 30 days in the Scott county jail at Benton. However, if the fine and costs are paid, the sentence will be suspended.

Eddie Dickson, Bell City, was fined $5 and costs for careless driving and was fined $5 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail for not having an adequate set of brakes on his vehicle. However, if fines and costs are paid, the jail sentence will be suspended.

Charles Wilson, Morehouse, was fined $10 and costs on charges of altering his operator's license and his selective service card.

Joseph Bolty, Sikeston, was fined $10 and cost for speeding.

Donald Webb, Kansas City, was fined $10 and costs for careless driving.

Mary Beck, Malden, was fined $37.50 and costs for speeding.

Alton Stewart, route three, was fined $12.50 for careless driving.

Pearl Sims, 443 Smith, who had been fined $50 and costs for having possession of liquor while being under the age of 21, was placed on probation for one year and the fine was suspended.

Willie Lane, 302 Alabama, was fined $5 and costs for not having an operator's license.

James Applewhite, 333 Luther, was fined $5 and costs for not having an adequate set of brakes on his automobile.

Jerry Hesselrode, Bell City, was fined $50 and costs for speeding.

Norman Henry, 136 Cardinal Drive, was fined $5 and costs for not having an operator's license.

Emery Martin, 307 Lillian, was fined $5 and costs for not having a valid operator's license.

Mitchell Davis, Matthews, was fined $5 and costs for careless driving.

Clifford Flippo, Sikeston, was fined $5 and costs for careless driving.

Charles Springs, 610 Holly Hill, was fined $37.50 and costs for speeding.

Editors Note: The following is of vital importance to all of Sikeston and Southeast Missouri. We request that all citizens do their part so our showing at the below mentioned hearing will be outstanding.

Pandora's box was opened widely in the case of local airline service in Midwestern and Southern cities by an airline filing now known as "Central Airlines -- Route 81 Investigation." As soon as Central, a local service carrier with offices in Ft. Worth, Texas, placed their route filing on record, a whole host of other airlines entered the picture to either protect their present interests or to further enlarge their existing routes. It was because of this particular Central filing that Ozark Airlines filed a document with the Civil Aeronautics Board which requested a route as follows: "Between the terminal point St. Louis, Mo., and the terminal point Memphis, Tenn." or, in the alternative, "Between the terminal point St. Louis, Mo. and any one or more of the intermediate points Cape Girardeau, Mo., Sikeston, Mo., and Blytheville, Ark., and the terminal point, Memphis, Tenn." When this particular filing was made on the 25th of August, 1965, the City of Sikeston was so notified by Mr. C. L. Tabor, General Operating Manager of Ozark Airlines, who later gave the story directly to the radio and press by telephone. During this notification, Mr. Tabor did not mention that the city of Cape Girardeau was listed as an intermediate point, leading Sikeston officials to believe that Sikeston actually had an opportunity to be the major stop on this particular run. When the official documents were later received in the City Manager's office, the actual filing intentions were then learned. It became apparent at once that Sikeston could not compete with Cape Girardeau in this particular filing as Cape already has airline service provided by Ozark, consequently, the CAB is reluctant to place identical service in two cities with the proximity of Sikeston and Cape. Each stop in a medium size or small community costs the CAB and, ultimately, the tax payers, in the neighborhood of $100,000.00 per year subsidy. This amount being paid to a local carrier to provide funds for initial operation. Once a routing becomes profitable, the subsidy is withdrawn. Every trunk airline in the United States has at one time or another received federal subsidy but, to date, none do. In the case of the local carriers, each of them receives subsidy but in every instance have been able to reduce their receipts of federal funds by providing greater service with resultant improved profits.

Historically speaking, Sikeston has actually been seeking airline service since 1958. In that year, the City of Sikeston and the Chamber of Commerce filed a motion to intervene in the Kansas - Oklahoma case that was then before the Civil Aeronautics Board. In January of 1959, the Sikeston motion to intervene in this Kansas - Oklahoma case was denied by the Civil Aeronautics Board, stating "That Sikeston, Mo., is an off - route point and that petitions as formal parties will unduly broaden the issues and delay the proceedings."

Enthusiasm and efforts for airline service again were instituted during the fall of 1964, which resulted in a personal visit by Lennie Whitworth, Raymert Miller, Ralph Boyer, and Robert S. Matthews to Ozark Airlines, St. Louis, Missouri, at which time they met Mr. Darryl G. Weishaar, Traffic and Route Development Dept., Mr. C. L. Tabor, General Operating Manager of Ozark, Mr. Thomas L. Grace, President, and Mr. Paul J. Rodgers, Sales and Public Relations Dept. The Sikeston delegation was given certain steps to follow which could result in favorable CAB approval of a Sikeston application. The first major step was taken in February of 1965 when Robert S. Sikeston Hospital Approved

WASHINGTON -- The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has made public names of 5,558 hospitals which, as of June 11, are in compliance with laws against racial discrimination and thus eligible to participate in Medicare programs.

Medicare comes into effect July 1.

Harold Jones, Sikeston's Missouri Delta Community hospital administrator, said this morning that his hospital was among the one's approved to make application for participation.

He said, however, that his hospital's board of directors has not yet accepted Medicare.

Missouri hospitals approved to make application totals 135.

The Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau was also approved, along with the Dunklin County Memorial hospital in Kennett.

Youth Graduates In Hospital Gown

LOS ANGELES AP -- Mace Goodman, 17, wore a gown at his high school graduation, but it wasn't the traditional one -- it was a hospital gown.

Since the youth, who broke his leg and dislocated his shoulder in a motorcycle accident June 8, couldn't go to the graduation ceremonies, the ceremonies were brought to him.

Potashnick Announces For Prosecuting Attorney

Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick today announced his candidacy for re-election subject to the Democratic Primary, August 2, 1966.

In announcing his candidacy for re-election, Potashnick pointed out that in 1965, his first year in office, compared to 1964, total convictions obtained in all cases were up 7 1/2 per cent; fees collected and payable to the County General Revenue Fund rose 15 per cent to $4,435.50; fines collected and payable to the school fund were up 37 per cent to $9,765.00. For the first quarter of 1966 compared to the first quarter of 1965, total convictions obtained in all cases were up 165 per cent, fees collected and payable to the County General Revenue Fund were up 164 per cent, and fines collected and payable to the school fund were up 125 per cent.

Mr. Potashnick, a life-long resident of Scott County, graduated from Sikeston High School in 1951, having been elected Governor of Missouri Boys State in 1950. He obtained his AB degree at Missouri University in 1956 and his law degree at the same school in 1958. While at the University, he served as student body president in 1954-55.

After service in the United States Army, he returned to Scott County to begin his practice of law. In 1963 he was Chairman of the Sikeston United Fund Campaign, and was selected as Junior Chamber of Commerce Young Man of the Year in 1962.

Mr. Potashnick is presently serving as the President of Sikeston Industrial Development Company, a member of the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, and a member of the Scott County Economic Opportunity Corporation Board of Directors. He is very active in church work, serving as a member of the board, Sunday School teacher and Lay Speaker at the First Methodist Church in Sikeston.

Mr. Potashnick is married to the former Sue Sikes and they reside in Sikeston with their children, David -- age 6 and Julia, age one.

Mr. Potashnick emphasized that his record speaks entirely for itself; that the number of convictions obtained and the fees and fines collected during his first term in office clearly deserve a second term. This record has been obtained while fully protecting the individual rights and freedoms of all persons charged with crime in Scott County.

FLAG DAY -- TODAY

The United States flag is a symbol. It is emblematic of what the vast majority of us, who live under it, treasure -- of what we know as the American way of life with its freedoms, its responsibilities, its achievements and its patriotism.

This is true every day of every year. But as a means of periodically expressing our knowledge of that truth, one day -- the fourteenth day of each June, today -- is designated annually as Flag Day.

On Flag Day we pay particular honor to the Stars and Stripes. Each family, business or office which owns an American flag displays it, and indulges in a little more than the usual thoughtfulness in unfurling it.

With our country involved in so many fields where the standing of America is at stake -- Vietnam, the Dominican Republic, the whole world, almost, including some of our own college campuses and cities, it's a good thing for each American to be able to indicate which side he is on. Displaying the flag, if it is done with sincerity, is a quiet way of standing up to be counted in that respect. But it is effective.

We are aware that not everyone who lives in America feels as we do about Old Glory. To some, a person who raises the flag, or reveres it, is a "square." The size of this group of half-baked scoffers is, we have reason to believe, on the wane.

This newspaper's flags will be flying proudly today. If that earns for us a "square" label, we are happy to join the company of men like George Washington, Nathan Hale, Andrew Jackson, John Glenn and his fellow astronauts, and thousands of others who showed their flag with pride and loved it.

We urge all Sikeston to join in displaying and paying tribute to the American flag today.

A SOCIALIST OBSESSION

Having won the parliamentary election and started the renationalization of the country's steel industry, Britain's socialists have embarked on an international venture that could result in another war in which the United States would be involved.

Though Britain is living far beyond her means, and though productivity is lagging way behind other Western nations, the Wilson government in Great Britain has not set for itself the task of domestic reform and modernization. Instead, Prime Minister Wilson has determined to crush independent Rhodesia as the first item of business. To this end, he has gone beyond economic warfare and is now stopping on the high seas the ships of peaceful trading nations that are carrying oil to Rhodesia through Portuguese ports in Africa. It was precisely this kind of arbitrary, high-handed interference with peaceful oceanic trade that got Britain into trouble with the infant American republic in 1812.

The action of our administration in voting in the Security Council of the United Nations to allow Great Britain to use force to prevent oil from being delivered to Rhodesia by sea can be characterized as nothing less than stupid.

The irony inherent in the British action is that they want to cut off seaborne trade with Rhodesia while they insist on trading as usual with Communist North Viet Nam, a nation that endangers the peace of the world. Rhodesia doesn't threaten the peace of anyone. It simply wants to be left alone, though Prime Minister Smith of Rhodesia has offered to send soldiers to fight communism in Viet Nam -- an offer that Mr. Wilson has NOT made.

U. S. Rep. Richard H. Poff (R-Va) recently cited the absurdity of the British arguments: "Britain," he said, "responsible for the bulk of the trade with North Viet Nam, argues that it is powerless to interfere with the business of private vessels in the absence of a formal declaration of war. This is sheer sophistry; Britain saw no such obstacle when she shut off trade with Rhodesia."

Americans, mindful of their own country's struggle to win independence, can look at Mr. Wilson's pressure campaign against Rhodesia with their own history in mind. The Wilson government, like the government of Lord North in the 1770's, was determined to beat down Englishmen who wanted the traditional rights of Englishmen. This is fundamentally what the Rhodesians desire. Rhodesia has not been a colony of Great Britain, but a self-governing territory for more than 40 years. Now the socialists in London, in a desire to appease African dictators, want to turn Rhodesia into a direct-rule colony prior to subjecting it to the type of one-party dictatorial regime that masquerades as democracy in Africa. Understandably, the Rhodesians are determined to fight to prevent their country -- one of the few civilized lands on the African continent -- from becoming another nation of disorder and violence in the manner of Ghana and other African states.

It would be an outrage, a disgrace and a betrayal of the real interests of the American people if Mr. Johnson allowed the British socialist to drag the U. S. into support of any U. N. military adventure in Africa, as they very well might. Not a dollar should be spent for crippling an anti-communist, civilized community in Africa. The United States has plenty of real trouble to contend with in Asia, plenty of real communist enemies to fight. Our national resources will be needed for a hard struggle against communism in Asia, and nothing should be done to aid the communists in their plan to create a diversion in Southern and Central Africa. The British socialists are giving the Reds an assist by stirring up trouble with Rhodesia. The U. S. should refuse to be played for a sucker.

A LESSON FOR US

For some time, stories have been coming out of Russia telling of drastic, if severely limited, changes in economic policy. The gist of them is that the Soviets have been testing such once-despised capitalist principles as the profit motive in order to stimulate production and indifferent administrators.

Now, it seems, another lengthy step is being taken. It has been announced that by the end of 1965 a third of Russia's consumer - goods factories were operating on a capitalist principle. They will produce only what retailers can sell.

This certainly won't strike Americans as remarkable. That's exactly the way things are done in this country under our system of free, competitive mass production and distribution. But in Russia, just the opposite policy has been followed. Factories have been told by the planners what to make and in what quantity. As a result, stores are stocked with inferior, over-priced, unwanted goods. And consumers have been vigorously complaining.

So Russia, even if slowly, is moving toward a supply-demand consumer economy, complete with a certain amount of profit motive. One may be sure that this is being done out of reluctant necessity -- it must be something of a humiliation to the Soviet hierarchy to imitate capitalism to any degree, and Karl Marx, very likely, is revolving in his grave. At any rate, there is a lesson for us. Our production-distribution system, working all the way from the sources of raw materials to our splendid retail stores, does more good for more people than any other system man has been able to think up.

THE OTHER COST

It has been said that federal grant-in-aid programs have grown to the point where they are unmanageable. Whether or not this extremity has been reached, they are ascending to stupefying dimensions.

In 1966, the proposed budget indicates, they will reach the record figure of $13.6 billion-$2.2 billion more than for 1965 and $3.3 billion above the 1964 appropriations. Practically all of the increase is in the areas of welfare and education, including such programs as economic opportunity; educational assistance; manpower development and training; health and research; and housing and community development.

The question here is not whether any or all of such programs are good or bad, necessary or unnecessary. It is whether they are a proper function of the central government. And further, it is a question of whether the rights, obligations and responsibilities of state and local government -- to say nothing of those of individual citizens and families -- are to be totally submerged by federal bureaucracies which control the purse strings and lay down the rules.

The cost of grants-in-aid, in terms of dollars, is enormous. The other cost, which must be measured in the subjugation of local government which is far more responsible to the needs, wants and problems of its regions, is greater still.

FOR THE SAKE OF THE NATION

There are broad differences of opinion over many of the programs and policies laid down in the President's State of the Union message. But there was at least one point that should be given virtually unanimous approval. He urged "heavier reliance on competition in transportation" as a necessary step for Congress in meeting one of its basic tasks to keep the economy growing. He added, "In a country that spans a continent, modern transportation is vital to continued growth."

In saying this, Mr. Johnson followed a policy laid down by his immediate predecessors and by a long list of top-level bodies which have thoroughly studied the transportation problem in all its aspects. Without exception, they have found that regulatory policy is largely obsolete. Basically, it goes back to an era that is forever past when the railroads had what amounted to a monopoly of commercial transportation. Now the change has been absolute. Transportation is one of the most competitive of industries, with carriers by rail, road, air and water all vigorously seeking traffic. But many of the old rules remain, and the result is that the public is denied the tremendous benefits that would follow if every carrier was permitted to freely and fairly make the most of its own inherent advantages in competing for business.

For the sake of the nation and the material welfare of everyone in it, one hopes that Mr. Johnson's recommendation will be given the congressional welcome it eminently deserves.

MOVING IN --- NOT OUT

It used to be, in a less sophisticated age, that once the Marines had landed, we would not have long to wait for that soul-satisfying finale of the Stars and Stripes waving protectively over a strife-torn land restored to peace and freedom and fraternity!

So may it be in South Vietnam!

But the vacillating, off-again, on-again character of the landing -- expected by newsmen on the 5th, reported called off on the sixth and effectuated on the eighth -- makes one wonder what the script-writers have in mind.

More on the reassuring side, but still puzzling, is the fact that when one battalion of 1,400 Marines -- the force expected-had come ashore from the Seventh Fleet transports standing off the seaport of Da-Nang, C130 air transports from Okinawa began sitting down on the DaNang airbase with another battalion. These, together with a helicopter squadron, were expected to bring the number of new arrivals to 3,500. The Hawk antiaircraft missile batteries, brought in after the surprise Vietcong raid on our air base at Pleiku, were already being manned by a Marine detachment of 1,200.

According to Brig. Gen. Frederick J. Karch, commanding this Ninth Marine Expeditionary Force, his men will replace the two South Vietnamese battalions that have been guarding the DaNang base and will now return to the field. The Marines will do some patrolling, he expects, but emphasized that their operations would be "strictly defensive." Their equipment includes tanks, anti-tank vehicles, artillery and a radar computer system to track mortar fire and direct returnfire, giving point to the General's remark that if his men were fired upon, they would be shooting back.

This handful of Marines, sniffed Red China's official news agency, "can in no way retrieve the US from its desperate predicament on the South Vietnam battlefield."

But it seems like a move in the right direction.

WHIPPING BOY

Some people propose that the federal gasoline tax be boosted again. Similar proposals may be expected in a number of the states.

In the light of that, a little review of this tax's history is very much in order. It had its beginnings in Oregon in 1919 and was then one cent a gallon. Other states swiftly followed suit and, over the years, the rates steadily climbed. The federal government got into the act. Now gas taxes, federal and state together, average more than 10 cents a gallon and bring in well over $18 million a day.

At the end of last year, the total thus taken from motorists since Oregon started the ball rolling was a staggering $89.5 billion and the $90 billion mark has undoubtedly been passed by now. In the next 14 years, even at present rates, another $90 billion will be collected.

It certainly would appear that the motorist has been a whipping boy for the tax collector. No other necessity has carried anywhere near so heavy a burden of taxation as gas. And the argument that this is necessary -- and that still higher rates are necessary too -- in order to provide the roads we need calls for some second thoughts. Good roads benefit everyone everywhere -- not just the motorist. And in many cases, gasoline tax revenues are diverted to purposes other than road building and maintenance.

The collective voice of all our millions of motorists should pronounce a resounding "No!" to any and all proposals for further gas tax boosts.

WORLD MEAT POOL

According to a spokesman for the American Meat Institute, opportunities are excellent for expanding exports of American lifestock and meat products to Europe. Shortages there, coupled with increasing consumer demand, are weakening the age-old barriers to international meat trade by Western European nations.

To promote the trade, the Institute and the Department of Agriculture formed a Co-operative Market Development Program. And the Institute spokesman tells of a concept that seems to have dramatic possibilities. According to it, total meat production the world over would be considered the world meat pool. The country in which meat is produced has first call upon the supply. The balance, if any, is available to other nations.

The quantity of meat any country can obtain from the pool is dependent upon various factors -- relative cost, transportation, trade barriers and so on. At present, these factors -- when considered in relation to the abundant supply of meat in this country -- favor increasing trade between us and Europe.

In his words, "This is no bonanza, but activities of the industry and government have already stimulated some trade and will continue to stimulate more. The net result of this program, while not spectacular, is extremely encouraging." Europeans want our meat -- we want their markets. It's a situation where all benefit.

The National Association of Manufacturers again urges its members to provide summer jobs for young people of high school age, in response to the Administration's campaign announced by Vice President Hubert Humphrey and Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor.

Nevertheless, we urge all manufacturers to make special efforts to help put the young people in jobs where they can learn as well as earn."

H. L. Hunt Says

"BUDDHIST LEADERS" IN VIETNAM

One of the primary causes of our military involvement in Vietnam today was the communist linked revolutionary uprising three years ago which overthrew the late President Diem of Vietnam. Assuming the guise of "Buddhists," these revolutionaries bamboozled many Western observers who should have known better, so that we stood idly by while our good friend Diem was deposed and atrociously murdered, and even helped protect some of the rebels from just punishment.

The drastic weakening of the South Vietnamese government and army which resulted from Diem's overthrow in 1963 brought the communist Viet Cong to the threshold of victory. Only our massive troop intervention has so far prevented that victory.

Now the communists and their allies, again assuming the "Buddhist" disguise, have tried the same trick again, hoping to complete the destruction of South Vietnam from within.

True Buddhism is a religion of peace and contemplation. It has nothing whatever to do with leading street mobs and turning pagodas into fortresses, or the sick self destruction of fanatical dupes. The majority of the people of South Vietnam are Buddhists, but they have shown little enthusiasm for this latest civil strife.

Using a big lie technique similar in principle to that used by Hitler to seize control of Germany, the so-called "Buddhist leaders" are seeking naked power under cover of fraudulent spiritual motives. Hitler exploited the fear and loathing of decent Germans for terror tactics to install a terror of his own, the scars of which the German people will bear for centuries. Whether or not this technique will work in South Vietnam remains a question. There are encouraging signs that it won't if our winless diplomats and duped pundits are withdrawn.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Five successive times the House Armed Services Committee was called to meet during the past weeks to ok a massive new military construction bill. But each time the committee meeting was called off. Simultaneously house floor debate on an $18 billion procurement bill for military weapons was also postponed.

The official reason was the absence of the committee's silvermaned chairman, Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S. C., reportedly hospitalized by bursitis.

Real truth, however, is that Rivers has been drying out from a drunk. It was so serious that the chairman of the armed services committee had to be taken to the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

This is not the first time he has been there. The navy has been good enough, on various previous occasions, to pick up the gentleman from South Carolina in an ambulance and dry him out. Sometimes he has been found in his office on Monday mornings surrounded by empty bottles, after a drinking weekend.

Sometimes he has been in such a stupor that essential parts of his clothing were missing and he did not appear to know it.

Members of his staff, at times, have been detailed to watch him and try to sober him up. It has been an almost impossible job. He has eaten oranges like an animals, peel and all, then spewed them all out all over his face. One member of his staff did her best for a day and a half, then gave up. She called the naval ambulance.

MENDEL'S BROKEN PLEDGE

Rivers comes from Charleston, S. C., where the Civil War started, an area proud of its history. And when he assumed the chairmanship of the House Armed Services Committee, other Democrats on that committee did their best to induce him to go on the wagon. Rep. Edward Herbert of New Orleans -- No. 3 man on the armed services committee -- announced to friends that Mendel's drinking days were over.

Most of the time, Mendel carried out his pledge. He has worked hard and with especial enthusiasm when it came to opposing and belaboring the secretary of defense. But approximately two weeks ago, just at the most crucial moment when the $17.8 billion military authorization bill was ready for floor debate, the chairman disappeared.

Other committee members have been very secretive. It isn't pleasant for them to talk about their chairman's personal problems, nor for this column to write about them. However, when nearly $18 billion are involved, together with the defense of the nation, it's important to examine the mental or physical instability of the man who masterminds military law, especially because Rivers has appended a 106-page report to the defense procurement bill, which verbally spews -- not orange peel - venom, in the face of Secretary McNamara.

The report refers to the secretary of defense as "incapable of self - examination" and declares: "If congress is the one to take the helm in this case, then we'll do it. We will continue to . . . exercise surveillance over the Pentagon. . . Congress must call the shots... We intend to return to Congress its rightful place in the over - all decision - making process in military matters.

"The Pentagon is absolutely dominated by a Caesar," spewed the congressman who at the time the report was published was so dead drunk he had to be taken to a hospital under the supervision of that Caesar.

ABSENT LEADER OF MARCH

The above diatribe against the secretary of defense was in connection with McNamara's decision to phase out the B-58, the supersonic bomber, on the ground that it is now replaced by missiles.

And putting River's judgment in direct opposition to that of the secretary of defense, Rivers added almost a billion dollars--$931 million -- to the defense department's bill to pay for three programs which McNamara doesn't want. They are:

1. Continuation of the B-58; 2, Development of an anti-missile missile system; and 3, Nuclear-powered surface vessels for the navy.

"Again this year," Chairman Rivers spewed at McNamara his 106-page report, "the committee must attempt to alert the house to the fact that power in the past has moved - on tiptoes - from Capitol Hill to the Pentagon and, once there, has reached back a friendly hand and issued a smiling invitation to come on over and watch the computers work.

"The committee intends to play the tune to which the legitimate power of congress will march back up Capitol Hill."

But the congressman supposed to lead this march just wasn't around to lead it. During two weeks, his committee clerk called meeting after meeting with full expectation that the leader would be back, and lead the debate on the house floor. After all, June 30, the end of the fiscal year, is approaching. Only two weeks remain to pass the bill, otherwise, all pay to the far-flung fighting officers and men of the United States, including the $1 billion pay raise which Rivers had voted over McNamara's and LBJ's heads, could be in jeopardy.

But the chairman, so virile on the written page, wasn't around to lead the march. He was in the Bethesda Naval Hospital sobering up from a drunk which according to all medical experts must inevitably affect the patient's judgment.

Note: The Armed Services Committee will meet again today (June 14) in the hope that its leader is back and prepared to lead the march back to Capitol Hill.

FLAG DAY -- TODAY

The United States flag is a symbol. It is emblematic of what the vast majority of us, who live under it, treasure -- of what we know as the American way of life with its freedoms, its responsibilities, its achievements and its patriotism.

This is true every day of every year. But as a means of periodically expressing our knowledge of that truth, one day -- the fourteenth day of each June, today -- is designated annually as Flag Day.

On Flag Day we pay particular honor to the Stars and Stripes. Each family, business or office which owns an American flag displays it, and indulges in a little more than the usual thoughtfulness in unfurling it.

With our country involved in so many fields where the standing of America is at stake -- Vietnam, the Dominican Republic, the whole world, almost, including some of our own college campuses and cities, it's a good thing for each American to be able to indicate which side he is on. Displaying the flag, if it is done with sincerity, is a quiet way of standing up to be counted in that respect. But it is effective.

We are aware that not everyone who lives in America feels as we do about Old Glory. To some, a person who raises the flag, or reveres it, is a "square." The size of this group of half-baked scoffers is, we have reason to believe, on the wane.

This newspaper's flags will be flying proudly today. If that earns for us a "square" label, we are happy to join the company of men like George Washington, Nathan Hale, Andrew Jackson, John Glenn and his fellow astronauts, and thousands of others who showed their flag with pride and loved it.

We urge all Sikeston to join in displaying and paying tribute to the American flag today.

A SOCIALIST OBSESSION

Having won the parliamentary election and started the renationalization of the country's steel industry, Britain's socialists have embarked on an international venture that could result in another war in which the United States would be involved.

Though Britain is living far beyond her means, and though productivity is lagging way behind other Western nations, the Wilson government in Great Britain has not set for itself the task of domestic reform and modernization. Instead, Prime Minister Wilson has determined to crush independent Rhodesia as the first item of business. To this end, he has gone beyond economic warfare and is now stopping on the high seas the ships of peaceful trading nations that are carrying oil to Rhodesia through Portuguese ports in Africa. It was precisely this kind of arbitrary, high-handed interference with peaceful oceanic trade that got Britain into trouble with the infant American republic in 1812.

The action of our administration in voting in the Security Council of the United Nations to allow Great Britain to use force to prevent oil from being delivered to Rhodesia by sea can be characterized as nothing less than stupid.

The irony inherent in the British action is that they want to cut off seaborne trade with Rhodesia while they insist on trading as usual with Communist North Viet Nam, a nation that endangers the peace of the world. Rhodesia doesn't threaten the peace of anyone. It simply wants to be left alone, though Prime Minister Smith of Rhodesia has offered to send soldiers to fight communism in Viet Nam -- an offer that Mr. Wilson has NOT made.

U. S. Rep. Richard H. Poff (R-Va) recently cited the absurdity of the British arguments: "Britain," he said, "responsible for the bulk of the trade with North Viet Nam, argues that it is powerless to interfere with the business of private vessels in the absence of a formal declaration of war. This is sheer sophistry; Britain saw no such obstacle when she shut off trade with Rhodesia."

Americans, mindful of their own country's struggle to win independence, can look at Mr. Wilson's pressure campaign against Rhodesia with their own history in mind. The Wilson government, like the government of Lord North in the 1770's, was determined to beat down Englishmen who wanted the traditional rights of Englishmen. This is fundamentally what the Rhodesians desire. Rhodesia has not been a colony of Great Britain, but a self-governing territory for more than 40 years. Now the socialists in London, in a desire to appease African dictators, want to turn Rhodesia into a direct-rule colony prior to subjecting it to the type of one-party dictatorial regime that masquerades as democracy in Africa. Understandably, the Rhodesians are determined to fight to prevent their country -- one of the few civilized lands on the African continent -- from becoming another nation of disorder and violence in the manner of Ghana and other African states.

It would be an outrage, a disgrace and a betrayal of the real interests of the American people if Mr. Johnson allowed the British socialist to drag the U. S. into support of any U. N. military adventure in Africa, as they very well might. Not a dollar should be spent for crippling an anti-communist, civilized community in Africa. The United States has plenty of real trouble to contend with in Asia, plenty of real communist enemies to fight. Our national resources will be needed for a hard struggle against communism in Asia, and nothing should be done to aid the communists in their plan to create a diversion in Southern and Central Africa. The British socialists are giving the Reds an assist by stirring up trouble with Rhodesia. The U. S. should refuse to be played for a sucker.

A LESSON FOR US

For some time, stories have been coming out of Russia telling of drastic, if severely limited, changes in economic policy. The gist of them is that the Soviets have been testing such once-despised capitalist principles as the profit motive in order to stimulate production and indifferent administrators.

Now, it seems, another lengthy step is being taken. It has been announced that by the end of 1965 a third of Russia's consumer - goods factories were operating on a capitalist principle. They will produce only what retailers can sell.

This certainly won't strike Americans as remarkable. That's exactly the way things are done in this country under our system of free, competitive mass production and distribution. But in Russia, just the opposite policy has been followed. Factories have been told by the planners what to make and in what quantity. As a result, stores are stocked with inferior, over-priced, unwanted goods. And consumers have been vigorously complaining.

So Russia, even if slowly, is moving toward a supply-demand consumer economy, complete with a certain amount of profit motive. One may be sure that this is being done out of reluctant necessity -- it must be something of a humiliation to the Soviet hierarchy to imitate capitalism to any degree, and Karl Marx, very likely, is revolving in his grave. At any rate, there is a lesson for us. Our production-distribution system, working all the way from the sources of raw materials to our splendid retail stores, does more good for more people than any other system man has been able to think up.

THE OTHER COST

It has been said that federal grant-in-aid programs have grown to the point where they are unmanageable. Whether or not this extremity has been reached, they are ascending to stupefying dimensions.

In 1966, the proposed budget indicates, they will reach the record figure of $13.6 billion-$2.2 billion more than for 1965 and $3.3 billion above the 1964 appropriations. Practically all of the increase is in the areas of welfare and education, including such programs as economic opportunity; educational assistance; manpower development and training; health and research; and housing and community development.

The question here is not whether any or all of such programs are good or bad, necessary or unnecessary. It is whether they are a proper function of the central government. And further, it is a question of whether the rights, obligations and responsibilities of state and local government -- to say nothing of those of individual citizens and families -- are to be totally submerged by federal bureaucracies which control the purse strings and lay down the rules.

The cost of grants-in-aid, in terms of dollars, is enormous. The other cost, which must be measured in the subjugation of local government which is far more responsible to the needs, wants and problems of its regions, is greater still.

FOR THE SAKE OF THE NATION

There are broad differences of opinion over many of the programs and policies laid down in the President's State of the Union message. But there was at least one point that should be given virtually unanimous approval. He urged "heavier reliance on competition in transportation" as a necessary step for Congress in meeting one of its basic tasks to keep the economy growing. He added, "In a country that spans a continent, modern transportation is vital to continued growth."

In saying this, Mr. Johnson followed a policy laid down by his immediate predecessors and by a long list of top-level bodies which have thoroughly studied the transportation problem in all its aspects. Without exception, they have found that regulatory policy is largely obsolete. Basically, it goes back to an era that is forever past when the railroads had what amounted to a monopoly of commercial transportation. Now the change has been absolute. Transportation is one of the most competitive of industries, with carriers by rail, road, air and water all vigorously seeking traffic. But many of the old rules remain, and the result is that the public is denied the tremendous benefits that would follow if every carrier was permitted to freely and fairly make the most of its own inherent advantages in competing for business.

For the sake of the nation and the material welfare of everyone in it, one hopes that Mr. Johnson's recommendation will be given the congressional welcome it eminently deserves.

MOVING IN --- NOT OUT

It used to be, in a less sophisticated age, that once the Marines had landed, we would not have long to wait for that soul-satisfying finale of the Stars and Stripes waving protectively over a strife-torn land restored to peace and freedom and fraternity!

So may it be in South Vietnam!

But the vacillating, off-again, on-again character of the landing -- expected by newsmen on the 5th, reported called off on the sixth and effectuated on the eighth -- makes one wonder what the script-writers have in mind.

More on the reassuring side, but still puzzling, is the fact that when one battalion of 1,400 Marines -- the force expected-had come ashore from the Seventh Fleet transports standing off the seaport of Da-Nang, C130 air transports from Okinawa began sitting down on the DaNang airbase with another battalion. These, together with a helicopter squadron, were expected to bring the number of new arrivals to 3,500. The Hawk antiaircraft missile batteries, brought in after the surprise Vietcong raid on our air base at Pleiku, were already being manned by a Marine detachment of 1,200.

According to Brig. Gen. Frederick J. Karch, commanding this Ninth Marine Expeditionary Force, his men will replace the two South Vietnamese battalions that have been guarding the DaNang base and will now return to the field. The Marines will do some patrolling, he expects, but emphasized that their operations would be "strictly defensive." Their equipment includes tanks, anti-tank vehicles, artillery and a radar computer system to track mortar fire and direct returnfire, giving point to the General's remark that if his men were fired upon, they would be shooting back.

This handful of Marines, sniffed Red China's official news agency, "can in no way retrieve the US from its desperate predicament on the South Vietnam battlefield."

But it seems like a move in the right direction.

WHIPPING BOY

Some people propose that the federal gasoline tax be boosted again. Similar proposals may be expected in a number of the states.

In the light of that, a little review of this tax's history is very much in order. It had its beginnings in Oregon in 1919 and was then one cent a gallon. Other states swiftly followed suit and, over the years, the rates steadily climbed. The federal government got into the act. Now gas taxes, federal and state together, average more than 10 cents a gallon and bring in well over $18 million a day.

At the end of last year, the total thus taken from motorists since Oregon started the ball rolling was a staggering $89.5 billion and the $90 billion mark has undoubtedly been passed by now. In the next 14 years, even at present rates, another $90 billion will be collected.

It certainly would appear that the motorist has been a whipping boy for the tax collector. No other necessity has carried anywhere near so heavy a burden of taxation as gas. And the argument that this is necessary -- and that still higher rates are necessary too -- in order to provide the roads we need calls for some second thoughts. Good roads benefit everyone everywhere -- not just the motorist. And in many cases, gasoline tax revenues are diverted to purposes other than road building and maintenance.

The collective voice of all our millions of motorists should pronounce a resounding "No!" to any and all proposals for further gas tax boosts.

WORLD MEAT POOL

According to a spokesman for the American Meat Institute, opportunities are excellent for expanding exports of American lifestock and meat products to Europe. Shortages there, coupled with increasing consumer demand, are weakening the age-old barriers to international meat trade by Western European nations.

To promote the trade, the Institute and the Department of Agriculture formed a Co-operative Market Development Program. And the Institute spokesman tells of a concept that seems to have dramatic possibilities. According to it, total meat production the world over would be considered the world meat pool. The country in which meat is produced has first call upon the supply. The balance, if any, is available to other nations.

The quantity of meat any country can obtain from the pool is dependent upon various factors -- relative cost, transportation, trade barriers and so on. At present, these factors -- when considered in relation to the abundant supply of meat in this country -- favor increasing trade between us and Europe.

In his words, "This is no bonanza, but activities of the industry and government have already stimulated some trade and will continue to stimulate more. The net result of this program, while not spectacular, is extremely encouraging." Europeans want our meat -- we want their markets. It's a situation where all benefit.

The National Association of Manufacturers again urges its members to provide summer jobs for young people of high school age, in response to the Administration's campaign announced by Vice President Hubert Humphrey and Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor.

"American industry's response a year ago to a similar appeal by President Johnson was wholehearted, and the campaign was deemed highly successful," W. P. Gullander, NAM president stated.

Nevertheless, we urge all manufacturers to make special efforts to help put the young people in jobs where they can learn as well as earn."

H. L. Hunt Says

"BUDDHIST LEADERS" IN VIETNAM

One of the primary causes of our military involvement in Vietnam today was the communist linked revolutionary uprising three years ago which overthrew the late President Diem of Vietnam. Assuming the guise of "Buddhists," these revolutionaries bamboozled many Western observers who should have known better, so that we stood idly by while our good friend Diem was deposed and atrociously murdered, and even helped protect some of the rebels from just punishment.

The drastic weakening of the South Vietnamese government and army which resulted from Diem's overthrow in 1963 brought the communist Viet Cong to the threshold of victory. Only our massive troop intervention has so far prevented that victory.

Now the communists and their allies, again assuming the "Buddhist" disguise, have tried the same trick again, hoping to complete the destruction of South Vietnam from within.

True Buddhism is a religion of peace and contemplation. It has nothing whatever to do with leading street mobs and turning pagodas into fortresses, or the sick self destruction of fanatical dupes. The majority of the people of South Vietnam are Buddhists, but they have shown little enthusiasm for this latest civil strife.

Using a big lie technique similar in principle to that used by Hitler to seize control of Germany, the so-called "Buddhist leaders" are seeking naked power under cover of fraudulent spiritual motives. Hitler exploited the fear and loathing of decent Germans for terror tactics to install a terror of his own, the scars of which the German people will bear for centuries. Whether or not this technique will work in South Vietnam remains a question. There are encouraging signs that it won't if our winless diplomats and duped pundits are withdrawn. HLH

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Five successive times the House Armed Services Committee was called to meet during the past weeks to ok a massive new military construction bill. But each time the committee meeting was called off. Simultaneously house floor debate on an $18 billion procurement bill for military weapons was also postponed.

The official reason was the absence of the committee's silvermaned chairman, Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S. C., reportedly hospitalized by bursitis.

Real truth, however, is that Rivers has been drying out from a drunk. It was so serious that the chairman of the armed services committee had to be taken to the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

This is not the first time he has been there. The navy has been good enough, on various previous occasions, to pick up the gentleman from South Carolina in an ambulance and dry him out. Sometimes he has been found in his office on Monday mornings surrounded by empty bottles, after a drinking weekend.

Sometimes he has been in such a stupor that essential parts of his clothing were missing and he did not appear to know it.

Members of his staff, at times, have been detailed to watch him and try to sober him up. It has been an almost impossible job. He has eaten oranges like an animals, peel and all, then spewed them all out all over his face. One member of his staff did her best for a day and a half, then gave up. She called the naval ambulance.

MENDEL'S BROKEN PLEDGE

Rivers comes from Charleston, S. C., where the Civil War started, an area proud of its history. And when he assumed the chairmanship of the House Armed Services Committee, other Democrats on that committee did their best to induce him to go on the wagon. Rep. Edward Herbert of New Orleans -- No. 3 man on the armed services committee -- announced to friends that Mendel's drinking days were over.

Most of the time, Mendel carried out his pledge. He has worked hard and with especial enthusiasm when it came to opposing and belaboring the secretary of defense. But approximately two weeks ago, just at the most crucial moment when the $17.8 billion military authorization bill was ready for floor debate, the chairman disappeared.

Other committee members have been very secretive. It isn't pleasant for them to talk about their chairman's personal problems, nor for this column to write about them. However, when nearly $18 billion are involved, together with the defense of the nation, it's important to examine the mental or physical instability of the man who masterminds military law, especially because Rivers has appended a 106-page report to the defense procurement bill, which verbally spews -- not orange peel - venom, in the face of Secretary McNamara.

The report refers to the secretary of defense as "incapable of self - examination" and declares: "If congress is the one to take the helm in this case, then we'll do it. We will continue to . . . exercise surveillance over the Pentagon. . Congress must call the shots... We intend to return to Congress its rightful place in the over - all decision - making process in military matters.

"The Pentagon is absolutely dominated by a Caesar," spewed the congressman who at the time the report was published was so dead drunk he had to be taken to a hospital under the supervision of that Caesar.

ABSENT LEADER OF MARCH

The above diatribe against the secretary of defense was in connection with McNamara's decision to phase out the B-58, the supersonic bomber, on the ground that it is now replaced by missiles.

And putting River's judgment in direct opposition to that of the secretary of defense, Rivers added almost a billion dollars-$931 million -- to the defense department's bill to pay for three programs which McNamara doesn't want. They are:

1. Continuation of the B-58; 2, Development of an anti-missile missile system; and 3, Nuclear-powered surface vessels for the navy.

"Again this year," Chairman Rivers spewed at McNamara his 106-page report, "the committee must attempt to alert the house to the fact that power in the past has moved - on tiptoes - from Capitol Hill to the Pentagon and, once there, has reached back a friendly hand and issued a smiling invitation to come on over and watch the computers work.

"The committee intends to play the tune to which the legitimate power of congress will march back up Capitol Hill."

But the congressman supposed to lead this march just wasn't around to lead it. During two weeks, his committee clerk called meeting after meeting with full expectation that the leader would be back, and lead the debate on the house floor. After all, June 30, the end of the fiscal year, is approaching. Only two weeks remain to pass the bill, otherwise, all pay to the far-flung fighting officers and men of the United States, including the $1 billion pay raise which Rivers had voted over McNamara's and LBJ's heads, could be in jeopardy.

But the chairman, so virile on the written page, wasn't around to lead the march. He was in the Bethesda Naval Hospital sobering up from a drunk which according to all medical experts must inevitably affect the patient's judgment.

Note: The Armed Services Committee will meet again today (June 14) in the hope that its leader is back and prepared to lead the march back to Capitol Hill.

BELL CITY -- Three candelabra, each holding seven to 14 lighted candles, rose above tall baskets holding arrangements of white gladioli and illuminated the setting at Bell City Methodist church for the wedding of Miss Karen Kay Dunn and Joseph Clyde Jenkins, Jr. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan H. Dunn, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Jenkins, Painton.

Mrs. Stanley Odom was organist, accompanying her son, Jim Stan Odom of Cahokia, Ill., who sang. The Rev. Frank Black officiated at the event of June 5.

Escorted to the altar by her father who gave her in marriage, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta with diminutive covered buttons closing the tightly-fitted bodice and long-tapered sleeves. Lace medallions traced by seed pearls appeared at the scooped neckline and over the bodice, and the chiffon over taffeta skirt was also scattered with the medallions. Her full-length train was bordered by the lace. A chiffon rolled rose caught her veil of illusion and held it to her hair.

House Tumbles Into Hole in Quarry

KANSAS CITY, Kan. AP -- A house plunged into a widening hole above an abandoned underground quarry Monday night in the Argentine district.

The attached garage had toppled into the hole earlier, falling about 90 feet to the floor of the old limestone mine. The house stopped about 50 feet down.

Four other houses are threatened by crevices and sink holes. All the residents have moved out. Additional families are planning to move since Monday night's incident.

Mr. and Mrs. Monty Flack, owners of the house in the hole, had removed only the items they could carry easily and by Monday they didn't dare enter the house.

They lost an elaborate electric train layout, a toy box, curtains, appliances and some furniture.

The ceiling of the old quarry began collapsing about 18 months ago. About 50 houses are located over the quarry.

House Tumbles Into Hole in Quarry

KANSAS CITY, Kan. AP -- A house plunged into a widening hole above an abandoned underground quarry Monday night in the Argentine district.

The attached garage had toppled into the hole earlier, falling about 90 feet to the floor of the old limestone mine. The house stopped about 50 feet down.

Four other houses are threatened by crevices and sinkholes. All the residents have moved out. Additional families are planning to move since Monday night's incident.

Mr. and Mrs. Monty Flack, owners of the house in the hole, had removed only the items they could carry easily and by Monday they didn't dare enter the house.

They lost an elaborate electric train layout, a toy box, curtains, appliances and some furniture.

The ceiling of the old quarry began collapsing about 18 months ago. About 50 houses are located over the quarry.

The life expectancy of American males in 1920 was only 54.09 years.

Automobile production utilizes 21 per cent of all steel, 61 per cent of the rubber and 49 per cent of the lead manufactured annually in the nation.

Cards-Mets Split, Boyer Homers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The host also won the first game in the Mets-Cards twin bill as New York's Bob Taylor slammed a three-run homer in the sixth to provide a 5-2 decision. The Cards took the second game 4-1 with an offense triggered by Lou Brock.

Kansas City and St. Louis split a pair of twi- night doubleheaders Monday. The A's played host to Minnesota and won the first game 5-2 behind the seven-hit pitching of Jim Hunter, but the Twins bounced back to take the second contest, 6-1, on Jim Perry's 6-hitter.

The action in Kansas City was highlighted by the announcement of a three-for-three trade by the A's with the Boston Red Sox. The A's sent pitchers Rollie Sheldon and John Wyatt and outfielder Jose Tartabull to the Red Sox in exchange for outfielder Jim Gosger and pitchers Ken Sanders and Guido Grilli. The trade was completed just 48-hours before Wednesday night's deadline.

The A's sacked the first game victory in the second inning when they got to Camilo Pascual for three hits and four runs. Ernie Fazio drove in the first run on an infield hit and Hunter hit a bases - loaded double.

Kansas City scored its last run in the sixth on singles by Phil Roof, Hunter and Campy Campaneris.

Don Mincher's pop-fly single drove in the Twins first run in the sixth and singled again in the eighth to score Ceser Tovar who had doubled to open the inning.

Minnesota scored single runs in the first, third and seventh, and tallied three times in the fifth, collecting a total of 13-hits off loser Paul Lindblad and reliever Jim Dickson. The A's only score came in the first when Campaneris singled and advanced on a wild pitch, an infield out and scored on another infield out.

St. Louis did all of its scoring against winning pitcher Bob Shaw in the first inning on Phil Gagliano's triple, singles by Curt Flood and Tito Francona, and an infield out.

The Mets wrapped it up in the sixth on Taylor's three-run shot, but added single runs in the seventh and eighth innings to ice their cake.

The Cards also scored first in the second game, but were never seriously threatened as Ray Washburn, Hal Woodeschick and Art Mahaffey held the Mets to seven well scattered hits. The victory went to Washburn who pitched 6 2-3 innings before tiring.

Francono singled in the first run; Brock tripled in the third and scored in a passed ball, and singled in the eighth, stole second and scored on Gagliano's single. The Cards added another run in the ninth.

Key Boyer homered for the Mets only run in the eighth.

The Cards will send Tracy Stallard against New York's Dick Rusteck tonight and the A's will start Chuck Dobson against Dave Boswell of the Twins.

Baltimore Blanks Yankees

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Minnie Rojas' "come out and get it" pitch has American League hitters biting off more than they can chew.

The rookie California pitcher, who has been accused of showing up Stu Miller as a speed-merchant, blanked Chicago for six innings Monday night as the Angels salvaged a doubleheader split by edging the White Sox 2-1.

Rojas has started two games and won both since his call-up from the Angels' Seattle farm club last month while compiling a sharp 1.35 earned run average in seven appearance over-all. He also has alienated opposing hitters with his teasing delivery.

"He's got three pitches -- slower and 'come out and get it,' " one frustrated slugger has said of the 27-year-old right-hander, whom the Angels purchased from a Mexican League club earlier in the year for the bargain price of $2,500.

"How can he expect to pitch up here with junk like that," muttered another hitter recently after a losing battle with Rojas' change-up.

The White Sox, who had won the rain-delayed first game 5-1, reached Rojas for only four hits and no runs until the seventh inning. Then, after making J. C. Martin his sixth strikeout victim, Rojas gave up a single to Sox newcomer Jerry Adair, hit Floyd Robinson with a pitch and walked Smoky Burgiss, filling the bases.

Bob Lee then replaced Rojas and got out of the jam when left fielder Willie Smith grabbed John Romano's liner and doubled Adair at the plate with a rifle throw.

Elsewhere, Frank Robinson's three-run homer and a two-run shot by Brooks Robinson led Baltimore past New York 8-0, Detroit nipped Washington, 4-3.

Frank Malzone gave Rojas a 1-0 lead with a fifth-inning homer, then singled in the ninth and scored on Bobby Knoop's triple. That run proved to be the winner when the White Sox scored in the last of the ninth.

Jack Lamabe stopped the Angels on five hits in the first game, running his record to 4-2, while Don Buford led the Chicago attack with a run-scoring single and three-run double. The victory ended a five-game losing string for the White Sox.

Buford collected five hits in the doubleheader and Adair, traded to the Sox from Baltimore Sunday for reliever Eddie Fisher, had four.

Baltimore's rampaging Robinsons powered the Orioles to their 13th victory in the 1st 16 games while Jim Palmer and reliever Eddie Watt shackled the Yankees on three hits. Frank Robinson smashed his 16th homer in the third inning off loser Al Downing and Brooks Robinson hit No. 10 in the seventh off Pedro Ramos.

Leads Pirates

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that National League pitchers have turned Donn Clendenon's power off, they've turned Roberto Clemente;s on. And it's proved a shocking experience for them.

Billy McCool was the latest victim of the Clemente explosion as the Pittsburgh star lashed a three-run homer that gave the Pirates a 5-4 victory over Cincinnati Monday night.

The homer was the ninth for the flashy right fielder this season, just one short of his total last year, and the runs batted in gave him 36 for the season, fifth best in the league and more than half as many as the 65 he had in 1965.

Why the sudden power surge for Clemente who has built three batting championships on hits that stay inside the park?

"Clendenon isn't like he was last year," the 31-year-old Puerto Rican explained after helping the Reds to their 14th loss in 18 games. "If he comes back again, I'll start punching the ball again. But I've been taking a good cut and swinging hard."

Clendenon was the Pirates' second leading slugger last year has has gotten off to a slow start with only four homers and 22 runs driven in.

Clemente, meanwhile, is headed for his best slugging year. In 11 major league seasons he's averaged 11 homers and 66 RBI while batting .389.

This season is just slightly more than one-third gone, and he's rapidly approaching those figures as well as hitting. 339, the second best average in the league.

His latest effort was a dramatic performance. McCool had just relieved starter Joey Jay in the eighth inning, coming on with two men aboard and the Reds leading 4-2.

McCool worked the count to 1-2 before Clemente, a right-handed batter, drove the ball into the upper right field stands.

Elsewhere in the NL, San Francisco crushed Chicago 8-0, Houston trimmed Los Angeles 9-6 in 11 innings, Philadelphia swept Atlanta 6-2 and 6-4.

Before Clemente's homer, the Reds had built their 4-2 lead on Vada Pinson's three-run homer in the fourth inning and his run-scoring single in the fifth.

Gaylord Perry, making his first start in 17 days, allowed the Cubs only three hits in seven innings. He was supported by San Francisco's six - run third, three of the runs coming on Ollie Brown's double.

Joe Morgan tripled across two runs and scored on Sonny Jackson's single in the 11th inning for Houston's triumph over Los Angeles. The Astros had exploded for six runs in the eighth inning, three on Felix Mantilla's homer, and a 6-4 lead, but the Dodgers tied it on Tommy Davis' homer and Willie Davis' run-producing single.

Larry Jackson pitched a four-hitter in Philadelphia's opening-game victory over Atlanta. Clay Dalrymple sparked the Phillies' attack with a homer and a single, driving in three runs.

Jack Brandt triggered the Phillies in the second game, hitting a homer in the third and tripling across the first run in a five-run fifth. Rich Allen added a two - run double in the fifth.

Red-Sox In Six Player Swap

BOSTON AP -- The lowly Boston Red Sox and the Kansas City Athletics, striving to trade their way up in the American League standings, have completed a six-player swap which involved an outfielder and two pitchers from each team.

The Red Sox, seeking a starting pitcher, acquired right-hander Rollie Sheldon, relief pitcher John Wyatt and outfielder Jose Tartabull in Monday night's trade which came just 48 hours before the Wednesday midnight trading deadline.

The Athletics received outfielder Jim Gosger and a pair of relief pitchers - Ken Sanders, who was drafted from Kansas City last winter, and Guido Grilli, a left - hander who boasts a 3-0 record with Boston's Toronto farm team in the International League.

Just four days ago, the Athletics completed a multiplayer swap with the New York Yankees, picking up pitchers Bill Stafford and Gil Blanco and outfielder Roger Repoz in exchange for pitcher Fred Talbot and left - handed hitting catcher Bill Bryan.

Blanco was assigned to the A's Southern League farm club at Mobile.

The Red Sox recently traded its one-time reliefface, Dick Radatz, to the Cleveland Indians for pitchers Don McMahon and Lee Stange.

OUTDOOR TIPS

THIRTEEN POUND TROUT FROM BENNETT SPRING

LEBANON -- The biggest trout caught in Missouri so far this year was a 13-pound rainbow taken at Bennett Spring State Park by Robert R. Baum of Kansas City.

Baum's lunker was just 12 ounces short of the official Missouri record for rainbow trout. The record is a 13-pound, 12-ounce fish caught in 1960, also at Bennett Springs.

Baum caught his traut on a natural cheese bait at the confluence of the spring branch and the Niangua River. Baum, an occasional visitor to the park, was on a two-day fishing trip to Bennett Spring.

Warren Davis, concessionaire, said Baum is the 164th member of the lunker club so far this year. The lunker club at Bennett Spring is open to any angler who catches a trout weighing three pounds or more.

RABBIT, SQUIRREL ARE LEGAL GAME AGAIN

JEFFERSON CITY -- Missouri's two favorite hunting seasons have opened.

Although something is in season all year round in Missouri, it isn't until May 30 and the opening of squirrel and rabbit hunting for the year that hunters start buying ammunition.

Other seasons attract more attention. Deer season in Missouri is cause for much publicity, story-telling and target practice. Waterfowl seasons draw hunters out in all weather and take them great distances across the state. Hunters practice for weeks on turkey calls and scout likely patches of forest with great devotion to the task.

But more hunters go out more for rabbits and have more success on rabbits than on any other game Missouri has. Squirrels are close behind rabbits in popularity.

And the rabbit and squirrel seasons are long. Rabbits are legal game from May 30 until the following March 1 with a daily and possession limit of 10. The squirrel season is open from May 30 through Dec. 31 and limits are six a day and 12 in possession.

Late spring and summer hunting is better than most hunters would believe. For one thing, the young animals are tender and go well in a frying pan. For another, the weather is warm and shirtsleeves are the order of the season. Another reason, if one is needed, is that it has been three months since rabbits could be hunted and rim-fire enthusiasts get tired of punching holes in paper.

Still another reason is that rabbits and squirrels are Missouri's favorite game animals and the time of year isn't all that critical anyway.

CONSERVATION DEPT. GETS NATIONAL AWARD

JEFFERSON CITY -- The Missouri Conservationist is the nation's best state conservation department magazine and has been for at least two years.

That is the opinion of impartial judges in an international competition sponsored by the American Association for Conservation Information (AACI).

The Conservationist was one of three Missouri Conservation Department informational projects to be awarded first place in competition. Awards were announced at Hot Springs, Ark., June 7. The Conservationist also won first place in last year's competition.

The Missouri Conservation Department also won first place in categories for miscellaneous publications, with its 1965 annual report. "The Long Look," and for black and white photography. Last year, two Missouri publications tied for first place, making this year's win the third in two years in that category.

Missouri's entry in the photography category was a series of black and white prints of color photos. The series, about turkey hunting ran as a color feature in the April, 1966, issue of the Conservationist.

The Missouri department entered five of the nine categories in this year's competition.

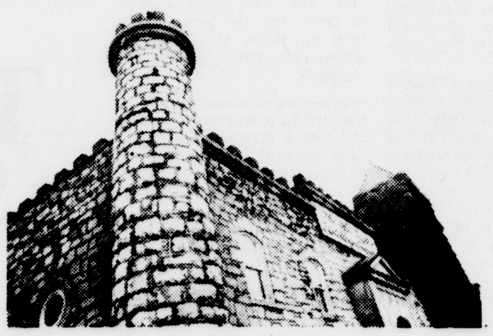
Photographed in Kentucky at the Old Taylor Distillery


Why is our Kentucky home a castle?
Back in 1887, Colonel Edmund H. Taylor, Jr., set out to make a Bourbon that would honor his name long after his time.
He began by seeking out a special kind of water: limestone spring water. This water has a unique flavor—a tantalizing taste that it takes on as it bubbles up through limestone groundrock.
He found his spring near Frankfort. And there he built his distillery.
Built it to last...in the form of a castle made of the very limestone that was to give his water its intriguing flavor.
If you're looking for a truly inspired Bourbon, look to the castle.
That's where the limestone water bubbles up for Old Taylor.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The host also won the first game in the Mets-Cards twin bill as New York's Bob Taylor slammed a three-run homer in the sixth to provide a 5-2 decision. The Cards took the second game 4-1 with an offense triggered by Lou Brock.

Kansas City and St. Louis split a pair of twi- night doubleheaders Monday. The A's played host to Minnesota and won the first game 5-2 behind the seven-hit pitching of Jim Hunter, but the Twins bounced back to take the second contest, 6-1, on Jim Perry's 6-hitter.

The action in Kansas City was highlighted by the announcement of a three-for-three trade by the A's with the Boston Red Sox. The A's sent pitchers Rollie Sheldon and John Wyatt and outfielder Jose Tartabull to the Red Sox in exchange for outfielder Jim Gosger and pitchers Ken Sanders and Guido Grilli. The trade was completed just 48-hours before Wednesday night's deadline.

The A's sacked the first game victory in the second inning when they got to Camilo Pascual for three hits and four runs. Ernie Fazio drove in the first run on an infield hit and Hunter hit a bases - loaded double.

Kansas City scored its last run in the sixth on singles by Phil Roof, Hunter and Campy Campaneris.

Don Mincher's pop-fly single drove in the Twins first run in the sixth and singled again in the eighth to score Ceser Tovar who had doubled to open the inning.

Minnesota scored single runs in the first, third and seventh, and tallied three times in the fifth, collecting a total of 13-hits off loser Paul Lindblad and reliever Jim Dickson. The A's only score came in the first when Campaneris singled and advanced on a wild pitch, an infield out and scored on another infield out.

St. Louis did all of its scoring against winning pitcher Bob Shaw in the first inning on Phil Gagliano's triple, singles by Curt Flood and Tito Francona, and an infield out.

The Mets wrapped it up in the sixth on Taylor's three-run shot, but added single runs in the seventh and eighth innings to ice their cake.

The Cards also scored first in the second game, but were never seriously threatened as Ray Washburn, Hal Woodeschick and Art Mahaffey held the Mets to seven well scattered hits. The victory went to Washburn who pitched 6 2-3 innings before tiring.

Francono singled in the first run; Brock tripled in the third and scored in a passed ball, and singled in the eighth, stole second and scored on Gagliano's single. The Cards added another run in the ninth.

Key Boyer homered for the Mets only run in the eighth.

The Cards will send Tracy Stallard against New York's Dick Rusteck tonight and the A's will start Chuck Dobson against Dave Boswell of the Twins.

Baltimore Blanks Yankees

Minnie Rojas' "come out and get it" pitch has American League hitters biting off more than they can chew.

The rookie California pitcher, who has been accused of showing up Stu Miller as a speed-merchant, blanked Chicago for six innings Monday night as the Angels salvaged a doubleheader split by edging the White Sox 2-1.

Rojas has started two games and won both since his call-up from the Angels' Seattle farm club last month while compiling a sharp 1.35 earned run average in seven appearance over-all. He also has alienated opposing hitters with his teasing delivery.

"He's got three pitches -- slower and 'come out and get it,' " one frustrated slugger has said of the 27-year-old right-hander, whom the Angels purchased from a Mexican League club earlier in the year for the bargain price of $2,500.

"How can he expect to pitch up here with junk like that," muttered another hitter recently after a losing battle with Rojas' change-up.

The White Sox, who had won the rain-delayed first game 5-1, reached Rojas for only four hits and no runs until the seventh inning. Then, after making J. C. Martin his sixth strikeout victim, Rojas gave up a single to Sox newcomer Jerry Adair, hit Floyd Robinson with a pitch and walked Smoky Burgiss, filling the bases.

Elsewhere, Frank Robinson's three-run homer and a two-run shot by Brooks Robinson led Baltimore past New York 8-0, Detroit nipped Washington, 4-3.

Frank Malzone gave Rojas a 1-0 lead with a fifth-inning homer, then singled in the ninth and scored on Bobby Knoop's triple. That run proved to be the winner when the White Sox scored in the last of the ninth.

Jack Lamabe stopped the Angels on five hits in the first game, running his record to 4-2, while Don Buford led the Chicago attack with a run-scoring single and three-run double. The victory ended a five-game losing string for the White Sox.

Buford collected five hits in the doubleheader and Adair, traded to the Sox from Baltimore Sunday for reliever Eddie Fisher, had four.

Leads Pirates

Now that National League pitchers have turned Donn Clendenon's power off, they've turned Roberto Clemente;s on. And it's proved a shocking experience for them.

Billy McCool was the latest victim of the Clemente explosion as the Pittsburgh star lashed a three-run homer that gave the Pirates a 5-4 victory over Cincinnati Monday night.

The homer was the ninth for the flashy right fielder this season, just one short of his total last year, and the runs batted in gave him 36 for the season, fifth best in the league and more than half as many as the 65 he had in 1965.

Why the sudden power surge for Clemente who has built three batting championships on hits that stay inside the park?

"Clendenon isn't like he was last year," the 31-year-old Puerto Rican explained after helping the Reds to their 14th loss in 18 games. "If he comes back again, I'll start punching the ball again. But I've been taking a good cut and swinging hard."

Clendenon was the Pirates' second leading slugger last year has has gotten off to a slow start with only four homers and 22 runs driven in.

Clemente, meanwhile, is headed for his best slugging year. In 11 major league seasons he's averaged 11 homers and 66 RBI while batting .289.

This season is just slightly more than one-third gone, and he's rapidly approaching those figures as well as hitting. 339, the second best average in the league.

McCool worked the count to 1-2 before Clemente, a right-handed batter, drove the ball into the upper right field stands.

Elsewhere in the NL, San Francisco crushed Chicago 8-0, Houston trimmed Los Angeles 9-6 in 11 innings, Philadelphia swept Atlanta 6-2 and 6-4.

Before Clemente's homer, the Reds had built their 4-2 lead on Vada Pinson's three-run homer in the fourth inning and his run-scoring single in the fifth.

Gaylord Perry, making his first start in 17 days, allowed the Cubs only three hits in seven innings. He was supported by San Francisco's six - run third, three of the runs coming on Ollie Brown's double.

Joe Morgan tripled across two runs and scored on Sonny Jackson's single in the 11th inning for Houston's triumph over Los Angeles. The Astros had exploded for six runs in the eighth inning, three on Felix Mantilla's homer, and a 6-4 lead, but the Dodgers tied it on Tommy Davis' homer and Willie Davis' run-producing single.

Larry Jackson pitched a four-hitter in Philadelphia's opening-game victory over Atlanta. Clay Dalrymple sparked the Phillies' attack with a homer and a single, driving in three runs.

Jack Brandt triggered the Phillies in the second game, hitting a homer in the third and tripling across the first run in a five-run fifth. Rich Allen added a two - run double in the fifth.

Red-Sox In Six Player Swap

BOSTON AP -- The lowly Boston Red Sox and the Kansas City Athletics, striving to trade their way up in the American League standings, have completed a six-player swap which involved an outfielder and two pitchers from each team.

The Red Sox, seeking a starting pitcher, acquired right-hander Rollie Sheldon, relief pitcher John Wyatt and outfielder Jose Tartabull in Monday night's trade which came just 48 hours before the Wednesday midnight trading deadline.

Blanco was assigned to the A's Southern League farm club at Mobile.

OUTDOOR TIPS

THIRTEEN POUND TROUT FROM BENNETT SPRING

LEBANON -- The biggest trout caught in Missouri so far this year was a 13-pound rainbow taken at Bennett Spring State Park by Robert R. Baum of Kansas City.

Baum's lunker was just 12 ounces short of the official Missouri record for rainbow trout. The record is a 13-pound, 12-ounce fish caught in 1960, also at Bennett Springs.

Baum caught his traut on a natural cheese bait at the confluence of the spring branch and the Niangua River. Baum, an occasional visitor to the park, was on a two-day fishing trip to Bennett Spring.

Warren Davis, concessionaire, said Baum is the 164th member of the lunker club so far this year. The lunker club at Bennett Spring is open to any angler who catches a trout weighing three pounds or more.

RABBIT, SQUIRREL ARE LEGAL GAME AGAIN

JEFFERSON CITY -- Missouri's two favorite hunting seasons have opened.

Although something is in season all year round in Missouri, it isn't until May 30 and the opening of squirrel and rabbit hunting for the year that hunters start buying ammunition.

Other seasons attract more attention. Deer season in Missouri is cause for much publicity, story-telling and target practice. Waterfowl seasons draw hunters out in all weather and take them great distances across the state. Hunters practice for weeks on turkey calls and scout likely patches of forest with great devotion to the task.

But more hunters go out more for rabbits and have more success on rabbits than on any other game Missouri has. Squirrels are close behind rabbits in popularity.

And the rabbit and squirrel seasons are long. Rabbits are legal game from May 30 until the following March 1 with a daily and possession limit of 10. The squirrel season is open from May 30 through Dec. 31 and limits are six a day and 12 in possession.

Late spring and summer hunting is better than most hunters would believe. For one thing, the young animals are tender and go well in a frying pan. For another, the weather is warm and shirtsleeves are the order of the season. Another reason, if one is needed, is that it has been three months since rabbits could be hunted and rim-fire enthusiasts get tired of punching holes in paper.

Still another reason is that rabbits and squirrels are Missouri's favorite game animals and the time of year isn't all that critical anyway.

CONSERVATION DEPT. GETS NATIONAL AWARD

JEFFERSON CITY -- The Missouri Conservationist is the nation's best state conservation department magazine and has been for at least two years.

That is the opinion of impartial judges in an international competition sponsored by the American Association for Conservation Information (AACI).

The Conservationist was one of three Missouri Conservation Department informational projects to be awarded first place in competition. Awards were announced at Hot Springs, Ark., June 7. The Conservationist also won first place in last year's competition.

The Missouri Conservation Department also won first place in categories for miscellaneous publications, with its 1965 annual report. "The Long Look," and for black and white photography. Last year, two Missouri publications tied for first place, making this year's win the third in two years in that category.

Missouri's entry in the photography category was a series of black and white prints of color photos. The series, about turkey hunting ran as a color feature in the April, 1966, issue of the Conservationist.

The Missouri department entered five of the nine categories in this year's competition.

Why is our Kentucky home a castle?
Back in 1887, Colonel Edmund H. Taylor, Jr., set out to make a Bourbon that would honor his name long after his time.
He began by seeking out a special kind of water: limestone spring water. This water has a unique flavor—a tantalizing taste that it takes on as it bubbles up through limestone groundrock.
He found his spring near Frankfort. And there he built his distillery.
Built it to last...in the form of a castle made of the very limestone that was to give his water its intriguing flavor.
If you're looking for a truly inspired Bourbon, look to the castle.
That's where the limestone water bubbles up for Old Taylor.

'Old Glory,' The Symbol Of Freedom

(Courtesy Tamm-Vogt Company)

"I swear, before the altar of God, eternal hostility to every form of tyranny over the mind of man."

These are the words of a great American patriot, Thomas Jefferson. At the time when a people who had declared their independence, struggled to found a nation, Mr. Jefferson's words summed up the feelings of Americans who were rallying to fight for their beliefs.

In the midst of this struggle, Old Glory was born. General Washington, standing at attention as the first Stars and Stripes flew at the head of the Continental Army, said, "We take the stars from Heaven, the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her, and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty."

The British ensign was flown in the colonies before the revolution. This flag was later modified . . . the red cross of Saint George and the white cross of Saint Andrew were shifted to the canton, with the field consisting of seven red and six white stripes representing the colonies. This was the Grand Union Flag. The colonies resented the British ensign more and more. Soon most of them flew their own banners.

The symbols on the first colonial flags were pine trees, anchors, rattlesnakes and other insignia commemorating the day-by-day struggles against the wilderness which was at every American's doorstep. The words cut out and sewn to these banners were Hope, Liberty, Don't Tread on Me, Appeal to Heaven . . . signifying the dreams of freedom and nationhood.

The Gadsden Flag was one of the most popular colonial flags. It was emblazoned with a coiled rattlesnake on a yellow field over the words Don't Tread on Me.

Our first sea-going flag flew over the cruisers commissioned by General Washington. This flag consisted of a green pine tree standing tall and stalwart on a white field with the legend An Appeal to Heaven.

THE MOULTRIE FLAG

The first distinctive American flag to be displayed in the South flew over the fort on Sullivan's Island in the channel at Charleston, South Carolina, when the British fleet attacked on June 28, 1776. The fort, defended by Colonel William Moultrie and his small garrison of regulars and militiamen, withstood the attack so ably, the British were forced to withdraw. This was believed to have postponed a British invasion of the South for a long while. From the blue uniforms of the garrison and the white crescents which the men wore on their caps came the incentive for the design of the Moultrie Flag. The large blue field has a white crescent and the cutout letters "Liberty" sewn across the bottom of the field.

Rhode Island was one of the first states to create its own flag. It bears an anchor on a white field with the word Hope reversed on a blue pennant or scroll . . . and 13 white stars on a blue canton.

On June 14, 1777, Congress acted to straighten out the confusion. A colonial public relations expert and proponent of a symbol for American patriotism proposed the first Stars and Stripes . . . and Congress passed the flag resolution. It declared: "The flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, and that the Union be thirteen stars, white, in a blue field." From this resolution, the flag which has become the symbol of freedom the world over, came into being. According to legend, Betsy Ross, an expert needlewoman of Philadelphia, was asked in 1776 to design a national flag suggested by General Washington. The actual facts are obscure . . . and it was one of her descendants who brought the story to light in 1870.

On August 16, 1777, the Green Mountain Boys fought under the Bennington Flag. This was believed to be the first time the Stars and Stripes was displayed. The Bennington Flag had 13 stars and 13 stripes . . . and the figure 76 in the heart of the stars honored the year of American independence.

In January, 1781, the Third Maryland Regiment fought at Cowpens, South Carolina, and was under the banner of the first Stars and Stripes which fulfilled the flag resolution of 1777. This flag had 12 white stars in an oval and one in the center of the blue field . . . and seven red and six white stripes.

There are those who have dug into the available recorded data of the period . . . and have decided, perhaps rightly, that the Betsy Ross story is a myth. This may be true . . . but many a myth has outgrown its fiction and become hallowed among the recorded "truths" of history. Many a boy and girl has grown up loving the story of Betsy Ross and General George Washington, picturing the heroic general in full dress uniform visiting the little workshop of the humble needleworker of Philadelphia. This memory should not be destroyed . . . and with 180,000,000 Americans to tell it (and the number growing every day) there's no way to stop it, even if you try!

Betsy Ross' flag . . . with its circlet of stars . . . was to be short-lived. The Flag of 1795 changed the circle of stars to two parallel rows of horizontal stars . . . 15 stars in all . . . with 15 stripes. This was the first flag to fly over the capitol in Washington, D.C., and five presidents, Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe all served under it. Five new states were admitted to the Union but no change was made in the flag. Change was inevitable, however. As the number of states in the Union grew . . . so did their jealousies. When Congress passed a measure in 1818 . . . it established the flag as we know it today . . . thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white . . . that it shall have stars of white in a field of blue . . . and that one star be added to the flag for every state admitted to the Union.

CONFEDERATE FLAG

On March 4, 1861, a great change took place. The first flag of the Confederacy was adopted . . . destined to be one of the four Confederate flags which served as banners for the South during the War Between the States. The 1861 Flag had three wide horizontal stripes . . . red on top, white in the middle, red on the bottom. In the upper left corner of the flag . . . like the blue field of the U. S. Flag . . . was a field of blue with eight stars. The Battle Flag of the Confederacy, best known of the Southern flags, was known as The Southern Cross, and is the flag most remembered and used today. Two blue stripes with 13 stars extended across this flag from corner to corner . . . upper left to lower right and lower left to upper right with four red triangles in the openings.

The Confederate Flag of 1863 picked up the Battle Flag and used it as a canton on a flag of pure white . . . but this was soon dropped because it was sometimes misinterpreted as a flag of truce and also because calm days found the flag hanging loose and lifeless on its staff, a white cloth with no color to give it character.

FLAG SHAPE CHANGED

The Confederate Flag of 1864 changed the shape of the Battle Flag canton slightly and added a wide perpendicular red stripe on the right-hand border.

At this time there were pressures brought on President Lincoln to change the U. S. Flag, with its 34 stars which continued as the standard of the Northern states . . . but the President, looking forward to the days when the North and South would inevitably live in peace as the re-United States of America, steadfastly withstood them. Stars were never withdrawn from the flag when the Southern states withdrew from the Union.

When the war was over, new states were continually admitted . . . and by 1898 there were 45 stars in the field. Another was added for Oklahoma in 1907, Arizona and New Mexico in 1912 . . . and the 48-star flag served the nation through two world wars until Alaska became a state in 1959 and a new star was added . . . making 49. Later the same year, Hawaii came into the Union, and on July 4, 1960, the 50-star flag of today was born.

'Old Glory,' The Symbol Of Freedom

(Courtesy Tamm-Vogt Company)

"I swear, before the altar of God, eternal hostility to every form of tyranny over the mind of man."

These are the words of a great American patriot, Thomas Jefferson. At the time when a people who had declared their independence, struggled to found a nation, Mr. Jefferson's words summed up the feelings of Americans who were rallying to fight for their beliefs.

In the midst of this struggle, Old Glory was born. General Washington, standing at attention as the first Stars and Stripes flew at the head of the Continental Army, said, "We take the stars from Heaven, the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her, and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty."

The British ensign was flown in the colonies before the revolution. This flag was later modified . . . the red cross of Saint George and the white cross of Saint Andrew were shifted to the canton, with the field consisting of seven red and six white stripes representing the colonies. This was the Grand Union Flag. The colonies resented the British ensign more and more. Soon most of them flew their own banners.

The symbols on the first colonial flags were pine trees, anchors, rattlesnakes and other insignia commemorating the day-by-day struggles against the wilderness which was at every American's doorstep. The words cut out and sewn to these banners were Hope, Liberty, Don't Tread on Me, Appeal to Heaven . . . signifying the dreams of freedom and nationhood.

The Gadsden Flag was one of the most popular colonial flags. It was emblazoned with a coiled rattlesnake on a yellow field over the words Don't Tread on Me.

Our first sea-going flag flew over the cruisers commissioned by General Washington. This flag consisted of a green pine tree standing tall and stalwart on a white field with the legend An Appeal to Heaven.

THE MOULTRIE FLAG

The first distinctive American flag to be displayed in the South flew over the fort on Sullivan's Island in the channel at Charleston, South Carolina, when the British fleet attacked on June 28, 1776. The fort, defended by Colonel William Moultrie and his small garrison of regulars and militiamen, withstood the attack so ably, the British were forced to withdraw. This was believed to have postponed a British invasion of the South for a long while. From the blue uniforms of the garrison and the white crescents which the men wore on their caps came the incentive for the design of the Moultrie Flag. The large blue field has a white crescent and the cutout letters "Liberty" sewn across the bottom of the field.

Rhode Island was one of the first states to create its own flag. It bears an anchor on a white field with the word Hope reversed on a blue pennant or scroll . . . and 13 white stars on a blue canton.

On June 14, 1777, Congress acted to straighten out the confusion. A colonial public relations expert and proponent of a symbol for American patriotism proposed the first Stars and Stripes . . . and Congress passed the flag resolution. It declared: "The flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, and that the Union be thirteen stars, white, in a blue field." From this resolution, the flag which has become the symbol of freedom the world over, came into being. According to legend, Betsy Ross, an expert needlewoman of Philadelphia, was asked in 1776 to design a national flag suggested by General Washington. The actual facts are obscure . . . and it was one of her descendants who brought the story to light in 1870.

On August 16, 1777, the Green Mountain Boys fought under the Bennington Flag. This was believed to be the first time the Stars and Stripes was displayed. The Bennington Flag had 13 stars and 13 stripes . . . and the figure 76 in the heart of the stars honored the year of American independence.

In January, 1781, the Third Maryland Regiment fought at Cowpens, South Carolina, and was under the banner of the first Stars and Stripes which fulfilled the flag resolution of 1777. This flag had 12 white stars in an oval and one in the center of the blue field . . . and seven red and six white stripes.

There are those who have dug into the available recorded data of the period . . . and have decided, perhaps rightly, that the Betsy Ross story is a myth. This may be true . . . but many a myth has outgrown its fiction and become hallowed among the recorded "truths" of history. Many a boy and girl has grown up loving the story of Betsy Ross and General George Washington, picturing the heroic general in full dress uniform visiting the little workshop of the humble needleworker of Philadelphia. This memory should not be destroyed . . . and with 180,000,000 Americans to tell it (and the number growing every day) there's no way to stop it, even if you try!

Betsy Ross' flag . . . with its circlet of stars . . . was to be short-lived. The Flag of 1795 changed the circle of stars to two parallel rows of horizontal stars . . . 15 stars in all . . . with 15 stripes. This was the first flag to fly over the capitol in Washington, D.C., and five presidents, Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe all served under it. Five new states were admitted to the Union but no change was made in the flag. Change was inevitable, however. As the number of states in the Union grew . . . so did their jealousies. When Congress passed a measure in 1818 . . . it established the flag as we know it today . . . thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white . . . that it shall have stars of white in a field of blue . . . and that one star be added to the flag for every state admitted to the Union.

CONFEDERATE FLAG

On March 4, 1861, a great change took place. The first flag of the Confederacy was adopted . . . destined to be one of the four Confederate flags which served as banners for the South during the War Between the States. The 1861 Flag had three wide horizontal stripes . . . red on top, white in the middle, red on the bottom. In the upper left corner of the flag . . . like the blue field of the U. S. Flag . . . was a field of blue with eight stars. The Battle Flag of the Confederacy, best known of the Southern flags, was known as The Southern Cross, and is the flag most remembered and used today. Two blue stripes with 13 stars extended across this flag from corner to corner . . . upper left to lower right and lower left to upper right with four red triangles in the openings.

The Confederate Flag of 1863 picked up the Battle Flag and used it as a canton on a flag of pure white . . . but this was soon dropped because it was sometimes misinterpreted as a flag of truce and also because calm days found the flag hanging loose and lifeless on its staff, a white cloth with no color to give it character.

FLAG SHAPE CHANGED

The Confederate Flag of 1864 changed the shape of the Battle Flag canton slightly and added a wide perpendicular red stripe on the right-hand border.

At this time there were pressures brought on President Lincoln to change the U. S. Flag, with its 34 stars which continued as the standard of the Northern states . . . but the President, looking forward to the days when the North and South would inevitably live in peace as the re-United States of America, steadfastly withstood them. Stars were never withdrawn from the flag when the Southern states withdrew from the Union.

When the war was over, new states were continually admitted . . . and by 1898 there were 45 stars in the field. Another was added for Oklahoma in 1907, Arizona and New Mexico in 1912 . . . and the 48-star flag served the nation through two world wars until Alaska became a state in 1959 and a new star was added . . . making 49. Later the same year, Hawaii came into the Union, and on July 4, 1960, the 50-star flag of today was born.

What Medicare Means To You

EDITORS NOTE -- There are some 19 million elderly Americans lined up to take advantage of the provisions of medicare when it goes into effect July 1. The following first of four articles tells what this will mean to hospitals and hospital facilities throughout the country.

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Science Writer

Many of the nation's hospitals, some of them already crowded, are braced for an expected increase in elderly patients July 1 when medicare goes into effect.

In short, elderly Americans will be able to compete for hospital beds on a large scale for the first time -- and private patients may find it tougher to get into the hospitals they want in some areas.

Across the nation, an Associated Press survey shows doctors are telling hospital administrators that patients 65 and over have been saving up their ailments until the bill could be paid by medicare.

But no one agrees on how large an increase there will be -- and as yet hard evidence, such as room and bed reservations, is lacking to back up the predictions.

More than 19 million elderly Americans are ready to take advantage of medicare.

July 1 brings only the first of two medicare deadlines. On that day hospital insurance begins for all who have signed up, and optional medical insurance becomes effective for those who decided to pay the $36 a year it will cost. So far 17.2 million or 90 per cent of those eligible have signed up for the doctor-bill, medical-service insurance.

The second medicare deadline comes Jan. 1, 1967, when nursing home benefits begin.

The immediate problem is July 1. Have people saved up their ills to be treated under medicare? Will there be enough hospital beds to hold them? If there aren't who gets priority?

President Johnson received a report from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare which will operate medicare, and that report cited what will be local shortages in hospital beds and facilities.

It is not expected, the department said, that hospital loads would be increased more than some 5 per cent over the nation.

"However, there is already overcrowding of hospital facilities in some areas, and some of the best hospitals in certain parts of the country are overcrowded even though other facilities in the same area are not," the report said.

There are two essential facts behind whatever happens July 1. First, summertime is the slow period in most hospitals, with people putting off surgery when possible until after vacation periods. Second, most medical problems of the elderly require more or less immediate care. Doctors often point out that elective operations before the age of 50 or 55, become operations of necessity afterward.

Still there are some ailments that some of the elderly have lived with, which though not critical, can now be treated and paid for under medicare -- things like cataracts, varicose veins, hemorrhoids, hernias, ear trouble.

That leads some hospital administrators like Richard J. Hancock of Lawrence & Memorial Hospital, New London, Conn., to anticipate that the increased demands will be in terms of elective surgery and treatment.

Explained Dr. John H. Knowles, general director of Boston's Massachusetts General Hospital:

"The increase will feed on itself. As people learn more about how the program means easy access to hospitals, they will say: 'Maybe I should at least go and see whether something can be done with this sore hip that's been bothering me for years.' Old people used to be reluctant to go to a hospital because they equated it with impending death. Now they have learned more about the safety of medicine.

"Once they see they don't need to worry that they may go from the hospital to the poorhouse, more and more will come to the hospitals. There's just no way of estimating how great the increase will be."

In New England, there is almost unanimous agreement among hospitals and doctors queries that people with ailments that are not acute were saving them up for July 1.

Guesses ranged up to 20 per cent in increased case load, and administrators estimated it would take three months to a year to clear the backlog.

But most hospitals expected to be able to handle the influx of cases, and some felt that the influx in their areas would be slight.

ONE-HOUSE LEGISLATURE DISCUSSED NEXT SESSION

A one-house legislature for Missouri? This plan has been proposed on several occasions and is one of the favorite topics of political scientists, but to become a reality it probably will have to be passed by the initiative of the people.

Nevertheless, a bill proposing such a reorganization will certainly be introduced in the next session of the General Assembly by Sen. A. Clifford Jones (R-Ladue) and based on past experience will probably receive wide acclaim from newspapers and some state officials.

Sen. Jones feels that a unicameral legislature could act as a "municipal government" of a state, and "like a municipal government it would have to meet problems immediately."

He berated the Governor for submitted matters to the recent special session of the Legislature which were not real emergencies and pointed out that this is one of the major faults of state government.

"The basic problem is that the present two houses only meet for six months out of every two years and solve some problems, but leave most of the problems undone."

In addition, he feels a unicameral legislature would be able to give more time to the study of legislative proposals if it were to meet the year-round and be staffed with adequate assistants to handle state problems.

"Right now, we rush bills out of committee in order to get them to the other house for consideration, and many bills are passed without being read by many members of the Legislature," he said.

He added that fewer bills probably would be passed, but that these would constitute sounder legislation than the many bills which are approved by the present two houses.

Statewide support of a unicameral legislature was shown in 1944 when voters defeated a proposed one-house system by only a few thousand votes. The election was called by an initiative petition after the Constitutional Convention rejected the proposal. Supporters of the measure had even withdrawn their backing to avoid conflict with the new Constitution and were fighting for defeat of a unicameral legislature, but about 47 per cent of the voters indicated they wanted it anyway.

Sen. Albert Spradling (D-Cape Girardeau), who opposes a unicameral legisalture, pointed out that with only one house, and all members elected for the same terms, the pressure from lobbying groups would be detrimental to forthcoming legislation and state interests.

Lobbyists perform a needed service to the Legislature, he said, but the pressure is great enough and inferred that many measure had been forced on House members, who serve for only two years, and had to be checked by the Senate, whose four-year members he feels are less susceptible to outside pressure.

Many lobbying groups seem to feel that certain legislation must be passed "right now," and this might happen with a unicameral legislature, since there would be no second body to give it consideration, Spradling said.

Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, (D-Columbia) sees advantages to both one-house and two-house systems; however, he said, two houses have enough trouble straightening out legislative problems, and that two houses probably are more effective in "straining the bugs out of legislation."

To make a unicameral system work he feels the public would have to be willing to pay legislators adequate salaries, which he said could parallel those of U. S. Congressmen ($25,000 a year), and provide full-time legislative staffs for each committiee.

"Under these circumstances, a one-house system wouldn't be too bad," Vanlandingham said, but he still questioned whether the people could be properly represented with fewer members in only one house.

To Poll Opinions In SEMO Counties

Scott County residents will have a chance to express their opinions on highway beautification, automobile insurance and higher education in a survey conducted by the University of Missouri during the rest of this month and the first week of July.

Representatives of the Public Opinions Survey Unit in the Research Center of the M.U. School of Business and Public Administration are residents of 74 Missouri counties and the City of St. Louis.

The interviews, which will also be conducted in New Madrid, Pemiscot, Dunklin, and Stoddard Counties, consist of a series of questions about Missouri's political opinions and attitudes.

The survey is under the direction of Dr. David C. Leege, assistant professor of political science and faculty research assistant. A similar survey, in another area of public opinion, was held in the same counties a year ago.

Dr. Leege said the survey results are intended primarily for scholarly research and teaching purposes and the survey is directed at a representative sample of 1,200 Missouri residents throughout the state. The 110 interviewers conducting the survey will be identified by cards from the Public Opinion Survey Unit.

65+ COMPLEMENTARY PROGRAM

A special plan of medical-surgical and health benefits protection to enable people over age 65 to complement and complete the Supplementary Medical Insurance Benefits of the Federal Medicare Program Part B.

COVERAGE FOR THOSE OVER AGE 65

Blue Shield's Complementary Program is the ideal way for people over 65 who subscribe for Part B benefits under the Federal Medicare plan to complete their medical protection.

Blue Shield Complementary takes up where Medicare Part B leaves off—and it builds directly on the government Part B program benefits, so that you know where you stand in paying your doctor and other covered health service bills.

Medicare Part B requires each eligible patient to pay a $50 deductible amount out-of-pocket each year for the services included in the program. Blue Shield Complementary will pay that $50 in connection with any and all of the services covered by the Blue Shield protection you select.

Medicare pays only 80 per cent of reasonable charges for services covered under Part B provisions — requiring that the patient pay the other 20 per cent. Blue Shield Complementary will pay that 20 per cent also, for all services included in the program you choose.

In short, Blue Shield Complementary completes Medicare, and provides the ideal way for those over 65 to assure that the reasonable charges they may incur for covered services in case of illness or accident will be paid in full.

AND THEIR DEPENDENTS

Protection for the dependents of persons over age 65 is equally important. For those dependents not eligible for Medicare—a spouse under age 65, or unmarried dependent children under age 19—Blue Shield continues to make available its regular programs of medical-surgical protection. Enrollment in the Blue Shield Complementary Program is provided in individual (one-person) memberships, following the pattern of Medicare, while enrollment in regular Blue Shield plans includes the customary individual and family memberships.

The Blue Shield Complementary Program is divided into two parts— a basic plan, and an optional rider to cover additional services. The basic plan is available alone, or in combination with the rider. The rider, however, is available in combination only.

What Medicare Means To You

EDITORS NOTE -- There are some 19 million elderly Americans lined up to take advantage of the provisions of medicare when it goes into effect July 1. The following first of four articles tells what this will mean to hospitals and hospital facilities throughout the country.

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Science Writer

Many of the nation's hospitals, some of them already crowded, are braced for an expected increase in elderly patients July 1 when medicare goes into effect.

In short, elderly Americans will be able to compete for hospital beds on a large scale for the first time -- and private patients may find it tougher to get into the hospitals they want in some areas.

Across the nation, an Associated Press survey shows doctors are telling hospital administrators that patients 65 and over have been saving up their ailments until the bill could be paid by medicare.

But no one agrees on how large an increase there will be -- and as yet hard evidence, such as room and bed reservations, is lacking to back up the predictions.

More than 19 million elderly Americans are ready to take advantage of medicare.

July 1 brings only the first of two medicare deadlines. On that day hospital insurance begins for all who have signed up, and optional medical insurance becomes effective for those who decided to pay the $36 a year it will cost. So far 17.2 million or 90 per cent of those eligible have signed up for the doctor-bill, medical-service insurance.

The second medicare deadline comes Jan. 1, 1967, when nursing home benefits begin.

The immediate problem is July 1. Have people saved up their ills to be treated under medicare? Will there be enough hospital beds to hold them? If there aren't who gets priority?

President Johnson received a report from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare which will operate medicare, and that report cited what will be local shortages in hospital beds and facilities.

It is not expected, the department said, that hospital loads would be increased more than some 5 per cent over the nation.

"However, there is already overcrowding of hospital facilities in some areas, and some of the best hospitals in certain parts of the country are overcrowded even though other facilities in the same area are not," the report said.

There are two essential facts behind whatever happens July 1. First, summertime is the slow period in most hospitals, with people putting off surgery when possible until after vacation periods. Second, most medical problems of the elderly require more or less immediate care. Doctors often point out that elective operations before the age of 50 or 55, become operations of necessity afterward.

Still there are some ailments that some of the elderly have lived with, which though not critical, can now be treated and paid for under medicare -- things like cataracts, varicose veins, hemorrhoids, hernias, ear trouble.

That leads some hospital administrators like Richard J. Hancock of Lawrence & Memorial Hospital, New London, Conn., to anticipate that the increased demands will be in terms of elective surgery and treatment.

Explained Dr. John H. Knowles, general director of Boston's Massachusetts General Hospital:

"The increase will feed on itself. As people learn more about how the program means easy access to hospitals, they will say: 'Maybe I should at least go and see whether something can be done with this sore hip that's been bothering me for years.' Old people used to be reluctant to go to a hospital because they equated it with impending death. Now they have learned more about the safety of medicine.

"Once they see they don't need to worry that they may go from the hospital to the poorhouse, more and more will come to the hospitals. There's just no way of estimating how great the increase will be."

In New England, there is almost unanimous agreement among hospitals and doctors queries that people with ailments that are not acute were saving them up for July 1.

Guesses ranged up to 20 per cent in increased case load, and administrators estimated it would take three months to a year to clear the backlog.

But most hospitals expected to be able to handle the influx of cases, and some felt that the influx in their areas would be slight.

ONE-HOUSE LEGISLATURE DISCUSSED NEXT SESSION

A one-house legislature for Missouri? This plan has been proposed on several occasions and is one of the favorite topics of political scientists, but to become a reality it probably will have to be passed by the initiative of the people.

Nevertheless, a bill proposing such a reorganization will certainly be introduced in the next session of the General Assembly by Sen. A. Clifford Jones (R-Ladue) and based on past experience will probably receive wide acclaim from newspapers and some state officials.

Sen. Jones feels that a unicameral legislature could act as a "municipal government" of a state, and "like a municipal government it would have to meet problems immediately."

He berated the Governor for submitted matters to the recent special session of the Legislature which were not real emergencies and pointed out that this is one of the major faults of state government.

"The basic problem is that the present two houses only meet for six months out of every two years and solve some problems, but leave most of the problems undone."

In addition, he feels a unicameral legislature would be able to give more time to the study of legislative proposals if it were to meet the year-round and be staffed with adequate assistants to handle state problems.

"Right now, we rush bills out of committee in order to get them to the other house for consideration, and many bills are passed without being read by many members of the Legislature," he said.

He added that fewer bills probably would be passed, but that these would constitute sounder legislation than the many bills which are approved by the present two houses.

Statewide support of a unicameral legislature was shown in 1944 when voters defeated a proposed one-house system by only a few thousand votes. The election was called by an initiative petition after the Constitutional Convention rejected the proposal. Supporters of the measure had even withdrawn their backing to avoid conflict with the new Constitution and were fighting for defeat of a unicameral legislature, but about 47 per cent of the voters indicated they wanted it anyway.

Sen. Albert Spradling (D-Cape Girardeau), who opposes a unicameral legisalture, pointed out that with only one house, and all members elected for the same terms, the pressure from lobbying groups would be detrimental to forthcoming legislation and state interests.

Lobbyists perform a needed service to the Legislature, he said, but the pressure is great enough and inferred that many measure had been forced on House members, who serve for only two years, and had to be checked by the Senate, whose four-year members he feels are less susceptible to outside pressure.

Many lobbying groups seem to feel that certain legislation must be passed "right now," and this might happen with a unicameral legislature, since there would be no second body to give it consideration, Spradling said.

Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, (D-Columbia) sees advantages to both one-house and two-house systems; however, he said, two houses have enough trouble straightening out legislative problems, and that two houses probably are more effective in "straining the bugs out of legislation."

To make a unicameral system work he feels the public would have to be willing to pay legislators adequate salaries, which he said could parallel those of U. S. Congressmen ($25,000 a year), and provide full-time legislative staffs for each committee.

"Under these circumstances, a one-house system wouldn't be too bad," Vanlandingham said, but he still questioned whether the people could be properly represented with fewer members in only one house.

To Poll Opinions In SEMO Counties

Scott County residents will have a chance to express their opinions on highway beautification, automobile insurance and higher education in a survey conducted by the University of Missouri during the rest of this month and the first week of July.

Representatives of the Public Opinions Survey Unit in the Research Center of the M.U. School of Business and Public Administration are residents of 74 Missouri counties and the City of St. Louis.

The interviews, which will also be conducted in New Madrid, Pemiscot, Dunklin, and Stoddard Counties, consist of a series of questions about Missouri's political opinions and attitudes.

The survey is under the direction of Dr. David C. Leege, assistant professor of political science and faculty research assistant. A similar survey, in another area of public opinion, was held in the same counties a year ago.

Dr. Leege said the survey results are intended primarily for scholarly research and teaching purposes and the survey is directed at a representative sample of 1,200 Missouri residents throughout the state. The 110 interviewers conducting the survey will be identified by cards from the Public Opinion Survey Unit.

SAINT LOUIS BLUE SHIELD

65+ COMPLEMENTARY PROGRAM

A special plan of medical-surgical and health benefits protection to enable people over age 65 to complement and complete the Supplementary Medical Insurance Benefits of the Federal Medicare Program Part B.

COVERAGE FOR THOSE OVER AGE 65

Blue Shield's Complementary Program is the ideal way for people over 65 who subscribe for Part B benefits under the Federal Medicare plan to complete their medical protection.

Blue Shield Complementary takes up where Medicare Part B leaves off—and it builds directly on the government Part B program benefits, so that you know where you stand in paying your doctor and other covered health service bills.

Medicare Part B requires each eligible patient to pay a $50 deductible amount out-of-pocket each year for the services included in the program. Blue Shield Complementary will pay that $50 in connection with any and all of the services covered by the Blue Shield protection you select.

Medicare pays only 80 per cent of reasonable charges for services covered under Part B provisions — requiring that the patient pay the other 20 per cent. Blue Shield Complementary will pay that 20 per cent also, for all services included in the program you choose.

In short, Blue Shield Complementary completes Medicare, and provides the ideal way for those over 65 to assure that the reasonable charges they may incur for covered services in case of illness or accident will be paid in full.

AND THEIR DEPENDENTS

Protection for the dependents of persons over age 65 is equally important. For those dependents not eligible for Medicare—a spouse under age 65, or unmarried dependent children under age 19—Blue Shield continues to make available its regular programs of medical-surgical protection. Enrollment in the Blue Shield Complementary Program is provided in individual (one-person) memberships, following the pattern of Medicare, while enrollment in regular Blue Shield plans includes the customary individual and family memberships.

The Blue Shield Complementary Program is divided into two parts— a basic plan, and an optional rider to cover additional services. The basic plan is available alone, or in combination with the rider. The rider, however, is available in combination only.

Korean Turncoat Embarks for U.S.

HONG KONG AP -- Korean war turncoat Clarence Adams is leaving for the United States tonight aboard the liner President Cleveland, a spokesman for the American President Lines said today.

The spokesman said the 37-year-old Negro from Memphis, Tenn., would be accompanied by his wife and their two children.

Adams and his family were not available to newsmen. They had checked out of their hotel nine days ago without leaving a forwarding address.

The ex-soldier and his family arrived from Communist China May 26. His departure left in China only two of the 21 American servicemen captured during the Korean war who chose in 1953 to remain with their Communist captors.

Married Men From 50 to 70 Proposed For Priesthood

ST. LOUIS AP -- A Roman Catholic Priest suggested Monday that the church admit married men from 50 to 70 years old into the priesthood.

The Rev. Bernard Cooke, S. Jr., chairman of the theology Department at Marquette University, said the experiences from such a system might put the church "in a better position to answer the question of whether younger men should be given the choice of whether to become celibate or married priests."

He said men who had finished their careers and were financially self-sufficient might "be interested in spending 20 to 25 years as a priest" serving directly under a Bishop, although not becoming a member of an order.

Korean Turncoat Embarks for U.S.

HONG KONG AP -- Korean war turncoat Clarence Adams is leaving for the United States tonight aboard the liner President Cleveland, a spokesman for the American President Lines said today.

The spokesman said the 37-year-old Negro from Memphis, Tenn., would be accompanied by his wife and their two children.

Adams and his family were not available to newsmen. They had checked out of their hotel nine days ago without leaving a forwarding address.

The ex-soldier and his family arrived from Communist China May 26. His departure left in China only two of the 21 American servicemen captured during the Korean war who chose in 1953 to remain with their Communist captors.

Married Men From 50 to 70 Proposed For Priesthood

ST. LOUIS AP -- A Roman Catholic Priest suggested Monday that the church admit married men from 50 to 70 years old into the priesthood.

The Rev. Bernard Cooke, S. Jr., chairman of the theology Department at Marquette University, said the experiences from such a system might put the church "in a better position to answer the question of whether younger men should be given the choice of whether to become celibate or married priests."

He said men who had finished their careers and were financially self-sufficient might "be interested in spending 20 to 25 years as a priest" serving directly under a Bishop, although not becoming a member of an order.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: No bigotry allowed -- unless it is yours, right? Usually I don't look at your daily drivel but my eye happened to fall on your column about the Nazi flag and I found it nauseating.

I am not saying Buchenwald and Auschwitz were good, but I am sick of anti-Nazi propaganda which is cleverly kept going by international troublemakers who want to see the world in constant turmoil.

If it weren't for two or three stupid blunders, YOU would be speaking German now. Anyone who has any knowledge of history and military tactics will admit that the Allies very nearly lost World War II. There was never a more courageous, effective or beautiful military machine than the Nazi machine.

I respect the Nazi philosophy and the whole world ought to respect it, as they respect other philosophies. Your lack of objectivity is shocking, Ann Landers. You sound like a hysterical woman. Wipe the foam off your mouth and stop giving advice. -- A. H.

Dear A. H.: Your initials are almost as interesting as your letter. Was your real name Schicklgruber, too?

The Nazi philosophy you ask the world to respect is based on the theory that the Aryan is superman -- and by virture of that superiority, he has the right to rule the world and eliminate, at will, all inferior breeds of mankind.

Moreover, the Nazi philosophy which you admire so greatly, does not tolerate any religious beliefs. The state is god, and dedication to the state must be total. Consequently many Lutherans and Catholics died along with millions of Jews because they refused to forsake their religion.

Under Naziism the individual counts for nothing. It is the State Uber Alles All industrial, business and professional people -- physicians, lawyers, engineers, scientists and artists -- were under the thumb of Der Fuhrer.

If the Nazi philosophy is your idea of perfection you must find life in the United States intolerable. But cheer up, A. H., I have a heartening note for you. You are not alone in your beliefs. I was surprised (and chilled) to discover that hundreds of others in this country share your barbarous ideas. We Americans who believe in the dignity of man and a free society had best not be complacent. We could be taken by surprise.

Thank you for writing. You have given me a great deal to think about.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell us what to do about our 16-year-old daughter. She is a nervous wreck. Elsie (not her real name) has gained about 10 pounds in the last few months. She was too thin and the doctor put her on a special diet. Someone at her school started the rumor that she is pregnant. The girl doesn't want to show her face.

The big problem is that Elsie says she is not going back to her high school in the fall. She wants to go live with her aunt in Omaha and graduate from high school there.

Please give us some of your sould advice. We need it. -- M AND D

Dear M and D: Please tell Elsie that the best way to explode the lie is to stay in town and go back to her school in the fall. If you allow your daughter to run from the situation, her absence will give credulity to the gossip and she will never be comfortable with her friends and classmates again. Don't let her do it.

Confidential to First Time To Be Called Mother: Your life is certainly no paradise in dreamland, but whose is? My advice is to keep your home together and manage as best you can. Don't exchange one set of problems for another.

And now, Lady, about that niece of yours -- do you believe her? A girl who has such shoddy morals could also be a liar.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booket, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Charlie Blanton

Dear Mr. Blanton,

I just had to get on my "soap box" for a moment! Seems as if most of the things we hear about teenagers lately is on the discouraging side. Personally, I'd like to throw some proud praise towards most of Sikeston's teenagers and young adults.

Sikeston Little Theatre's last production of the season, "The King and I" owes a great part of its success to the hard work, talents, and cooperation of 50 teenagers, all of whom carried a load of homework and school activities on the side. They all deserve a "pat on the back," as do another outstanding bunch of Sikeston's young adults, "The Travelers." I'm sure all Sikestonians will want to let them know how proud we are of them and what a wonderful representation they have all given in behalf of their generation and our city.

Sincerely,
Hope Terrell

MU's Hi Simmons Protests Pro Baseball Draft

By JIM VALKENBURG
Associated Press ports Writer

OMAHA, Neb. AP -- College baseball coaches charged Monday that pro baseball is ruining the college game and asked the help of Congress in urging baseball to cease drafting players still in school.

The American Association of College Baseball Coaches wants pro baseball to follow the practice of pro football and basketball protecting athletes from signing until their class graduates.

"I think the time has come to take sharp action," said John Hi Simmons of Missouri, AACBC president. "Pro baseball draft 800 to 900 players, signs less than half, maybe one-third, and they don't have enough minor league teams left to play the men they are drafting. They are wrecking the college baseball program and our organization must seek relief in Congress."

Simmons and Coaches Leo Eilbracht of Illinois, Dutch Fehring, Stanford and George Wolfman of California reported athletic directors and the schools in some sections of the country are considering dropping baseball.

Before the season, Simmons lost .463 hitting Dan Rudanvoch to the pros. Southern California's Rod Dedeaux lost his ace pitcher, Tom Seaver, after the season started. The contract was voided by the Commissioner of Baseball because his team had started the schedule, but the NCAA ruled he could not return to the squad.

Wolfman's top pitcher, junior Andy Messersmith, signed with the California Angels Monday.

"The Big Ten is seriously considering dropping baseball because of pro raids," Eilbracht said. "We have been trying to get together with the pros the last 16 years. Some people in baseball want to help us, but I don't believe the owners do. We're all getting murdered by the draft."

"If there is no college ball, where will the pros get trained players," Fehring said. "They have killed off the minor leagues."

Wolfman said he was instructed by his school to lodge an official protest against the pro draft.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: No bigotry allowed -- unless it is yours, right? Usually I don't look at your daily drivel but my eye happened to fall on your column about the Nazi flag and I found it nauseating.

I am not saying Buchenwald and Auschwitz were good, but I am sick of anti-Nazi propaganda which is cleverly kept going by international troublemakers who want to see the world in constant turmoil.

If it weren't for two or three stupid blunders, YOU would be speaking German now. Anyone who has any knowledge of history and military tactics will admit that the Allies very nearly lost World War II. There was never a more courageous, effective or beautiful military machine than the Nazi machine.

I respect the Nazi philosophy and the whole world ought to respect it, as they respect other philosophies. Your lack of objectivity is shocking, Ann Landers. You sound like a hysterical woman. Wipe the foam off your mouth and stop giving advice. -- A. H.

Dear A. H.: Your initials are almost as interesting as your letter. Was your real name Schicklgruber, too?

The Nazi philosophy you ask the world to respect is based on the theory that the Aryan is superman -- and by virture of that superiority, he has the right to rule the world and eliminate, at will, all inferior breeds of mankind.

Moreover, the Nazi philosophy which you admire so greatly, does not tolerate any religious beliefs. The state is god, and dedication to the state must be total. Consequently many Lutherans and Catholics died along with millions of Jews because they refused to forsake their religion.

Under Naziism the individual counts for nothing. It is the State Uber Alles All industrial, business and professional people -- physicians, lawyers, engineers, scientists and artists -- were under the thumb of Der Fuhrer.

If the Nazi philosophy is your idea of perfection you must find life in the United States intolerable. But cheer up, A. H., I have a heartening note for you. You are not alone in your beliefs. I was surprised (and chilled) to discover that hundreds of others in this country share your barbarous ideas. We Americans who believe in the dignity of man and a free society had best not be complacent. We could be taken by surprise.

Thank you for writing. You have given me a great deal to think about.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell us what to do about our 16-year-old daughter. She is a nervous wreck. Elsie (not her real name) has gained about 10 pounds in the last few months. She was too thin and the doctor put her on a special diet. Someone at her school started the rumor that she is pregnant. The girl doesn't want to show her face.

The big problem is that Elsie says she is not going back to her high school in the fall. She wants to go live with her aunt in Omaha and graduate from high school there.

Please give us some of your sould advice. We need it. -- M AND D

Dear M and D: Please tell Elsie that the best way to explode the lie is to stay in town and go back to her school in the fall. If you allow your daughter to run from the situation, her absence will give credulity to the gossip and she will never be comfortable with her friends and classmates again. Don't let her do it.

Confidential to First Time To Be Called Mother: Your life is certainly no paradise in dreamland, but whose is? My advice is to keep your home together and manage as best you can. Don't exchange one set of problems for another.

And now, Lady, about that niece of yours -- do you believe her? A girl who has such shoddy morals could also be a liar.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booket, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Charlie Blanton

Dear Mr. Blanton,

I just had to get on my "soap box" for a moment! Seems as if most of the things we hear about teenagers lately is on the discouraging side. Personally, I'd like to throw some proud praise towards most of Sikeston's teenagers and young adults.

Sikeston Little Theatre's last production of the season, "The King and I" owes a great part of its success to the hard work, talents, and cooperation of 50 teenagers, all of whom carried a load of homework and school activities on the side. They all deserve a "pat on the back," as do another outstanding bunch of Sikeston's young adults, "The Travelers." I'm sure all Sikestonians will want to let them know how proud we are of them and what a wonderful representation they have all given in behalf of their generation and our city.

Sincerely,
Hope Terrell

MU's Hi Simmons Protests Pro Baseball Draft

By JIM VALKENBURG
Associated Press ports Writer

OMAHA, Neb. AP -- College baseball coaches charged Monday that pro baseball is ruining the college game and asked the help of Congress in urging baseball to cease drafting players still in school.

The American Association of College Baseball Coaches wants pro baseball to follow the practice of pro football and basketball protecting athletes from signing until their class graduates.

"I think the time has come to take sharp action," said John Hi Simmons of Missouri, AACBC president. "Pro baseball draft 800 to 900 players, signs less than half, maybe one-third, and they don't have enough minor league teams left to play the men they are drafting. They are wrecking the college baseball program and our organization must seek relief in Congress."

Simmons and Coaches Leo Eilbracht of Illinois, Dutch Fehring, Stanford and George Wolfman of California reported athletic directors and the schools in some sections of the country are considering dropping baseball.

Before the season, Simmons lost .463 hitting Dan Rudanvoch to the pros. Southern California's Rod Dedeaux lost his ace pitcher, Tom Seaver, after the season started. The contract was voided by the Commissioner of Baseball because his team had started the schedule, but the NCAA ruled he could not return to the squad.

Wolfman's top pitcher, junior Andy Messersmith, signed with the California Angels Monday.

"The Big Ten is seriously considering dropping baseball because of pro raids," Eilbracht said. "We have been trying to get together with the pros the last 16 years. Some people in baseball want to help us, but I don't believe the owners do. We're all getting murdered by the draft."

"If there is no college ball, where will the pros get trained players," Fehring said. "They have killed off the minor leagues."

Wolfman said he was instructed by his school to lodge an official protest against the pro draft.

The AACBC passed a sharply worded resolution.

Mother Attends Midshipman Graduation Of Her Son

"Jim, Robert and I started from Sikeston Friday morning, June 3, and arrived in Washington Saturday, June 4, and did what everyone else does, got lost. After getting directions to Annapolis from four different people, we found ourselves on the road to Mount Vernon, George Washington's home. Since we were so close, and Jim had not seen it, we decided to visit it.

"We stepped into history in this beautiful home with its magnificant surroundings. There is no better place to start, than with a visit to the home of our first president.

"After touring the house and grounds, we get proper directions and arrived in Annapolis for a visit with Mike and his friends.

"Sunday morning we went to chapel, watched the Midshipmen, in their immaculate white uniforms, march into [illegible] and heard the imspiring Midshipmen Choir sing. What a beautiful way to start a Sunday morning.

"The afternoon was spent walking around the yard (Navy talk for campus). How pleasant it was with the old buildings filled with tradition, the Severn River with the sloops in full sail, the Midshipmen with their lovely drags (dates), and of course, proud parents with their Midshipmen sons.

"That evening we went to a garden party given for the parents graduating Midshipmen and their friends by the superintendent of the Naval Academy, Admiral and Mrs. Draper L. Kauffman.

"The garden was beautiful with roses and magnolias in bloom, lighted Japanese lanterns strung throughout the grounds, and the band furnishing appropriate music. Being an old garden party lover I enjoyed it thoroughly.

"Monday evening there was a dance for the Midshipmen, their dates, and parents, held in Memorial Hall. The ballroom was lighted by soft lights from two huge crystal chandeliers.

"Tuesday morning the Color Parade was held. The colors were awarded to the company [illegible] for the best overall record for the year. This was a joyous occasion for the Firsties (seniors) for it was their last parade as Midshipmen.

"In the afternoon we saw the famous Blue Angels do their breathtaking flying.

"Wednesday, June 8, was the day for which we were waiting, Mike's graduation, the purpose of our trip.

"Graduation was held outdoors in the football stadium. The graduation address was given by Admiral David L. McDonald, chief of Naval Operations. The diplomas and commissions were given, the Anchor Man (lowest in the class) collected a dollar from each of the 869 members of the class. (This is another tradition)

"When the exercises were over, the underclassmen stood and gave three cheers for the departing classmates, the graduates gave three cheers "for those we leave behind", then the Midshipmen threw their hats in the air, for they were no longer needed as the graduates were now Ensigns in the United States Navy or Marines.

"What else can a parent add, it was a sad, glorious, and proud moment.

"Thursday we toured the Smithsonian Institution, devoted to our American culture. This is an education experience everyone should have, for the institution shows the ingenuity, heroism, progress and heritage of our great nation.

"What else could be asked of a trip except more.

A Mother,
Ann Henzi"

Bell Telephone Declares War on Nuisance Calls

ST. LOUIS AP -- The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., declared "all-out war" Monday against anonymous nuisance telephone calls, saying it would use "every available, legitimate means" to combat such calls.

Telephone employes are being given special training in how to help customers who have received harassing calls, Shockley said.

Business Trends

AP Business News Anallyst

NEW YORK (AP) —Current perplexing business trends are at least letting you separate the pessimists from the optimists. Mostly they use the same sets of figures and come up with different interpretations or presentations.

The pessimist says the economy is slowing down. The optimist says it is still growing but at a more moderate and therefore healthier pace.

The pessimist says retail sales turned down in April and May. The optimist says consumers still are buying more than a year ago.

The worrier points to a drop in auto sales and production. The booster says sales are still higher than in most previous years — and another model year is just around the corner.

The same division in attitude determines how you view the latest unemployment estimates. You can take alarm that the jobless rate rose in May. Or you can take comfort in the still rising total of those with jobs.

The stock market's steep drop and then its uncertain backing and filling can be viewed as a barometer of stormy weather ahead for the economy. Or it can be accepted as a healthy cooling of speculative fever.

The more conservative minded will tell you that inflation is here and that the threat of still more is as strong as ever. Others will tell you that the inflation threat has been curbed by the healthier pace the economy is now setting.

High interest rates are seen as hurting borrowers, especially smaller businesses. But another view of the tightness of credit is that this curtails some dangerous risk taking and thus helps keep the economy on an even keel. And the man giving to look on the bright side of things is sure to stress that that the savers are profiting from higher interest rates—and furnishing the capital funds that will finance future economic growth.

The pessimist points to the road blocks that are beginning to trouble business expansion. He cites tightening supplies of materials, difficulties in getting deliveries, rising prices, skilled labor shortages, and competition of defense demands with civilian demands.

But the optimist views this with less alarm. He notes that business is still planning to spend more this year for plant and equipment that it did last. And he adds that any slowdown in the big expansion boom in the period just ahead will be just that more helpful in warding off federal tax increases.

Barrel 250 Feet In Air No Place To Spend Night

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) —Trapped five hours in a rainstorm and in a barrel 250 feet up a radio tower's guy wire, a steeplejack was rescued in today's wee hours.

Buffeting winds and rain made everything slick.

"It was a lousy way to spend the night," said Sam Schreiber, 58, of nearby Leslie, once he was on the ground again unharmed, except for a cold, windswept soaking.

Schreiber, who described himself as "a steeplejack all my life," said he'd go back up and finish the tower maintenance job he set out to do at WKAR, the educational outlet of Michigan State University.

Fifty - gallon barrels, lifted by mechanical hoists and hooked to guy wires, raise steeplejacks to their jobs — and usually bring them smoothly down. But Schreiber's got stuck the equivalent of 25 stories up.

Fellow steeplejack Bob Finley, 30, of Eaton Rapids, Mich., climbed 600 feet up the 1,000-foot tower and freed Schreiber's hoist ropes, which had become entangled with the guy line.

Marine Requests Traps to Combat Viet Nam Rats

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. AP -- Marine Cpl. Norman K. Mims of Jacksonville hopes to reduce the rodent population of South Viet Nam.

Mims wrote the Jacksonville postmaster, asking for some rat traps.

"I have used everything from a slingshot to electricity to get rid of the rats and don't seem to be getting anywhere," Mims wrote. "Vietnam has very few cats. I have seen only one, and some of the rats are bigger than he was.

"I would like to try just a plain old rat trap. I would like to have eight of the biggest ones you have."

Arthur F. Whittier, assistant postmaster and an ex-Marine, said he knew what Mims was up against because of his experiences in Guam during World War II.

Whittier bought eight traps and sent them along to Mims, with his compliments.

AUSTIN, Tex. AP -- A Wichita, Kan. junior high teacher says students can often learn more out of a newspaper than a book.

Hope Shackelford, who even watches "Batman" to find out what makes students tick, said Monday that a textbook becomes quickly outdated for students but the newspaper "gives them something that will still be there when the last school bell has rung."

Addressing a conference on classroom use of the newspaper in Austin, Tex., Mrs. Shackelford said that when she asks students to look up something in a newspaper such as compound sentence, they exlaim:

Mother Attends Midshipman Graduation Of Her Son

"Jim, Robert and I started from Sikeston Friday morning, June 3, and arrived in Washington Saturday, June 4, and did what everyone else does, got lost. After getting directions to Annapolis from four different people, we found ourselves on the road to Mount Vernon, George Washington's home. Since we were so close, and Jim had not seen it, we decided to visit it.

"We stepped into history in this beautiful home with its magnificant surroundings. There is no better place to start, than with a visit to the home of our first president.

"After touring the house and grounds, we got proper directions and arrived in Annapolis for a visit with Mike and his friends.

"Sunday morning we went to chapel, watched the Midshipmen, in their immaculate white uniforms, march into ranks and heard the inspiring Midshipmen Choir sing. What a beautiful way to start a Sunday morning.

"The afternoon was spent walking around the yard (Navy talk for campus). How pleasant it was with the old buildings filled with tradition, the Severn River with the sloops in full sail, the Midshipmen with their lovely drags (dates), and of course, proud parents with their Midshipmen sons.

"That evening we went to a garden party given for the parents of graduating Midshipmen and their friends by the superintendent of the Naval Academy, Admiral and Mrs. Draper L. Kauffman.

"The garden was beautiful with roses and magnolias in bloom, lighted Japanese lanterns strung throughout the grounds, and the band furnishing appropriate music. Being an old garden party lover I enjoyed it thoroughly.

"Monday evening there was a dance for the Midshipmen, their dates, and parents, held in Memorial Hall. The ballroom was lighted by soft lights from two huge crystal chandeliers.

"Tuesday morning the Color Parade was held. The colors were awarded to the company with the best overall record for the year. This was a joyous occasion for the Firsties (seniors) for it was their last parade as Midshipmen.

"In the afternoon we saw the famous Blue Angels do their breathtaking flying.

"Wednesday, June 8, was the day for which we were waiting, Mike's graduation, the purpose of our trip.

"Graduation was held outdoors in the football stadium. The graduation address was given by Admiral David L. McDonald, chief of Naval Operations. The diplomas and commissions were given, the Anchor Man (lowest in the class) collected a dollar from each of the 869 members of the class. (This is another tradition)

"When the exercises were over, the underclassmen stood and gave three cheers for the departing classmates, the graduates gave three cheers "for those we leave behind", then the Midshipmen threw their hats in the air, for they were no longer needed as the graduates were now Ensigns in the United States Navy or Marines.

Yes, Sikeston is FRIENDLY! We can be proud of our residents -- their hospitality extended to all. At our places of business; our personnel are friendly folks. Yet, do we "slip a bit" at times? Can we all be FRIENDLIER? Isn't it an idea to, each day, think of this; "LET'S MAKE SIKESTON THE FRIENDLIEST CITY IN MISSOURI. Bear in mind; the person whom you don't know may be just passing through -- may be "looking our town over" with the idea of "locating here" -- regardless, you will give that person "his or her impression" of our city.

Clip out, fill in and please send or bring the above coupon to "Friendliest, Most Courteous" Employe Award at The Daily Standard, Bank of Sikeston, 1st National Bank, Security National Bank, Security Federal Savings & Loan Assn., or mail to the Daily Sikeston Standard, 205 S. New Madrid St., Sikeston, Mo. Voting ends July 16. Vote as often as you wish, but use only this award voting ballot.
